95th YEAR, No. 103 ★ ★ VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1978 15 CENTS DAILY, 30 CENTS SATURDAY

NOVEMBER BUDGET PROMISED

OTTAWA (FP) — Finance Minister Jean Chretien Tuesday declared he hopes to have a budget before the commons by mid-November and rejected opposition demands that he bring down an immediate financial statement.

It will be his third financial accounting to parliament since he took office in September, 1977. He brought in a minibudget in October, 1977, and a full budget in April this year.

The opposition was sharply critical of the government's handling of the economy in this final sitting day of the third session of the 30th parliament. However the questioning was relatively subdued and in keeping with the declaration of the official opposition that it intends to conduct itself in a "responsible" manner to make the institution of parliament function.

Those who had been expecting verbal fireworks during the first sitting since the commons took its lengthy summer recess were disappointed.

Joe Clark, leader of the official opposition, opened the question period with a query as to whether a budget would be presented to Parliament this month.

Living-Cost Drop First in 7 Years

OTTAWA (CP) — The cost of living dropped during September for the first time in seven years, Statistics Canada reported today.

The 12-month inflation rate fell to 8.6 per cent from the August rate of 9.4 per cent.

The federal agency attributed the decline to lower prices for fresh fruit and vegetables, which dropped by 12.1 per cent and 30.9 per cent respectively from one month earlier.

Food prices decreased by 2.4 per cent in September from their August level, but prices for all other items included by Statistics Canada in its consumer price index increased by 0.7 per cent.

Among non-food items, the largest price increases were for home heating oil, household appliances, women's clothing, footwear, local transportation and books.

The last time the national price level, measured by the index, decreased was in September, 1971.

Commenting on the monthly decrease in the cost of living, Sinclair Stevens, Progressive Conservative finance critic, said an annual inflation rate of 8.6 per cent should not give the government any cause for rejoicing.

He predicted, however, that the drop in prices will have a positive effect on the dollar on world currency markets, arguing that traders would be more hesitant to speculate against the currency.

(The Canadian dollar continued to drop on international money markets for the second straight day today despite news that inflation eased. At 11 a.m. EDT the dollar was trading at 84.47 cents U.S., down 7/50ths of a cent from Tuesday's closing rate of 84.61 cents.)

The over-all consumer price index, which measures a basket of goods and services the average Canadian is likely to consume, stood at 177.5 in September, compared with 177.8 in August.

This means that a standard basket of goods and services which cost $177.80 in August, would have cost $177.50 in September. In September, 1977, that same basket would have cost $163.40.

Statistics Canada said the buying power of a 1971 dollar to a consumer now is 56 cents. Last year at this time it bought 61 cents worth of goods and services.

Last month's brief respite from the inflation, which has plagued the economy this year, is not expected to last. Sales tax reductions which have been in effect since last April expire this month in six provinces.

100,000 Jobs To Go, Says NDP

OTTAWA (CP) — About 100,000 jobs will be lost as a result of the $2.5 billion in spending cuts announced by the government last month, says New Democratic Party Leader Ed Broadbent says.

Citing a secret study, Broadbent urged Prime Minister Trudeau to cut short the throne speech debate scheduled for this week and next and bring in a new budget to stimulate the economy.

Meanwhile, Employment Minister Bud Cullen announced the government will ease proposed unemployment insurance cutbacks so they will not hit as hard as predicted on seasonal workers.

That was a response, he said, to protests of Liberal backbench MPs from the Atlantic region who are concerned the changes will hit too hard at fishermen.

Broadbent said in an interview outside the Commons that although he hasn't seen the secret job forecast, "we understand on good authority there is an assessment of the impact of the cutbacks that says 100,000 jobs will be lost."

That figure tallies with estimates prepared by researchers in his own office, he said.

Broadbent said it was important that the adverse effect on the economy resulting from the cuts in government spending be offset by tax cuts to help provide stimulus.

Trudeau told Broadbent he would be willing to talk with opposition party leaders about cutting short the eight-day debate on the throne speech.

Cullen said today he is

ICBC Claims Phone Jam Ending

Victoria's ICBC claims centre on Douglas Street is a disaster area but most of the problems will be solved by Christmas, says manager J.A. Bell.

"We admit we're swamped. People are complaining and I don't blame them a bit. However, we are working on the solution."

(A number of people have also contacted the Times, reporting busy signals at the claims centre lasting several hours.)

To remedy the problem, ICBC is awaiting:

— A new switchboard to be installed in December, doubling the number of lines to 28 from 14.

— Some additional direct lines to be installed so customers can reach a claims officer directly without having to go through the switchboard.

— Four more people to be hired to answer phones.

"We have had the new switchboard on order for months but we've been waiting for B.C. Tel to install it," Bell said.

Within two weeks some direct lines will be installed and the four additional employees will be hired.

With the present switchboard, which ICBC inherited from the previous owner, no operator can answer a call when all 14 lines are in use, which is often.

So there is just a busy signal for much of the day.

With the new switchboard, operators will be able to receive calls when the board is full and put customers on hold or advise them to call back.

The problem of getting through to ICBC has been compounded, Bell said, by an upswing in claims.

For example, there are normally about 2,500 claims a month but there were an extra 600 in August.

The centre will also get a new building, which will create adequate office space for the first time.

The building, on the south end of the property, should be ready for occupancy before the end of 1979, he said.

CS Pay Reins Planned

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Despite a public service rebellion, the federal government today announced plans to reintroduce its controversial bill to tie public service wage increases to those in the private sector.

Parliament will be asked to approve a bill to "ensure that compensation in the federal public service remains in step with the private sector and does not lead the way," the government said in the throne speech that opened the fourth session of the 30th Parliament.

The announcement could have some effect on the 15 federal byelections Monday. The Public Service Alliance of Canada, with the backing of the entire labor movement, has conducted a well-orchestrated campaign against any candidate who supports the proposal.

The bill was introduced last session and died when the session was prorogued.

A public service demonstration against the government was set to be held after delivery of the throne speech.

The New Democratic Party already has served notice that it will not support a bill to place restrictions on public service wage increases.

Stanley Knowles, NDP House Leader, said Tues-

DEADLY HOUSE HUSH

OTTAWA (FP) — An expected opposition stoning of a government on the run failed to materialize Tuesday when MPs returned to their desks in the Commons, fresh from a summer recess of more than three months.

The attack was gentle and the Conservative benches were surprisingly quiet with the traditional desk-pounding for speakers left only to the Liberal ranks.

The gentle handling of the Liberals was just a calm before a storm likely to start Thursday following the government's throne speech today.

However, the moratorium on desk pounding may continue among Tory ranks for some time.

ALERT STUDENTS SPOT MISSING ART

Two of 20 art treasures missing from the University of Victoria's Maltwood Art Museum and Gallery have been returned.

A spokesman for the gallery said today a couple of alert students are responsible for the recovery of the two paintings.

The students recognized the paintings hanging in an office on campus from photographs circulated on campus by gallery curator Martin Segger.

Segger sent out a memo several weeks ago along with pictures of the 20 missing pieces.

The disappearance of the art objects, mainly paintings, was discovered this summer when the collection was moved into the new University Centre.

Beirut's Ceasefire Jolted by Gunfire

BEIRUT (AP) — Bursts of gunfire and explosions jolted the Syrian-Christian ceasefire in Beirut before dawn today as Syrian troops and their adversaries in Lebanon's Christian militias were reported bringing up reinforcements.

President Elias Sarkis accelerated a tour of Arab capitals as his country was threatened with a new round of Syrian-Christian fighting.

Beirut police and other witnesses reported an increase of sniper fire on roads leading into the city's Christian enclave, apparently to cover the influx of reinforcements.

The Christians accused the Syrians of initiating the firing Tuesday night. They said Syrian sniper fire killed 15 Christians and wounded 25 on the bridges leading into East Beirut from the Christian hinterland to the north.

There was no comment from the Syrians.

It was the second threat in less than 24 hours to the ceasefire, now in its fourth day. Syrian and Christian forces exchanged machine-gun and sniper fire and rocket grenades for an hour across the green line Tuesday afternoon.

The water cutoff appeared to be in retaliation for a food blockade which the Christian Voice of Lebanon radio station said the Syrians have clamped on East Beirut. It said all relief and supply convoys to the Christian sector, including Red Cross vehicles, were being turned back.

Sarkis had been scheduled to fly to Kuwait today from the United Arab Emirates but instead went to Kuwait Tuesday night. He is trying to get the other Arab states that have token forces in the mostly-Syrian peacekeeping force to extend the force's mandate another six months. The mandate expires Oct. 28.

From Kuwait, the president was scheduled to go to Sudan and then back to Damascus for more talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad. The Syrian leader said Sarkis was seeking approval of "ideas we have agreed upon" and would return to the Syrian capital so they "can put them into final shape."

Murder Count

Kevin Harvey Ethier, 20, of Victoria was charged today in Fort St. John with first-degree murder following the shooting Tuesday of a 33-year-old man at a service station.

Post Office Ad Fans Fires of CUPW Strike

MAIL STRIKE THREATENS UNITED WAY

Victorians were urged today to send in their donations to the United Way immediately because of the possibility of a postal strike next week.

Campaign chairman Bob Mussett said $78,000 was received through mail solicitations last year and $90,000 has been budgeted this year. So far, $16,000 has been received.

"We're very disturbed over the loss that will occur if the mailers are not returned," he said.

"We get twice as much from the mailers as from door-to-door."

He said if there is a postal strike, United Way will announce a contingency plan. But the campaigners prefer that contributions be mailed ahead of any possible strike.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Local officers of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) have angrily denounced an advertisement setting out the post office's view of negotiations with inside postal workers.

Larry Honeybourne, CUPW regional grievance officer, predicted Tuesday it would strengthen the strike mandate now being sought and worsen already troubled labor relations.

He said he will use the advertisement as ammunition at union meetings being held this week to authorize a strike. The vote is expected to be announced Monday.

Honeybourne said the advertisement is one more reason making it unlikely workers would obey threatened federal legislation ordering them back to work under current circumstances.

"If we don't have a collective agreement, we can't take the conciliation report — there are too many items to negotiate. I'm sure the membership wouldn't go back on that basis."

Lloyd Ingram, president of the Vancouver local, called the advertisement a "thin tissue of lies, half-truths and distortions."

"Postal workers will never accept the shoddy offers and shoddy tactics of the employer in this contract dispute," he said. "And I have every confidence that when the truth is known the public will most definitely side with the just demands of CUPW."

Entitled It's Your Money!, the advertisement compares the union bargaining position with the employer's offer. It follows discussions post office managers held with employees on the plant floor last week.

PREVUE PUZZLE ARRIVES

Answers to the Prevue Prize Puzzle of Sept. 29 have finally arrived and since there was no winner the prize for last weekend's puzzle will be $700.

The missing puzzle answers will be found on page 29 of today's Times. Answers to last week's puzzle will be published as usual in the Prevue section Friday.

Security Council Raps U.S. For Allowing Smith to Visit

Times News Services

The United States was rapped on the knuckles by the UN Security Council on Tuesday for allowing the current visit of Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith.

The council voted 11 to 0 for a four-country resolution censuring the U.S. because it broke the 1968 mandatory sanctions imposed by the UN against Rhodesia which include visits by illegals such as Smith.

Only France among the five Western members of the council voted for the resolution, sponsored by India, Kuwait, Mauritius and Nigeria.

Canada, West Germany, Britain and the U.S. abstained.

In explaining Canada's vote, Ambassador William Barton said the Canadian government recognized that the Smith visit was a violation of sanctions voted by the council.

But the government also took into account the factors at play in the Rhodesian situation, Barton said. No stone must be left unturned in trying to make progress in negotiations to end the conflict in Rhodesia.

Richard Petree, sitting in for U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young, said Smith's visit does not mean the U.S. has decided to recognize the Smith regime or lift embargoes on trade with Rhodesia.

The Rhodesians are trying to sell to the U.S. their plan for internal settlement leading to their version of majority rule, which has become suspect among most countries of the world.

Stolen Paper Threat to Agents?

OTTAWA (CP) — The Journal says that a missing top-secret security document might be a threat to the lives of some undercover RCMP officers.

The newspaper says in a front-page story today that senior officers of the RCMP security service are working "frantically but so far unsuccessfully" to find the person who stole the document from RCMP files.

It quotes a senior government official as saying that the document contains the names of scores of RCMP undercover operatives and informants. If it was made public, the lives of some of these people might be endangered.

It adds that the RCMP knows that a deep-cover operative has breached security but his motives are a mystery. Speculation centred on someone who hates the RCMP or the Trudeau government and who has embarked on a vendetta.

One lead being followed involved a mystery man using the name Maurice Pelletier and now believed to be operating in the New York City area.

The Journal says Pelletier has been providing some Canadian newspapers with copies of RCMP private telegraph messages dating to 1971. The messages outlined an operation named Carte Blanche.

Carte Blanche, says the newspaper, involves the surveillance in Canada of French diplomats and their links with separatist groups in Quebec. The operation was started because of a French intelligence operation, called Operation Ascot, a 25-year French government plan aimed at aiding Quebec separation.

This operation, says the newspaper, began with the Charles de Gaulle regime in 1958.

Tuesday, Progressive Conservative MP Tom Cossitt (Leeds) said French undercover agents involved in Ascot left Canada in 1972, but the French government continued to finance the separatist cause.

geared up for complaints from his provincial counterparts about federal moves to tighten the unemployment insurance system and to implement a restraint program without consulting them fully.

"I think they're a little concerned that these announcements were somewhat precipitous," Cullen said before entering a one-day, closed meeting with manpower and welfare ministers from across the country.

The provinces are concerned that the changes, announced during the summer and proposed for implementation during the new session of Parliament, will result in increased costs at the provincial level. They expect to have to pay in welfare and other social service benefits what the federal government saves in unemployment insurance benefits and other cuts.

The unemployment insurance changes are expected to result in savings of $580 million in 1979-80. The government plans to spend $710 million in that period on job creation and training.

INVENTOR TAKES WIND OUT OF HIGHLAND PIPES

GLASGOW (Reuter) — The world's first electronic bagpipes were introduced here today.

The instrument, invented by police Sgt. Angus MacLellan, looks much like traditional highland bagpipes, but it is run by battery and does not require blowing.

Instead of a bag full of wind, MacLellan's pipes have electric devices which imitate the sounds of a bagpipe.

One of its most attractive features, according to the inventor, is that the volume of the music can be controlled.

Commercial production of the pipes is due to start soon in Dunoon, near Glasgow.

Levesque Reads Statement

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Rene Levesque read a formal statement on his government's goal of sovereignty-association to the Quebec national assembly Tuesday, but opposition spokesmen said they are still awaiting a clear definition.

There is no question of first obtaining political sovereignty and then negotiating a form of economic association with the rest of Canada, Levesque said.

"Sovereignty and association will have to come without a break and concurrently, once Quebecers have given us such a mandate in a referendum," he said.

Sovereignty means that Quebec would alone make laws applying to this part of North America and it alone would have the power to tax within its boundaries, Levesque said.

Association would mean that there would be no customs barriers between an independent Quebec and Canada.

The two countries would share a common currencyn and a joint central bank would set monetary policy, he said.

Liberal opposition leader Gerard D. Levesque attacked the statement as "unacceptable to Quebecers and to the rest of Canada."

Rodrigue Biron, leader of the Union Nationale, the smaller of the two opposition parties, commented: "What more do we know now about sovereignty-association than we already knew before this statement, which I would term vapid?"

Levesque himself acknowledged that his statement was a "reaffirmation" of the essentiel elements of his government's political platform.

But he promised that within a few months, his government will publish a more elaborate document on sovereignty-association.

day the bill "negates the principle of free collective bargaining in the public service."

The government said in its throne speech, it is committed to creating "a leaner and more efficient government."

Trudeau reaffirmed what he described as his determination to "strengthen Canada through unity, to unify Canada through economic strength."

"Seldom in the past have the seriousness of the challenge, the strength of our national will and the scope of our opportunities combined to create for Canada a moment in history so full of potential for good," said the speech, read by Gov.-Gen. Jules Leger and his wife Gaby.

"Such a moment, if ignored, may not soon come again."

Group for Widows Plans Expansion

The demand for guidance from people who have suffered a bereavement has increased to such an extent the Widows' Association of Lower Vancouver Island will expand its counselling services.

"The original aim of the association was to help widows," president Mrs. Gladys Whittaker said today. "Now we are offering guidance and counselling to any individual with problems arising from a bereavement in the family — widow and widower, as well families bereaved by the loss of children."

The association operates a centre at room 304-620 View where people can discuss their problems.

Whittaker said the association plans to seek additional funding for the centre.

She noted that there about 13,000 widows in Greater Victoria and about 2,000 are under 54.

ECHO Feared

LONDON (Reuter) — Public health officials are concerned over a rare virus which is causing a growing number of illnesses here, a health department spokesman said today.

The virus, ECHO (enteric cytopathogenic human orphan) 11, can produce infection of the respiratory tract or meningitis.

Three deaths, all of newborn infants, have been attributed to the illness, which initially is considered a heavy cold or upset stomach.

Meat Charges Laid

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two Canada Customs waterfront inspectors have been charged with theft following an investigation into the importation of more than a ton of meat.

Claude Leullier, 52, of Burnaby and inspector Bruce McLellan, 26, of North Vancouver are each charged with breach of trust by a public official, falsification of books and documents with intent to defraud and theft under $200.

In August, Walter Coleman, a customs superintendent with 27 years service, was charged with breach of trust, forgery and theft in connection with the case. He has been suspended indefinitely.

A joint police-customs investigation was launched last January into allegations that some waterfront customs officers acquired imported meat for the price of the duty—half a cent a pound.

Investigators searched five homes of customs officers Aug. 16 and seized 53 pounds of beef and 157 pounds of lamb. No further meat was recovered.

Vincent Castonguay, area manager of custom operations, said Tuesday that there was some concern when the case involving the meat was uncovered that other goods might also be mishandled.

However, no further cases were uncovered and the joint investigation has ended.

Bell-Irving To Attend Seaforth Fete

Lt.-Gov. H. P. Bell-Irving left today for England where he is to attend bicentenary celebrations of the raising of his old regiment, the Seaforth Highlanders, a spokesman for Government House said.

The spokesman said Bell-Irving and his wife have been invited to visit Queen Elizabeth at Buckingham Palace.

Bell-Irving commanded the Seaforth Highlanders during the Italian campaign of the Second World War and the 10th Canadian Infantry Brigade in northwest Europe.

King to Tackle Bawlf

NDP House Leader Bill King whose old Revelstoke-Slocan riding has been legislated out of existence, will decide by this weekend whether or not to try and make Victoria his political base.

King, whose has represented Revelstoke-Slocan for seven of the past 10 years said today he has had offers to run in five ridings since new legislation late this spring wiped out his interior constituency.

Victoria is the one he is looking at most closely. He has maintained a residence here since 1972 when he was named to the NDP cabinet.

His home town of Revelstoke is now included in the expanded Shuswap riding currently represented by Socred backbencher Len Bawtree.

Shuswap is the other riding King is considering running in but the area's former NDP MLA Don Lewis is also eyeing that riding.

Lewis lost to Bawtree by 190 votes in 1975 and King says he wants to knock off a Socred not challenge a fellow party member.

King feels Charles Barber's NDP seat in Victoria is safe and says he would look forward to a battle with Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf for the second Victoria seat.

He says he's not intimidated by the prospect of facing a cabinet minister. Two of the other ridings where he has been invited to run are currently represented by cabinet ministers.

A Barber-King ticket in Victoria would be a rather challenging and exciting campaign, the former labor minister said.

Slash-Burn Haze Killer, Report Says

A report linking dust from forest slash burning with chronic lung disease has caused the B.C. Forest Service to take a closer look at burning as the usual method of disposing of forest waste.

"That haze you used to see around the province used to be passed off as the forest service's midsummer madness, but this new study has really set us on our heels," Peter Bell, a forest service technician, said in a recent interview.

"It's not the smoke that gets in your eyes, the stuff that people used to complain about, that causes problems," he said. "It's the tiny dust you can't see that's apparently settling in your lungs.

"Until last year we didn't really take that health hazard from slash burning seriously, but now you can bet we do."

The forest service has recently announced that a joint study of slash burning will be conducted with the provincial pollution control branch, but it will also rely on U.S. studies such as the one now being completed by the Seattle office of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

EPA scientist David Bray said in a telephone interview from Seattle that the final report will say death rates for chronic obstructive lung disease are higher in fire-burning areas of Montana and that the state receives fire fallout from several U.S. states and Canada.

Tiny particles less than three microns in diameter (about one-thousandth of a millimetre) travel great distances, are not necessarily visible as a cloud of smoke and have been conclusively linked to cancer, he said.

The particles can combine in urban areas with industrial contaminants to cause extremely dangerous effects to human health.

The first draft of the study says particles less than three microns in diameter have long since been considered a factor in chronic obstructive lung disease since these particles tend to be retained deeply in pulmonary passages with the potential of adversely affecting tissue.

A pollution control branch spokesman, who wished to remain unidentified, agreed with Bray's assessment.

"No doubt about it, when these tiny particles combine with SO2 (sulphur dioxide) and other contaminants — like they do over Vancouver — the effect can be simply horrendous.

"The environment ministry knows that and that's partly why they kicked off this study. They're pretty damn worried."

Another problem caused by slash burning is the jurisdictional dispute over smoke from one area causng trouble in another.

"It's like the lead from Trail turning up in the States," said Bell. "If smoke from our fires, even the carefully controlled slash fires, is heading south with results like these, it could mean big trouble."

Queen Victoria's Bloomers To Billow On Block

VANCOUVER (CP) — A pair of bloomers once warn by Queen Victoria will go on the auction block in Fort Langley next week.

David Gray of Liverpool outbid other buyers last July in London and obtained the bloomers for Village Auction Sales, a local company.

He said they have been authenticated as genuine by the sellers — Bonham's Montpelier Galleries.

Gray said the bloomers are worth between 150 and 200 pounds in England, although he said he was prepared to pay up to 300 pounds for them. He couldn't give the exact purchase price since they were included with other items he purchased.

Gray acts as a buyer of antiques and second-hand furniture in England for Ken Passmore, the president of Village Auctions.

"In England it made great news," Passmore said.

Gray said that collecting Queen Victoria's underclothing is a bit of a lark in Britain and notable comics like Spike Milligan and Marty Feldman each "boast a pair."

The pair that will be auctioned, said Gray, date back to the latter part of the 19th Century and were worn late in the Queen's reign when she put on a lot of weight.

Vega Probe Under Way

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport department investigators are examining an incident in which a Chevrolet Vega caught fire during a rear-end collision, partly to see if it is linked to allegations in the United States.

In a letter released Tuesday by Herb Gray (L— Windsor West), Transport Minister Otto Lang said that since early 1978, the government's 10 , accident investigation teams have found one collision fire involving a Vega.

Lang said that if further investigation shows any safety defect in the Vega automobile, appropriate action will be taken. The driver's scalp and hands were burned.

An investigation official said in an interview the collision occurred recently in Montreal but that the possibility of linking it to a defect is difficult because the car was badly damaged.

Meantime, officials planned to inquire into allegations in the U.S. that Vegas made between 1971 and 1973 have exploding gas tanks similar to those in pre-1977 Ford Pintos.

Gray asked the department about a month ago to investigate allegations made by U.S. consumer activist Ralph Nader and by Byron Bloch, a Los Angeles auto safety design consultant.

Snap Showed Rifle Next to Bloody Ear

MONTREAL (CP) — A dramatic snapshot of Charles Marion with a rifle barrel pressed to his ear was introduced as evidence Tuesday during the second day of testimony in the kidnapping trial of Claude and Jeanne Valence.

The Valences are charged with conspiring with Michel De Varenne to kidnap Marion, kidnapping the credit union employee, forcibly detaining him for 82 days last year attempted extortion and extortion.

The previously unpublished snapshot accompanied the third ransom note from Marion's kidnappers repeating demands for $1 million in $10 and $20 bills. The note came into the hands of provincial police investigators Aug. 10, 1977, four days after Marion disappeared from his cottage near Sherbrooke.

The message was addressed to credit union official Claude Stebens at the Caisse Populaire de Sherbrooke-Est, where Marion had been the loans manager.

The color photo shows a bare-headed and unshaven Marion, with a gloved hand on his head and the barrel of a rifle jammed against his ear. His eyes are closed and there are red stains on his mouth and ear.

Photos that accompanied the first ransom note showed Marion holding a copy of a newspaper dated Aug. 7, 1977.

The prosecution introduced seven separate communiques Tuesday that had been sent to credit union officials. Letters to friends of Marion and indirectly addressed to his wife, Denise, were also read into evidence by provincial police Cpl. Yvon Desbiens, a technical squad officer.

The kidnappers, who signed the messages "The 7 Serpents," established codes to be used on Sherbrooke radio station CHLT with the names Marion and Stebens spelled in reverse.

Gov't Loses Land Suit

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has been ordered to pay $135,000, plus four years interest, to the Hillsdale Golf and Country Club outside Montreal.

The order was issued by the Federal Court which had been asked to decide an expropriation dispute between the club and the government.

Golf course land was expropriated by the government in 1969 for Mirabel International Airport. Five years later, during which the club nontinued to operate, the expropriation was abandoned.

The club complained that during the five years its property value droppedl it suffered higher capital expenses on delayed projects and that it lost members because of the expropriation. It asked the court for an award of $758,180.

The court, after studying various calculations, said the club should receive $135,000 plus interest from September 23, 1974, the date the expropriation was abandoned.

Rhodesia's Last Chance

In considering the Rhodesian dilemma, it is tempting to paint things in boldest outline. The black nationalists fighting a hit-and-run guerilla war are freedom fighters working towards the liberation of their homeland, Zimbabwe, oppressed under the illegal regime of Ian Smith for a decade and a half.

Or: Ian Smith is a flexible and skilled politician who, with great effort, has managed to work out a compromise settlement with native leaders that will lead to the peaceful transition of power to the black majority, if only given support by the international community.

Or: Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, leaders of the guerillas fighting from bases outside Rhodesia, are bloodthirsty terrorists without popular support in the country, interested only in power. They would be puppet clients of Cuba and the Soviet Union.

Or: the United States and Great Britain have stubbornly withheld support from Smith's painstakingly negotiated internal settlement more out of concern for keeping in the good books of black African leaders, and are really unconcerned with saving lives.

There is a bit of truth in all of these assessments. Similarly, a settlement of Rhodesian affairs will clearly require a melding of several different positions. Smith himself began the process with his internal settlement, but that clearly is just a stopping point on the road to a comprehensive agreement.

With several thousand ably-organized and well-supplied Patriotic Front guerillas roaming the countryside of Rhodesia in opposition to Smith's plan, it is rash to talk, as the Rhodesian prime minister has, as if the internal settlement would solve all problems if only Britain and the U.S. would extend their support.

Smith's visit to the U.S. in that cause has had mixed results. He has certainly had some effect on public opinion there. Merely his presence on American soil focuses attention on his cause, and Smith has a large minority following in congress that the administration of President Jimmy Carter cannot totally ignore. But Smith gravely misunderstands the Americans if he mistakes this support for a general American willingness to intervene with military aid or armed force.

And that seems to be the last resort available to him. A reading of even the government-censored reports on the Rhodesian struggle against the guerillas — until recently conducted on a fairly small scale — suggests the battle is going badly for the government. Public opinion was outraged last month at a guerilla attack on an Air Rhodesia passenger aircraft and the slaughter of some of the crash survivors. But no combatant in any war has a monopoly on righteousness. Since the guerilla struggle began, some 2,000 whites have been killed in bushland warefare and terrorist attacks. But at the same time, troops of the government have caused the deaths of more than 10 times as many black natives of Rhodesia. All of them were not guerillas, certainly.

It is a terrible toll for such a small country. In Canadian terms, it would mean 100,000 deaths. But it seems likely that unless renewed efforts are made by Smith to include the hated Patriotic Front in a Rhodesian administration, the fighting and the killing will go on. That is one certainty in the confused Rhodesian situation today.

The Continuing Thirst

To say the least, the relief and joy voiced at the end of the British Columbia beer dispute six weeks ago was somewhat premature. Since that time, all parties involved in that protracted and probably unnecessary head-butting contest have continued to suffer: the breweries have kept on losing money, many workers are still off the job and the public is still denied a reasonable choice of brews. Now it is impossible to lay the blame for this sad state of affairs at any one doorstep, but at the very least steps should be taken to see that it never happens again.

The current problem arises from the decision of the provincial liquor distribution branch to bring in substantial quantities of U.S.-made suds during the three-month lockout. The brewery workers did not oppose this move, preumably believing that the availability of American beer would put pressure on the B.C. companies to give in to the union demands. Unfortunately, through miscalculating the probable length of the dispute, the amount of beer required to slake the collective B.C. thirst or both, the branch found itself stuck with more than two million dozen largely unwanted American beer.

Having bought the stuff, the provincial government decided to sell it. The consequences were inevitable: the breweries could not get their products on shelves filled with U.S. brands, so they did not produce. Not producing, they had no need for full shifts and began laying off workers who had just suffered a long and financially difficult lockout.

For the breweries and the drinkers, this foul-up remains little more than an annoyance. The beer barons were willing to sacrifice some $50 million in sales over the summer in their defiance of the union, and a few dollars more should not send them to the poorhouse. Beer fanciers can always find Canadian draught at pubs and some, it is said, have actually developed a taste for the anemic dishwater produced south of the border. But for the workers, this forced unemployment reaches critical proportions.

The origins of this problem are now all in the past. Who might have been at fault in the labor dispute is no longer at issue. And one can hardly blame the government for trying to ensure the availability of at least some kind of beer during a hot summer, even if it did miscalculate. Which brings us to the present. The latest government guess suggests that the 600,000 cases of American beer remaining on liquor store shelves should be gone in three weeks. But that is also what they said at the beginning of September, when more than a million cases were left.

And Consumer Affairs Minister Rafe Mair's excuse that "by the time we finally come up with some clever solution to get rid of it (the U.S. beer), it'll be gone," is not very encouraging either. The government owes the workers and the public two things: to find a solution to the current fiasco and to develop contingency plans making a recurrance unlikely.

RICHARD GWYN

Constitutional Trick or Treat

OTTAWA — "Yes," said the official, wearily and warily, "we know it's Hallowe'en." The choice of the dates Oct. 30-31 and Nov. 1 for the rescheduled constitutional conference with the premiers, means that everyone's main interest will be in whether the premiers get served pumpkin pie for dessert, and who gets tricked and who gets treated.

Come to think of it, Quebec Premier Rene Levesque would be a natural for a hobgoblin.

Enough of the, more or less, funny stuff. On to the heavier part.

Recently, Trudeau remarked that during the past 51 years, six prime ministers had tried to reform the constitution and to bring it to Canada. All had failed. "I'm darn well determined to succeed," said Trudeau.

Going Gets Harder

At this moment, Trudeau seems certain to stretch the string of prime ministerial strike-outs to seven. The public could care less about the whole exercise. The premiers are hostile. The Conservatives have successfully forced Trudeau to ask the supreme court to decide whether Ottawa has the right to unilaterally change the Senate into a House of the Federation.

Ahead, the going for Trudeau will get even harder. He has set himself a deadline of July 1, 1979, for implementing phase one of his constitutional proposals. In a letter to the premiers last week, Trudeau explained that the reason for this tight timing was to offer Quebecers before their referendum something other than "political independence on the one hand, and the preservation of the status quo on the other."

Trudeau hasn't a hope of keeping to his critical path. His critics will use the excuse of the reference to the supreme court as a reason to avoid getting down to business, particularly so the premiers whose claim to be sole spokesmen for their provinces would be undermined by constitutional changes that made Ottawa more representative of the regions.

The court, though, isn't likely to issue a ruling before next March. Right after that, Trudeau will have to call his long delayed, and by then no longer delayable, election.

Should Trudeau therefore soldier on with his impossible mission? At the risk of appearing to contradict myself, it seems to me that he should.

of Quebec's separation. It does seem clear that the referendum will be lost, except by a trick question. Even Levesque's version of separation, "sovereignty-association," is a trick question since Levesque cannot guarantee to Quebecers that he can deliver an economic association with Canada.

So why bother? Precisely, if paradoxically so, because Quebec, excepting for a miracle, is going to remain within Canada. We've got no choice now, but to figure out how best to hang together.

In a recent appearance before the Senate-Commons committee studying Trudeau's constitutional proposals, lawyer Gerald Morris warned that Canada is earning a reputation as "the sick man of the western industrialized world."

While our dollar goes down and our trade deficit goes up, our governments expend their energies on wars of empire and of ego. It's like squabbling, on the Titanic, about who should have won the prize for the fancy dress ball.

Three examples of intergovernmental irresponsibility, carefully chosen so that the blame gets spread evenly around. In concocting its new economic policies and spending cuts, Ottawa ignored the provinces, even though these now account for close to two-thirds of total government spending. Quebec, last spring, deliberately botched up Ottawa's attempt at joint budgeting through sales tax reductions. Alberta at this moment is boycotting the entire federal-provincial program to develop industrial strategies for 23 key industries.

Playing Tricks

No wonder outsiders — investors, financiers, businessme — think we are "sick."

It's easy to criticize Trudeau's proposals. Everyone has done so. Critics, though, either offer no suggestions of their own, or when they do, find that these are equally vulnerable to attack, as has happened to the House of the Provinces, proposed by the Canada West Foundation, the Conservative party and the Canadian Bar Association, as an alternative to Trudeau's House of the Federation.

In particular, the provincial premiers have so far agreed only to disagree with Ottawa. Or to fuss about the Queen. Or to fume at the possibility Ottawa might act unilaterally in its own areas of jurisdiction.

We could abandon the attempt to do anything until the referendum. We could call the whole thing off. We cannot, surely, go on playing tricks on each other behind Hallowe'en masks.

". . . good morning . . . and what's been stolen from us today? . . ."

JAMES RESTON

And Polls Go Up and Down

WASHINGTON — This city changes its moods almost as fast as it changes its clothes. A few short weeks ago, nothing seemed to be working around here — you couldn't see the Potomac for the fog and heat, everything was stuck in Congress, and Jimmy Carter was falling faster than the dollar.

Now there is suddenly a sense of movement. The air has cleared, the energy, tax and civil service reform bills have begun to make some progress on Capitol Hill, the Washington Redskins have won five straight, and President Carter has picked up 14 or 15 points in the popularity polls.

Psychologically, it is an important difference. Carter's approval rating dropped from 67 per cent to 39 per cent within a yetic majorities and was challenged by these same majorities on the conduct of foreign and defense policy, how could he lead the nation at home or abroad?

Murphy's Law

His success at the Camp David Middle East conference — or at least his avoidance of failure — turned this around, but maybe this is a good time to recall Murphy's Second Law of Politics, namely, that nothing in Washington is ever quite as good or as bad as the popular opinion of the moment.

And it makes you wonder about polls. For if one diplomatic accomplishment can produce such a switch within a single week, he is likely to go up and down like a yo-yo in the second half of his term.

Actually, the polls have not been an accurate measure of Carter's performance since the election of 1976. They had him away up in the first six months when he was actually stumbling around on the economy and on foreign affairs, and then they had him away down when he began to get his balance. In short, the polls told us that the people thought of him at different points along the way, but opinion is not fact, and as Harry Truman demonstrated long ago, the people are as flighty as swallows.

Carter's tactics at Camp David were not particularly new but mainly a continuation of the arguments he was making during the year when his popularity rating was collapsing.

He decided over a year ago that a Geneva conference on the Middle East, with the Soviets and all the contending Arab factions lined up against the Israelis would be a spectacular disaster, and he moved then to get the Egyptian and Israeli leaders into direct negotiations.

He had some clumsy moves and verbal blunders along the way, but he forced the issue to the summit at precisely the right moment and at least managed to avoid the drift toward an open break between Sadat and Begin.

This is only the beginning, however, of a long and painful process which is subject to all kinds of accidents and even sabotage. So the optimism of the moment could be as excessive as the pessimism of the past, with Carter being blamed for the defeats as he is being praised for the Camp David "triumphs."

Also, Camp David confirmed something that has been noted here about Carter ever since he came to Washington. This is that he is much more persuasive and effective in small groups and in private negotiations than he is in large public meetings, and lately he has been intervening more often with influential members of the Congress in the hope of salvaging his energy and tax bills, and building support for a strategic arms limitation treaty with the USSR, which is still in serious trouble.

What is it that produces these wild swings of public opinion in this country? It is, I think, a popular tendency to exaggerate the power of the president, and minimize or ignore the power of the Congress and the private vested interests.

This is encouraged by a press and television that focus on personalities rather than on issues and on victories and defeats, as if politics were a game instead of a highly complicated process of compromise.

President Carter is also partly to blame for his erratic standings by encouraging the voters to expect more than he had the power to deliver. But he is gradually adapting his rhetoric to the realities, and at mid-term has a chance now since Camp David to get a more attentive audience in congress and in the nation.

Coming Test

The first serious test of his comeback will come in the congressional elections in November. A few weeks ago many candidates regarded him as a political liability and didn't even want him campaigning in their districts. Now they are more receptive, and he is planning an energetic tour of the country in October.

As in the case of Camp David, however, events rather than speeches are likely to determine how influential he will be. Prices, interest rates, and jobs will, as usual, be the most critical issues, and these are not subject to sudden changes by dramatic presidential moves. The mood on the home front is still anxious about the economy, and it is here rather than on foreign policy issues that the Republicans will be attacking his record.

Charles Roberts

I am, with the permission of Lady Roberts, collecting the letters of her late husband, Sir Charles G. D. Roberts (1860-1943), for publication.

Roberts was a well-known poet and writer of animal stories, and an avid outdoorsman. He lived at various times in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Toronto and Vancouer, travelled extensively in Canada between 1880 and 1943 on lecture tours and personal visits, and had contacts with persons from all walks of life.

This is my final attempt to collect additional Roberts letters prior to completing the preparation of the existing collection for publication. I should greatly appreciate hearing from any persons holding letters from Sir Charles. I can be contacted at the: Roberts Letters Project, c/o Department of English, University of New Brunswick, Fredericton, New Brunswick, E3B 5A3. — Fred Cogswell, Head, Roberts Letters.

Steps Unsafe

Last Saturday my father and I attended the Canucks-Los Angeles hockey game at Memorial Arena. I was quite perturbed to see the state of the aisles. It is quite evident that safety has been given very little consideration for access to and from the seats. The steps are inadequately marked and elderly patrons are faced with negotiating these steps without the benefit of a handrail.

My father stumbled and might easily have been involved in a costly and painful injury. This fortunately did not happen but it is very probably that unless a better safety system is implemented a serious accident may not be too far off. Surely, it is not asking too much that a colored strip could at least indicate the irregular steps.

This is surely not the first time the arena management has been faced with this problem. I trust that some concrete measures for the safety of patrons will soon be established. — M. E. Cooper, 7873 Patterson Road, Saanichton.

No Fun Anymore

We wish to make a complaint about the Sports Adventure at the Henderson park pavilion. We liked the sports drop-in very much. The price has increased by 25 cents and the fun as decreased. We can't do what we want to do. It is just like going to school. There is no freedom for children in sports and other activities today.

We think that we should be able to do anything we want to do. We also think that there should be at least three instructors in the gym at all times and if we are doing something dangerous, the instructors can tell us not to do it. Everybody in our neighborhood is complaining. — Stacy and Brent Nichols, 3506 Cardiff Place, and 21 other young Oak Bay residents.

Not the First

I congratulate Ms. Audrey Johnson for her article on Smetana's The Bartered Bride, which appeared in the Times on Sept. 16. However, for the sake of historical accuracy and justice due to Czech composers, I have to say that The Bartered Bride certainly was not "the first opera written on a Czech text." The first opera in Czech was written about a century before Smetana's birthday. Furthermore, The Bartered Bride is the second of his eight operas, all of them composed, of course, on the Czech libretti. — Rudolf Komorous, Professor and Chairman, Department of Music, University of Victoria.

Unsophisticated

I reply to your boxed letter by L. R. Waye entitled Excessive, (Times, Sept. 18) in which the author states: "More voters are won over by the reasoned argument than by the shouted insult."

I contend that most voters seldom, if ever, base their vote upon reason. On the contrary, the vote practically always goes to the politician with the biggest wallet, or that one who shouts anything, whether insults or not.

Election of a person for mere ability is a state of sophistication yet unknown by modern man.

I offer as evidence the current scene in this country and its individual provincies, and I rest my case. — D. K. Edwards, 584 Victoria Avenue.

Unimaginative

Your critic Lorraine Locherty says about Heaven Can Wait that "this movie taxes the imagination." Well, I suppose there has to be someone without much imagination on your newspaper's staff. — J. Riddell, 1824 Laval Avenue.

China's Revolution In Food

By JOHN FRASER

Master confectionery chefs at work on cakes and buns

PEKING — A few months ago, the long line-up outside the popular and colorful East Wind Market complex in the centre of Peking was for new books. Recently a line-up appeared again, but this time the patient Chinese were waiting for a strange new kind of food that they have been told will soon become a regular staple in their daily diet.

The food? Ordinary leavened bread at prices ranging from five cents to a quarter, depending on the size of loaf.

Dumplings

Although many Westerners assume all Chinese eat rice every day, millions of Northern Chinese prefer a bread-like steamed dumpling called a man tu to get their fill of starch, so that Western-style leavened bread may not be such a difficult adjustment as some observers feared. However, if the Chinese authorities can pull it off, bread will only be the beginning of a revolutionary plan to change the Chinese eating habits of a millenium.

Instant rice, mass-produced noodles, dehydrated fruit and packaged dinners are all looming on the immediate horizon and the over-all plan — announced a short time ago in the People's Daily — is designed to simplify and speed both the production and the consumption of food. A country hell-bent on modernization can't afford to waste needless time in the kitchen, suggested the newspaper, and for China the time of convenience foods wrapped in plastic is fast approaching.

For anyone who loves fine food, the news sounds ominous indeed. Apart from France, China is the only other country with a significant reputation for great cuisine that is centuries old. For France this fetish for excellence in food seemed hitched to a national sense of gloire. For China, a poor and densely populated country, excellence grew out of negessity.

Nothing remotely edible could be wasted and so those many parts of vegetables and animals affluent Westerners would never dream of touching are served up in China with particular art. The lining of a pig's belly, chicken feet or the lowly sea slug — these things came to be regarded as delicacies. They are prepared and eaten with a particular and fascinating relish that identifies a unique Chinese penchant for transforming small events into uproarious celebrations: even today, to watch a Chinese family enjoying a simple but good meal at a Peking restaurant is, literally, thrilling.

The Chinese also eat out more than any other people. According to the People's Daily, Shanghai alone has 12,000 restaurants, and more than half the population of Canton eats breakfast outside the home. In Peking, there are numerous 24-hour restaurants catering to people on shift-work, and even at the grungiest dive the chances are reasonably good you will find a cook caught up with the three cardinal virtues of Chinese cooking: good color, good fragrance and good flavor.

Eating Out

The authorities, however, are distressed with all this eating out, which requires the efforts of an awesome number of service personnel. The government feels they could be better employed elsewhere. And yet, as the population is being urged to work harder and longer in the "new Long March" toward modernization, eating out becomes more and more appealing (particularly for women who get stuck making the meals at home as well as holding down a full-time job).

Hence the push for convenience foods which will, so the argument goes, make home cooking simple and fast. It will be an uphill battle, though, and this isn't because the Chinese will resist convenience foods but they do like eating out with a passion and a compromise is clearly called for. The ideal sort of compromise is the one represented by the East Wind Market restaurant complex where all that bread is being bought.

I had fallen in love with the market a long time before I had a chance to make an official visit there. It is on busy, bustling Wang Fu Jing Avenue, just up from the Peking Hotel and right across from Number One Department Store. (You may think the Forbidden City and the Great Wall are Peking's finest attractions, but Chinese vistors don't.)

The somewhat down-at-heel complex is essentially a large, one-storey department store with dozens of small shops, restaurants and stalls skirting it which offer everything from traditional Chinese medicine and photo-portrait studios to second-hand books in just about any language (I picked up an old edition there of Milton's great masque, Comus, that once belonged to an institution called The Peking Academy in 1874, for the grand sum of 90 fen or about 50 cents).

Off the main street and leading into the interior of the complex is a marvellous cul-de-sac crowded with small repair-shop kiosks where you can get a new heel on your shoe or your straw hat rejuvenated. It is here you can gain entrance to some of the market's restaurants.

Standing up

If you were just counting chairs at tables, the combined seating capacity at all these resturants is only about 800 at one sitting. But that gives you no conception of what a Peking restaurant is like. Many people eat standing up or leaning against window sills or out on the courtyard in front, crouching on their haunches. The size of the staff — 700 — is the best clue and between the four restaurants it is possible to find something to eat at the East Wind Market between 6 a.m. and 2 a.m. the next day.

The interiors are spartan but clean, although it must be a daily battle to keep them so considering the hordes who visit every day. Peking has a number of very fancy restaurants in glorious and ancient buildings, but these establishments are strictly utilitarian. The prices are very cheap and I am told by Chinese that the food in the three principal restaurants is reasonably good most of the time, although the Szechwan restaurant has been known to skimp on certain ingredients from time to time, which nearly causes a riot.

For a foreigner soaking up the local scene, however, the most fun is to be had in the fast-food cafe. Below, on the ground level, people line up for a fast bowl of something that is a cross between soup and the Chinese equivalent of Irish stew (mutton or pork in a rich but too glutinous gravy poured over a bean curd-like substance). Upstairs is where the action is and also where hundreds of Chinese indulge ther collective sweet tooth.

This part of the cafe is the only place I've discovered so far in Peking where you can get a variety of cakes and sweet buns and order up a good selection of frivolous drinks (iced-coffee, beer, chocolate milk, pineapple pop). Then, you can go over to a window seat and fritter away a morning in reading or blissful ogling. It's a favorite haunt for students, grandmothers and grandchildren, workers on a break, adventurous foreigners and, occasionally, some daring "Shanghai" types who try to do a bit of bartering with foreigners.

Back behind the counter are the equally spartan kitchens, which are also very clean but dungeon-like. The fast-food cafe has three master confectionery and cake cooks (whose titles have been recently restored) who work with numerous assistants and apprentices. They use good quality produce (real cream for icings and fresh dates for some fillings) while taking considerable care with fancy decorations. They work fast and efficiently with primitive equipment and their efforts are obviously appreciated because business has been increasing greatly since most of the population's wages went up last year.

Dreaming

Like skirts and dancing, this popular hangout does not constitute an absolute necessity in life, and that is certainly part of its appeal in Peking. During the Cultural Revolution it was just another food eating depot and now, once again, it is a place to indulge yourself and maybe dream a little.

Too Big A Bite

THE SUN
An Editorial

There's only a morsel of merit in what the president of the College of Dental Surgeons of B.C. says in claiming an 8.9-per-cent increase in fees next year.

The decline in the Canadian dollar has made it more expensive to do businesss, particularly, if like dentists, you buy supplies and equipment from abroad. We would not disagree with Don McFarlane when he says that dental materials went up an average 20 per cent last year and the over-all increase in overhead was 11 per cent.

Things are tough. There's no doubt about that. But then there's a world of difference between somebody barely eking out an existence, as a lot of pensioners and many of the 1 million jobless are doing, and dentists who in 1976, according to Revenue Canada taxation statistics, earned an average of $43,336.

Nor does it help the dentists' case when they claim that after deducting overhead costs their net increase in 1979 will be only six per cent. That's still more than their working patients are being asked to accept as the maximum in the interests of the country because, unlike the dentists, they have to absorb their overheads.

Increases above AIB line

Mr. McFarlane makes the case that the college's economic consultant estimates the cost of living will go up 7.8 per cent next year. The consultant's prediction may well come true — but if it does, it won't be just for the dentists.

Even accepting the fact that dentists last year settled for a four-per-cent increase, it is impossible to overlook the rationale: many had increased their incomes by more than the $2,400 allowed under the federal wage and price guidelines which were then in effect.

From 1971 through 1975, the average net income of dentists went up by 74 per cent — not bad by any standards and better than most of their fellow professionals. In 1976, when they were earning $43,336, the average income of Canadians was $13,319.

These are the yardsticks against which the public will measure the dentists' proposed 1979 fee hikes. Like the doctors, who have been offered four per cent this time, too, and who seem prepared to grin and bear it, the dentists should not bite too greedily into the pie.

The Only Product U.S. Can Sell?

By MURRAY KEMPTON

(From a CBS radio commentary)

Prime Minister Fukuda of Japan visited the White House last spring in an effort to shed the embarrassment of his riches, in a money market where the dollar sinks and the yen stays shamefully afloat.

Fukuda was greeted with a novel suggestion from Russell Long of Louisiana, who as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee is something of an expert at contriving transient solutions to enduring problems. Japan, said Long, should start spending more money on defence. Then it could buy our military products and assist us toward a balance of our trade deficit.

After all, Long pointed out, the United States is spending five per cent of its Gross National Product on defence, and Japan is spending only one per cent. This comparison argues with splendid irony for the advantages of losing a war, especially to a generous and high-minded enemy. A blessing of defeat — disguised as a penalty — is the treaty of surrender that binds you to an eternity of abstaining from the maintenance of armies and the production of weapons. That pledge was extorted from both Germany and Japan, and, ever since they recovered, they have maintained the stablest economies in the industrialized world.

War industries are, by definition, wasteful; and their excessive indifference to economy is a habit that carries over to defence industries. The carelessness of defence spending practices is so old a scandal by now that we are pretty well inured to it. But an even more disabling waste in the long run may well be the distraction of so much of our creative technology into weapons research. For all the complaints about them, our weapons are the only commodity to which American industry seems to devote enough ingenuity to result in a product that the rest of the world is especially anxious to buy.

President Carter can condemn the international arms trade with every piety; he is nonetheless its prisoner. A generation ago we set ourselves up to be the world's protector, now that the burden has finally borne us down, our hope of commercial stability rests upon our position as the world's prime dealer in instruments of death.

The Unmarriage Game

By JOANNA KIDD

He called me on a Wednesday afternoon and I listened. The weekend was, after all, imminent. Especially that night during which John Travolta runs a fever, married people go out for the Sunday paper and bagels, and unmarried people have intimations of mortality (or worse).

Bob is a pleasant man, a man who might help me forget that I have separated from my husband, do not go to singles bars, and know some of the most charming, attractive, intelligent and sensitive women in New York City. I wanted to spend Saturday evening with a man.

After my husband and I separated, I pretty much followed the standard (I am told) routine: hysteria and trauma during the first few weeks followed by a few tentative phone calls to old friends. In An Unmarried Woman, Hollywood's chic Technicolor commentary on pain, Erica reacted truthfully when she uttered a groan of disgust and fear regarding The Dating of Men. It's not a very attractive idea in the wake of a marriage. But I was going to do the right thing.

I met Bob and another couple in a Soho bar. We drank, ate and talked like mad. Movies, books, the effect of television on young minds, the effect of television on older minds, how New York neighborhoods are changing. It's incredible how much serious discussion goes on between unmarried people.

Both men were divorced and had children. The other couple, Richard and Susan, were living together. I made an effort to contribute to the chatter, feeling a lot like a grown woman on a high school date. My mind wandered. I remembered coming to this bar with my husband; I wondered what I was missing on TV, what my women friends were doing.

Dinner over (at last), we repaired to the apartment Richard and Susan were sharing in the name of Unmarried Intimacy. A bottle of wine was opened and almost immediately Richard began rolling joints. The conversation lagged; there didn't seem to be many more topics we could explore.

Finally, the conversation turned, in desperation, to what should now be classified standard superficial discussion on Men and Women and How They Relate to Each Other. This standby never fails to come up wherever men and women congregate. It's amazing how the radical ramblings of yesterday have become today's social chitter-chatter. Now men and women who hardly know each other bandy such words as "passive-aggressive," "anger," "consciousness," "roles," "Freud" — and still don't now each other when they're finished talking.

Bob had this to say: "Every couple I know is in marriage counselling. Even their kids go to shrinks. All I know is I couldn't afford all the therapy it takes to stay married." The cigarette was passed again and by then all eight eyelids were beginning to droop.

Then it became too quiet and I could feel a loneliness creeping into the room as pervasive as a heavy gas. We were there together, four around a table, two men and two women, but there was no connection. The phone rang and Richard took the call in the bedroom, closing the door, not to emerge for half an hour.

Susan, looking sad, stared into space; she told me that she had lived with another man once, in that same apartment. "Passivity can be very manipulative," she murmured. I knew, and Susan knew, that Richard would never marry her, although she longed for that legitimacy.

The smoke had effectively separated all of us from one another. Richard returned from his call, his eyes practically closed. He then began leering in my direction.

All I wanted to do was make a fast exit. The Sunday paper and a bagel-to-go seemed extraordinarily appealing. I said my goodnights and walked the dark streets back to my neighborhood.

I'll never forget how lost those souls seemed. How lost I felt. These are real unmarried people.

Marriages don't seem to work any more, but there's a new lost generation that grows bigger every day. Because the truth is that unmarriage doesn't work either.

Join the poisoning prevention people

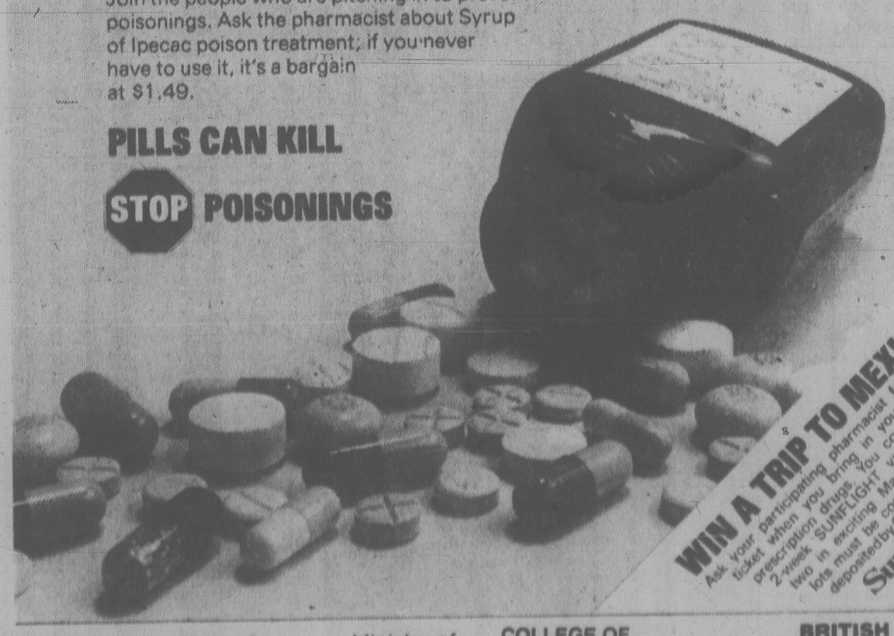

Each year in B.C. about 10,000 people are victims of poisoning, a third of them children under 4 years of age. A major cause is ingestion of unused prescription drugs, and we need your help to stop these tragic accidents.

Before October 24th bring your unused prescription drugs to any of the more than 400 participating pharmacies where they'll be destroyed.

Join the people who are pitching in to prevent poisonings. Ask the pharmacist about Syrup of Ipecac poison treatment; if you never have to use it, it's a bargain at $1.49.

FIRST CITY TRUST.
THEN THE OTHERS.

We were born in the rugged oil country of Edmonton—but we weren't a first. We helped build thousands of dreams throughout Canada—but we weren't a first. We successfully pursued ever new channels of financial service—but we still weren't a first. ☐ It wasn't until now, in fact, that the company you've known as City Savings & Trust became... First City Trust. Why the change? Because the accelerating growth of this all-Canadian financial service company now demands a new organizational focus—to serve customers even more effectively. ☐ The result is a Canadian first: First City Trust. ☐ Whatever your financial needs, now you know who to call First.

PENTHOUSE REFUSED LIQUOR LICENCE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial Liquor Distribution Branch has refused to issue a liquor licence to the Penthouse Cabaret because of a moratorium on cabaret licences in the city, the club's owner said Tuesday.

Joe Philliponi told a news conference his lawyers had received a letter from J. E. Warren, the director of adminstration for the liquor branch, informing him that the club could be considered for a restaurant licence instead.

The restaurant licence would require that 40 per cent of the club's sales are in food.

The club was closed in 1976 after a morals charge was laid against the owners. They were convicted on the morals charge, but the conviction was later overturned in appeal court, and the city recently gave the club a new business licence.

VSE Brief on Blunders Buried by SC: Levi

NDP MLA Norman Levi accused the Socred government Tuesday of hiding a report on the Vancouver Stock Exchange because it shows the Social Credit party has made a mess of the economy.

Levi, the member for Vancouver-Burrard, said the report shows that the government's economic mismanagement is frightening investors away.

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair said Levi's statements are without foundation.

He said Levi has taken a shot in the dark — and missed

"It's the kind of criticism I would expect from a member of the NDP looking for something to make headlines out of and yet can't find anything," said Mair. "The economy is indeed recovering well and showing every sign of once again leading the country."

Premier Bill Bennett recently said said he may need a new mandate because investors are leery of investing in B.C. because they fear the return to power of the NDP.

INDIANS, COWBOYS SAME TO STRIKERS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Owners of the strike-bound Muckamuck restaurant have changed the menu from local native Indian food to cowboy fare and reopened under a new name, Chilcotin Bar Seven.

But the Service, Office and Retail Workers Union of Canada, on strike since June 1, is continuing to picket, a spokesman said Tuesday.

She accused the owners of hiring mostly non-native workers, clad in cowboy shirts and boots, and hanging cow hides on the walls "in an attempt to dispell the image of the original Muckamuck and along with the strike of the employees."

The restaurant opened last week with a private party that also attracted 70 pickets. SORWUC vowed to picket from 7 a.m. to midnight each day in an attempt to stop deliveries, customers and new employees from going in.

Grace Gleeful At Lottery 'Win'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy says a federal government decision to drop plans for a $1 computerized lottery is a big victory for the provinces.

The decision by Ottawa was part of an agreement that ends a lengthy fight with the provinces over control of lotteries

The agreement calls for the provinces to have free rein with lotteries under $9, with the federal government retaining control of lotteries over $10. There will be no government lottery competition between $9 and $10.

"We're awfully pleased about the whole agreement," Mrs. McCarthy said Monday. "It eliminates the Loto Canada threat in the $5 and $1 games."

She also welcomed the provision to keep promotional costs under four per cent of gross revenues and to limit the prize structure to 50 per cent of gross.

"This sets a limit on advertising," she said. "Loto Canada was spending far more than the provinces were."

At the Bank of British Columbia, we can guarantee a high return on one to five year investments of $1,000 or more, with Inflation Fighter Certificates.

And we can help you fight inflation.

Because when the cost of living goes up, our unique inflation fighter adjustment automatically adds to your interest.

The rate of interest at the time of your investment is guaranteed for the full term of your certificate. Interest is paid semi-annually on June 30th and December 31st. Or, if you prefer, your interest may be deferred until your certificate matures.

And on deposits of $5,000 or more, you can choose to receive your interest monthly.

Then, on your certificate's anniversary, the interest you received in the preceding year will be increased by the percentage increase in the Consumer Price Index.

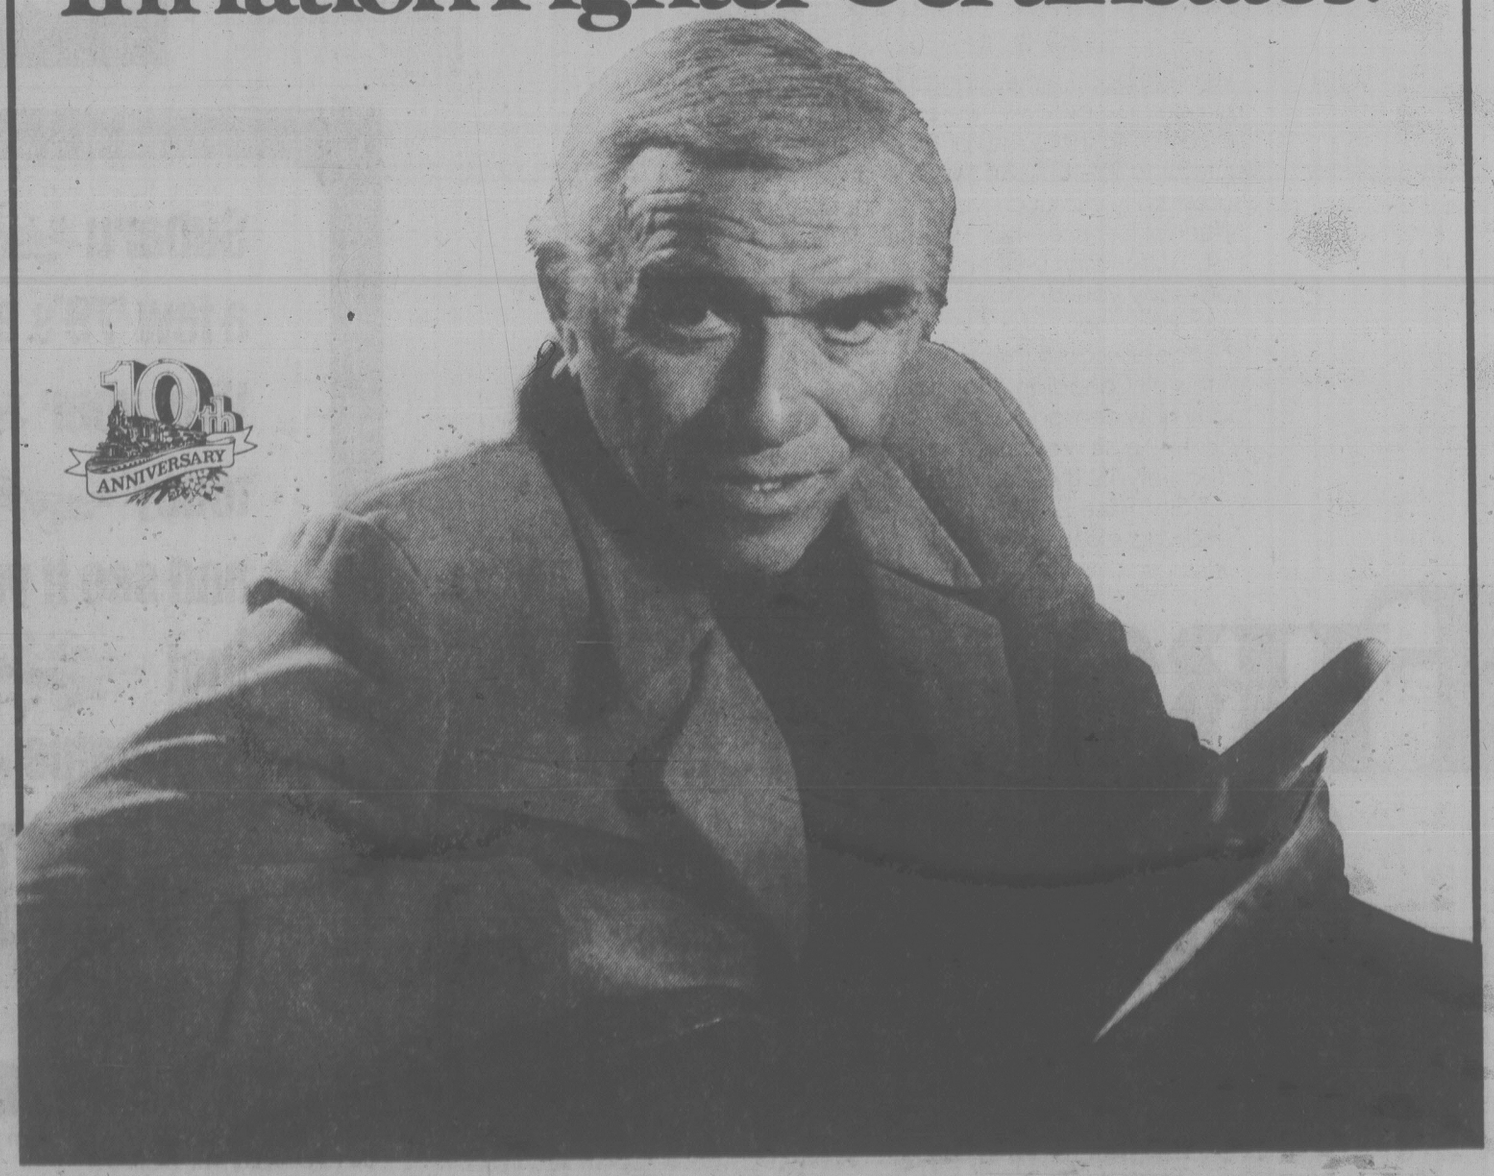

So when inflation hits, don't roll with the punch.

Psychiatrists Argue Killer's Sanity

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Two psychiatrists testifying before a British Columbia Supreme Court jury disagreed Tuesday on the sanity of accused murderer Russel Raymond Rafuse.

Rafuse, 21, of nearby Burnaby, is charged with second degree murder in the Sept. 25, 1976 stabbing death of Virginia Alice Sjoberg in that Vancouver suburb.

Sjoberg, 24, the girlfriend of Rafuse's older brother, was stabbed 19 times, slashed an equal number of times, and found dead in her apartment bedroom with a foot-long bread knife sticking out of her right eye.

A police officer has testified that Rafuse confessed to stabbing her to death, but the accused pleaded not guilty to the murder charge.

University of British Columbia psychiatrist Dr. James Tyhurst told the jury that Rafuse is insane, suffering from "episodic dyscontrol," a disease similar to epilepsy.

While he was stabbing Sjoberg, Tyhurst said, Rafuse's rational thought processes "short-circuited" and he "did not have the capacity to form the intent to murder.

"He simply didn't know what was happening," Tyhurst said.

Psychiatrist Dr. William Bridge said Rafuse is sane, although, "It would never surprise me for Mr. Rafuse to act instantaneously and violently with the slightest provocation when he was drinking."

Rafuse drank heavily the night of the stabbing and said that Sjoberg chided him for his lack of sexual performance, and slapped him.

Bridge said that during psychiatric examinations he felt Rafuse was trying to mislead him and concluded that the defence under Section 16 of the Criminal Code was not applicable.

Section 16 says a person can't be convicted of an offence if he was insane while committing the act.

Dr. Bridge said Rafuse satisfies only one of four prerequisites for a diagnosis of episodic dyscontrol. He has a history of violent assaults but he does not have a history of sexual assaults, driving accidents, or pathological intoxication, where small amounts of alcohol produce insanity.

He said that while Rafuse was very drunk and very angry, he was "in good contact and aware of his surroundings."

The other psychiatrists are scheduled to give evidence in the trial which is continuing.

Job-Lack Biting Deeper: Sanford

NDP labor critic Karen Sanford called on the Socred government Tuesday to take concrete legislative action this fall to deal with the high unemployment rate in B.C.

The Comox MLA said in a press release that Statistics Canada figures show there were 2,000 more B.C. residents unemployed than a year ago for a current total of 90,000.

"Unemployment figures in such high ranges are always distressing, but a new structural phase in the unemployment disease seems to be emerging which demands immediate and serious attention," Mrs. Sanford said.

"It has to be of extreme concern that unemployment is begining to bite deeper again into the ranks of the bulk of the labor force, particularly the middle-aged and older workers."

The labor ministry was more optimistic, saying in a press release the rate of unemployment in B.C. declined in September to 7.3 per cent of the work force compared with 7.9 per cent in August.

The ministry said this compares with a national rate of 7.7 per cent, unchanged from the August national rate.

It said a major factor in the drop in unemployment was students leaving summer jobs to return to school.

OVER THE CREEK snakes an eastbound freight, first to use the new bridge over Mountain Creek near Roger's Pass. Costing $3 million, the 600-by-136-foot bridge is the third at that site since the transcontinental line was completed in 1886. Former bridge, right, to be dismantled.

Legal Merger Favored

Attorney-General Garde Gardom said Tuesday he favors the merger of the Legal Aid Society of B.C. and the provincial government's Legal Services Commission.

The merger was recommended in a report by the Legal Aid Society which is operated by the Law Society of B.C.

The report said the primary aim of the merger, formulated and endorsed by the society's board of directors, would be to ensure that a minimum level of legal aid is guaranteed by statute.

Gardom said he favors the merger proposal because it would avoid duplication of service and give the public better value for its money.

At present, the society delivers the existing service with government funding.

The report recommended that the two bodies be merged into the Legal Service Corp.

The attorney-general also said he is interested in another recommendation by the society which would provide a statutory guarantee of legal aid on a province-wide basis.

He said such a guarantee already exists in certain areas of criminal law, but he is doubtful it could be applied across the board.

CUTS DELAY RATES

Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm said Tuesday the federal treasury board is balking at his proposals to increase B.C. welfare rates because of uncertainty caused by recently announced federal spending cuts.

Vander Zalm said he had expected to announce the new welfare rates soon but this was delayed because of the federal cuts, particularly in unemployment insurance which he said will cost the province about $35 million.

The proposed welfare rates take into account the devalued dollar, Vander Zalm added.

Record Returns On Fruit

PENTICTON (CP) — British Columbia Tree Fruits Ltd. announced Tuesday that fruit farmers received just over 50 per cent of the $68 million in sales it made during 1977-78, compared with 39 per cent in the previous year.

While crop output fell below normal, returns to growers from fresh and processed fruit surpassed all previous records, president Arnold Pederson said in the company's annual report.

The report said Sun Rype Products Ltd. returned $6.69 million from its total sales of $28.4 million.

Exports to Pacific Rim countries dropped partly because of the reduced crop and competition from other countries embarking on increased fruit marketing, Pederson said.

He said sales to the United States hit the $10 million mark, a record for the company.

Mini Subs Sink in Red

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — International Hydrodynamics Ltd. (Hyco) of North Vancouver, a manufacturer of mini-submarines, has been placed in receivership, it was announced Tuesday.

Harold Sigurdson of Dunwoody and Co. was appointed receiver for Hyco's principal secured creditor, the Royal Bank of Canada, following the recent failure of stockholders to agree on a refinancing plan for the troubled company. Cliff Sawyer will remain as president.

Shareholders were told at an extraordinary meeting Sept. 8 that the company owes $2.1 million. A company proposal to deal with a $850,000 loan received in 1974 was defeated at another meeting Sept. 28.

Hyco now employs about 65 people, 40 of them at its plant here.

In a letter to shareholders Tuesday, Sawyer says preoccupation with the debt diverts attention from more serious problems. He blames the current crisis on a loss of $1.1 million on sales of only $2.2 million, the failure to maintain its fleet and support equipment in working order and losses incurred in diversification efforts.

Interest Up

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Dominion Bank has announced an immediate increase in interest rates on its term deposit instruments. New rates for deposit receipts of $5,000 to $99,999 are 8¼ per cent for 60 to 90 days, 8¾ per cent for 90 to 179 days and nine per cent for 180 to 365 days.

$175,000 SAYS B.C. ECONOMY HEALTHY

The economic development ministry is spending $175,000 on an eight-week series of television commercials offering reassurance that the B.C. economy is healthy, a ministry spokesman said Tuesday.

The 60-second TV spots were prepared to parallel and complement B.C. Economic Development magazine, the spokesman said.

"They show B.C. scenes and are aimed at telling viewers about economic development in B.C. and creating a positive attitude about it," he said.

The magazine was launched last month for $70,000 as a quarterly to carry the same message in print.

The spots, expected to appear on local stations and those reaching northeastern B.C., were to begin this week.

They have been held up for another week or 10 days so changes could be made because it was thought they might appear too political and they were not intended to be, said the spokesman.

The package is being put together by the Vancouver advertising agency of Foster, Young, Ross, Anthony and Associates Ltd., the same firm that put together the B.C. Economic Development magazine.

Production work is costing $45,000 and television time another $130,000.

Super-Salmon Spawning Year Ahead of Natural Kin

NANAIMO (CP) — A superior breed of salmon being raised at the federal Pacific Biological Station now is returning to spawn a year earlier than natural stocks, says station spokesman Dr. Roland Brett.

He said about 300 of the fish have been caught by anglers and commercial fishermen and another 15 have shown up at the station's discharge water pipe in this Vancouver Island city.

"We still have to prove that we are doing something better than the commercial hatcheries but believe we can help sports fishermen in waters around Vancouver Island," he said.

By rearing the chinook and coho fry in salt water as opposed to fresh water streams which are used by natural fish, these young fish weigh a quarter pound at the end of the first year and are 20 times as large as their wild counterparts, he said.

Brett said the survival of the pen-raised fish appears to be excellent.

"Biologically we have long known that the larger and healthier juvenile salmon are when they go to sea, the greater their chances of escaping predators and other hazards.

"These well-fed salmon have an added advantage. Prior to being transferred to the sea, all were vaccinated against virulent, bacterial diseases. It marks the first time fish have been vaccinated against a number of salt water diseases."

Brett said this system of raising fish for a sport fishery has proved successful in Washington State and would be successful here if the sport fishery needed boosting.

A new wrinkle was added to the program this year when the fish were raised in conditions that would have them respond to a special odor. When they return to the station in 1980 they will be lured to floating traps by this odor making their capture much simpler.

"We still have to learn what happens when stocks are manipulated like this," Brett said.

Commenting on survival, he said young fish show some trouble in feeding naturally when they are released.

"They are well-fed to begin with and find it hard to scratch out a living. They also have a problem in recognizing natural food when they have been raised on pellets."

Brett said this new technique of fish development, started here in 1976, arose out of a mistake made by fish hatcheries in Puget Sound in releasing salmon accidentally.

OKANAGAN FISH RIG SET

The provincial government will set up a portable fish-rearing facility this fall adjacent to Penticton Creek in the Okanagan.

Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf said Tuesday previous construction of a channel for flood control had eliminated a large, natural spawning ground on the creek, resulting in a serious depletion of game fish in the south end of Okanagan Lake.

"This project will help replenish stocks of kokanee and rainbow trout and should add a lot to the recreation value of the lake," Bawlf said in a news release.

NEW METHOD ENDS SMOKING FOR LIFE

RESEARCHED AT U.B.C.

Recently published results of research at U.B.C. report on a new, simple, pleasant way to end smoking permanently. Proven effective for even heavy smokers, smoking can be ended easily in just 24 hours without drugs, discomfort or weight gain. The new method now available in Victoria is called R.E.S.T. (Reduced Environmental Stimulation Technique). Private, personalized and professionally supervised, it can be used in your own home. 75% to 95% of the smokers who tried R.E.S.T. quit successfully. If you want to stop smoking, or if your doctor has told you to stop, phone now for free information or an appointment. Results are guaranteed.

Smokers who want to stop smoking for life can — Phone toll free, through Operator, Zenith 2280, Personal Improvement Centre, Monday to Friday, 8:30 to 5:00. P.I.C. 1177 W. Hastings.

NEW QUOTA NOT YET IN EFFECT

A U.S. tax change allowing American citizens vacationing in Canada to take home $300 worth of duty-free goods is not in effect, a U.S. customs spokesman says.

People, under the impression the quota has been increased from $100 to $300, load up with merchandise and are shocked when they turn up at customs and find it isn't true, he said.

The legislation has been signed by President Carter but still needs congressional approval.

Hikers Find Clues

COURTENAY (CP) — A group of hikers in Strathcona Provincial Park have found a shoulder pack, rubber raft, cooking utensils and some personal items belonging to a man who vanished in the area in July, 1977.

The hikers found the items in an area west of where George Bressler of Witchita, Kansas, was reported to have been, according to an RCMP spokesman here.

Some fishing equipment and a hat were found in a week-long search in August last year, but the search was later called off when no other evidence was found.

Hikers went back into the area Tuesday.

Barnes Named As Director Of Symphony

NDP MLA Emery Barnes has been elected to the board of the Victoria Symphony Society.

Barnes, the member for Vancouver-Centre, will serve a one-year term.

Also elected to one year-terms were incumbent Ted Balderson of the Empress Hotel and Marion Hanson.

Elected to the six three-year terms were Aurelle Biggs; Gretchen Brewin, federal NDP candidate for Victoria; Ald. Ron McKenzie; Gene Miller, publisher; J. J. Richards, radio news director, and Dorothy Frost, stockbroker.

The financial statement revealed a deficit of $106,412 as of May 31, a sum which treasurer Michael Field described as not insurmountable nor entirely unique among societies even smaller than the Victoria Symphony.

A statement of revenue and expenditure indicates that an increase of $151,000 for talent and production expenses (including an increase of $96,374 in musicians' salaries over 1977) contributed to the deficit.

Guest artists and conductors, theatre and rehearsal hall rental, publicity and advertising expenses were all substantially over 1977 figures, each to the tune of approximately $10,000.

Symphony manager Jean Hunter, president Peter Lovric and other executive members expressed optimism, however, particularly in the belief that a new active board would waste no time in dedicating its energies to fund-raising.

Hangout Hangups Distressing Esquimalt

Is this a real live juvenile problem or is all the noise, bluster and damage a normal part of the daily urban scene? The chief is aware but insists it hasn't become 'a pressing problem'

By AB KENT
Times Staff

EVERY Friday night they gather near Esquimalt sports or recreation centre for some horseplay, to get a little high, or just to make noise and idle the evening away.

The meeting place is traditional among a dozen or so youngsters in their mid-teens, going back five years or more — off the street but not far from the traffic, the coffee shops and rec centre — a hangout to meet their peers any night of the week but especially weekends.

The neighbors resign themselves to the rowdyism, bottle-throwing, shouting and vandalism that occurs after dark beyond the glare of street lighting.

But the further away from the rear parking lot, the less the situation is acknowledged by others who come into the picture.

Some say there is no real juvenile problem, that these youngsters for all their noise, bluster and petty damage, are just part of the day-to-day urban scene and quite distinct from a smaller group of hard-core juveniles who are involved in criminal activities in Esquimalt.

Chief Arthur Burton said extra patrols of the area adjoining the arena and Bullen Park will be ordered as a result of council's rejection of a rec centre request for $18,000 worth of lighting.

Aldermen will probably be asked again next year to illuminate the shadowy parts of the block as a deterrent to mischief.

There have been cyclic outbreaks of vandalism resulting in damage to parked cars, Burton said, but "I don't think it's reached the proportions of a pressing problem."

Burton also said there will be tighter enforcement of anti-noise controls, directed towards house parties, amplified music and loud vehicles.

Lately, he said, police had been bothered with complaints arising from youth parties and party-crashing gangs, sometimes involving 100 or more persons, posing a threat to the public peace.

In Burton's view the youth problem is a continuing thing resulting from urban containment: "Mischief, yes . . . youths with time on their hands."

His policemen make an effort to be involved with community work such as sports, but recreation programs can go only so far. There should be something for every personality at the recreation centre, or somewhere in the community recreation program, Burton believes.

He thinks the recent opening of an off-street skateboard course at Anderson Park does much to supply an interest for youngsters provided they are cautious and well-padded.

"I would like to see them put a roof over it with dressing rooms."

Harold Moist, recreation centre manager, recalled one bad night last winter when youths in the parking lot began jumping up and down on cars, adding a new wrinkle to vandalism of rear-view mirrors and radio aerials.

Vehicle damage is a fact of life on parking lots, but at Esquimalt it seems no worse than elsewhere, Moist said.

To the suggestion that women are afraid of going to their cars after late-evening curling or other activities at the centre, Moist said it is "true some women are reluctant to go out there," and that it could be terrifying to some.

Youths do make coarse remarks and rude suggestions to passing women, he agreed, but he said he knows of no molesting.

"I think the law should be taking stronger measures with them. The police can run them in, but then what?"

A social worker familiar with the area said the youngsters — including a couple of girls — present a scruffy, sloppy appearance, they do drink and smoke pot, and there are some "bad ones" among them. They tend to make adults wary of them.

But they are not as formidable as they appear, the social worker said. Some have no where else to go, they want to gather with their friends and unless they are taking part in the organized recreation program they are not welcome in the arena, curling rink or swimming pool.

People who are upset by these youngsters are overreacting, she said.

"The police clear them out once in a while, but it's tame considering the numbers of kids in Esquimalt." She said at one time up to 30 boys and girls could be found loitering around the facility.

"They need to be with their friends who like to hang around out there. There's always going to be a lot of kids hanging around because it's traditional for the older ones."

Her work in the community takes her to the park and the places where the youngsters gather.

"I'm usually there Friday night and twice a week besides."

But since she started her rounds in Esquimalt about a year ago, she has found this group of children far less a problem than she was led to believe, having been told of roisterous dope and drinking parties, littering the ground with debris and bottles.

"What it boiled down to was six or a dozen cigarette butts, chip packages and an occasional beer bottle.

"It's a matter of attitudes."

ONE of the neighbors whose property adjoins the arena parking lot said a favorite retreat for youngsters is a corner where park benches or bleachers are stored. They go in behind to drink, "20 feet from my doorstep. There's a big drunk there every Friday night. There was a good one there the other night — quite a racket," the woman said.

Saturday mornings she goes into her back yard to gather the empty bottles.

But she has given up complaining to the municipality. She now confronts any youngsters who trespass or are abusive and has gained a measure of respect.

It was not just youngsters who caused annoyance, however. She blamed the municipality in the past for having dog shows and beer gardens on her property line. These have since ceased, she said.

"I've got to the stage now that if they don't bother me, I don't bother them."

Incorporation Vote Set For Nov. 18

View Royal, Colwood, Langford and Metchosin residents will vote on incorporation Nov. 18, Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis said Tuesday.

The communities will decide whether to take on municipal status or remain under Capital Regional District jurisdiction.

Local committees have been studying the impact of incorporation for a year and the people have had enough time to study the published documents, Curtis said in a press release.

"The benefits and costs of municipal status have been amply documented. It is now time to seek the views of the people living in the affected communities. Although many opinions have been expressed at public meetings, only a formal democratic vote can now clarify the issue."

The announcement was met with mixed feelings by regional board directors.

Al Beasley of View Royal said the incorporation vote comes at a bad time because residents will vote on a sewer referendum the same day. Nov. 18 is municipal election day.

Beasley said the sewer vote is more important to the community than incorporation which he said will probably be defeated anyway.

A meeting on incorporation will be held Monday at 8 p.m. at All Saints Church hall in View Royal.

At a sewer referendum meeting Thursday night at View Royal fire hall fire trustees will talk about the possibility of asking for a change in the sewer referendum date to avoid two ballots on the same day.

Langford director Ed Lubick said today he is pleased the incorporation vote has been called.

"It's time we settled the issue once and for all."

The voters are well prepared and have made up their minds, said Lubick.

Lubick said he has remained neutral on the subject but said the issue should be dropped if the referendum is defeated.

Colwood director Howard Drummond and Metchosin director Mac Tipton said they are pleased the incorporation vote is finally taking place to justify all the investigative work done by committees.

An incorporation meeting for the Colwood-Langford area will be held tonight at Belmont Secondary School on Jacklin Road.

Metchosin residents will get a chance to discuss the incorporation issue Monday at 8 p.m. during a meeting at Metchosin community hall.

DRIVER KILLED IN CRASH

A Langford man was killed and two Duncan women seriously injured Tuesday when two cars collided on the Trans-Canada Highway near the Malahat summit.

Shawnigan Lake RCMP said Larry Andre, 33, of 2560 Wentwich, died when the northbound car he was driving was in collision with another vehicle in the southbound lane. Andre was alone.

Critically injured in Victoria General Hospital are Emily Joe, 26 and Kathy Roland, 17, both of Boys Road in Duncan. They are believed to be sisters.

Joe is suffering from leg injuries while Roland has head and stomach injuries.

Police are still investigating the crash which occurred at about 10 a.m. on a stretch of road half a kilometre south of the Gulf Islands Viewpoint.

Tennis Complex Open Soon

Saanich's new indoor tennis complex near the Cedar Hill Community Centre should be open for business in early November, parks and recreation director Bill Young said today.

Young said the special porous concrete surface is now being poured and the bubble itself will soon be erected, with the likely opening date being between Nov. 1 and 15.

At a parks committee meeting Tuesday night aldermen recommended approval of a mini-budget for the centre, covering Oct. 15 to Dec. 31 this year.

Projected revenues are $28,000 and expenditures $13,600.

In other business, the committee recommended that Saanich again join other Greater Victoria municipalities in submitting a bid to host the 1980 Summer Games.

Short-Changing For Sub-Trades

Several sub-contractors who worked on the new Ocean Sciences building at Patricia Bay are going to get short-changed because the general contractor — Wessex Construction Co. Ltd. — has filed for bankruptcy.

A letter to one of the sub-trades — GWG Rentals Ltd. — from federal Public Works Minister Judd Buchanan says a preliminary analysis indicates the sub-contractors may get 85 cents for every dollar owed them by Wessex.

The government plans to pay the money to the contractors, either directly or indirectly through Wessex trustee Peter Lloyd, a Victoria chartered accountant, from money it withheld from Wessex.

Buchanan adds in the letter that it will likely take some time before a check can be made of the money due to each creditor.

GWG Rentals is owed $361 and in July Esquimalt-Saanich Tory MP Donald Munro went to bat for the company, criticizing the federal public works department for not paying the local contractors on time.

Ed Gait, owner of GWG Rentals, had earlier blamed the federal government for not taking some of the responsibility in seeing that sub-trades get their money in the event the general contractor doesn't pay.

3,600 Sign for Firemen

Oak Bay firefighters have gathered 3,600 signatures opposing a reduction of the force to 27 from 31 and still have half the municipality to cover, council was told Tuesday night.

Council has also received half a dozen letters opposing the cut, which will result in three men being laid off and one vacant position not being filled, together with 508 form letters of opposition.

Terry Erskine, president of the B.C. Professional Firefighters Association, speaking on behalf of the Oak Bay firefighters, told council he had not had time to analyse the report of G.H. Newhouse and Associates, which recommended the cuts and which Mayor Brian Smith released publicly earlier in the day.

He said he hopes to have a reply ready in a week to 10 days.

Erskine did say Oak Bay has a very low fire loss and one reason is the good fire prevention program and the size of the force.

He asked why the administration costs of the fire department are $172,400 when administration costs for the police department are $65,809.

(Municipal sources said the reason is that four assistant fire chiefs are included in the administration costs. But these men, it was said, are in the nature of working firemen who actually do firefighting and are not desk-bound firemen.)

Erskine also sought the cost to Oak Bay of having Newhouse make the report and whether other groups such as the Life Underwriters Association and the provincial fire marshal's office were considered.

Why Is All Blame on 14-Year-Old?

max low

Runaway girls have been haunting my dreams lately.

Since writing that column about a lost daughter and a mother critical of the provincial human resources ministry a week ago, I've thought a lot about the subject. And I've had half a dozen phone calls to prod those thoughts.

Today, I received a letter which I'm going to share with you.

"I found some inconsistencies in it," the letter writer said, referring to the story. "The mother cannot afford to have her girl sent to a group home, yet she expects that there should be a place to send teen-agers. Should this then be without cost to her?

"In other words, do I and you and the next person have to share in the cost for problem children?

"It is my sincere belief that the parents will have to bear the burdens, including the financial aspect of these, of the children they create, as well as carry the responsibilities for their behavior, which mostly reflects the upbringing and the relationships thus created over the lifespan of the child.

"As you well know, a problem as described by you just does not happen overnight."

In her letter, the woman went on to say my article was one-sided.

"All the blame put on a 14-year-old, no one else at fault," she pointed out. "Have you ever visited the Juvenile Detention Home or spoken to a probation officer?"

No, I've not been to the JDH, though I did spend a couple of days once interviewing staff and juvenile inmates at the former Brannan Lake detention centre. And I've spoken to my share of probation officers and social workers.

I should point out that my column did not intend to lay the blame on anyone. It was merely a mother's own story of what had happened in her family, a warning of what could happen in anyone's family, and that mother's belief of what was needed. It was meant to be one-sided.

The mother cannot afford to have her girl sent to a group home, yet she expects that there should be a place to send teen-agers. Should this then be without cost to her? In other words, do I and you and the next person have to share in the cost for problem children?' asks a reader

But at no point did I say I supported the view that a problem child should be taken from the family setup and institutionalized. Anyway, my letter-writing friend felt most mothers would not agree with the girls' parents.

"I have a slight notion," she wrote, "the story will not find much sympathy, even if officials may not have jumped at the family's wish."

There was a measure of sympathy, though, or agreement perhaps, as the day after the column appeared I received five phone calls. None were critical. All told similar sad stories.

"Our cases are so unbelievably similar," one mother told me. "We have four children and the other three are at home. Our second-oldest daughter runs away. She comes and goes. She's away two or three weeks and then comes back. No money. No change of clothing.

"She, too, got mixed up with a bad crowd and, like this other mother, we have been to see the police and human resources and have had counselling. We even have a Cadillac in the driveway!

"The mother in your story is right," my caller said. "There is nothing we can do. We can only sit and hope and pray that they will wake up.

"Just maybe, a band of parents could bring it out in the open," she suggested. "It shows your love for them if you're willing to take a stand."

As well as the mothers with their similar stories, a woman phoned and thanked me for "telling it like it is."

"God bless you," she said. But the tears stopped her from saying any more and she hung up.

The woman who wrote to me finished her letter by giving her name, address and two phone numbers.

"I have no impressive house, not even a poor one; not a Cadillac in the driveway, nor a bike," she said.

"But please give this mother a message from me: I'd love to take care of her daughter — whether she'll pay for it or not."

FORMER NATIONAL CAPTAIN UVIC COACH

Torn Ligaments, Key Loss Helped Jenny Change Mind

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

The University of Victoria has been trying for several years — with little success — to lure Jenny John to the Saanich campus to coach women's field hockey.

UVic finally succeeded this fall, but it took ripped leg ligaments and a key loss last year by the UVic girls to get Jenny to take the job.

There simply weren't enough hours in the day for her to assume the added duties.

Between 1972 and 1976, for example, Jenny played and served as captain for the national team, helping it develop into something of a world power. (Even the most casual sports page reader must have noticed last week that the Canadian girls finished fifth in the European Cup championships in Spain.)

Two years ago Jenny's international playing career came to an abrupt end because of those torn ligaments. Still, she had plenty to occupy her.

For the past four years she has been employed at Spectrum school as an athletic co-ordinator. Despite her new job at UVic, Jenny is continuing in that post. She will return to Spectrum next fall following a five-month leave of absence starting Feb. 1 to serve as technical co-ordinator for the B.C. Women's Field Hockey Federation, of which she is president.

First, however, there are the Canada West University women's championships at Saskatoon Oct. 20-22 and, hopefully, the national finals Nov. 2-5 in Toronto. And that means getting past archrival UBC.

Jenny attributes the new emphasis on field hockey at UVic to the school's past success. UVic inevitably ends up fighting UBC for the Canada West championship and two years ago won the right to represent the conference in the national college finals in Halifax.

JENNY JOHN
. . . faces busy schedule

"They really should have gone (to the nationals) last year, too," Jenny added, but a key loss to UBC cost them.

"I really wanted to come and see if we could do it this year," she explained. "I wanted to give the players the benefit of my experience."

She has stressed a running game to a team that includes nine returnees, few of them first-stringers, however. Accordingly, the squad got off to a slow start by finishing fourth in its first tournament at Calgary Sept. 23 and 24.

But there was sudden improvement the following weekend when UVic downed the University of Manitoba 4-0, then won four games in a tournament in Edmonton. The team's only loss was a 1-0 squeaker to — you guessed it — UBC.

Even so, Jenny was pleased by the team's progress.

This is an exciting year for field hockey in B.C. because Vancouver will host the 1979 world championships.

"The world championships take place every four years, the year before the Olympics," Jenny explained. "At the last championships in Edinburgh in 1975, England was first, Wales second and New Zealand third. Canada placed 15th.

"I was team captain that year. Although we came 15th, we were really ranked 12th and right now we're ranked eighth or ninth. That's where we want to finish in Vancouver."

Canada has a long-range goal as well. Women's field hockey has been accepted as an Olympic sport for the first time at Moscow in 1980. Russia automatically gets a berth, leaving five other spots open.

"It's doubtful if Canada will make it," Jenny conceded, "so our aim is 1984 at Los Angeles. We're moving up in world rankings about three places every year.

"We owe our improvement mainly to Sport Canada in Ottawa and their Game Plan. Under the Game Plan, field hockey is allowed so many carded athletes. These athletes are given financial assistance and have the opportunity to come together for training."

Training sessions have been confined mainly to a few days before international matches but next year the team will come together for several months. The players gather in Vancouver in January and will remain there until the world tournament in August.

The Davey Lopes Show A Winner for Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Davey Lopes, the team captain, showed the way with a pair of home runs and some rousing exuberance around the bases as Los Angeles Dodgers began their emotional campaign to capture the 1978 World Series title.

Supplying the power from his leadoff position Tuesday night, Lopes keyed a pair of three-run innings with a two-run homer and a three-run blast, leading the National League champs to an 11-5 opening-game victory over the defending world champion New York Yankees.

As he rounded first base in the second inning, Lopes raised his right fist toward the sky. When he passed the bag following homer No.2 in the fourth inning, he thrust both arms in the air.

"Yeah, I was thinking of Jim," said Lopes, the fiery Dodger second baseman, referring to longtime Dodger coach Jim Gilliam, who died Sunday night after three weeks in a coma following a stroke. "He meant so much to me.

"I know Gilliam is up there watching us. The Yankees don't have to beat just 25 of us. With Gilliam, they have to beat 50 of us.

Gilliam was to be buried today and Lopes, one of his favorite pupils, was expected to be one of the pallbearers.

Then Lopes and his team-mates will try to back the Yankees to the wall when Dodger ace right-hander Burt Hooton hooks up with right-hander Catfish Hunter in Game 2 tonight.

Hooton, who was 1-1 against the Yanks in last year's series, expressed little outward excitement about his starting assignment.

"I'm sure my heart will be beating a little bit tomorrow," said the dour Hooton, who is sarcastically nicknamed Happy by his manager, Tom Lasorda. "A pitcher dreams about being in the World Series all his life and I've been in two back to back. A whole bunch of guys haven't played in one."

Hooton's dispassionate countenance was a vivid contrast to the fire of Lopes.

"All I can say is that he (Lopes) said he was as high as the sky, and now I believe him," said Hunter.

Reggie Jackson, the Yanks' inspirational leader this October and last, supplied three hits, including a record-breaking, 430-foot homer, but it wasn't enough against left-hander Tommy John's baffling sinker ball.

Jackson, who homered on his last three pitches in the Yanks' triumphant Game 6 last year, singled his first time up Tuesday night, then grounded out. In his third at-bat, he creamed John's fastball, giving him six homers in his last four Series games. Yankee immortal Lou Gehrig held the record of five in four games spanning the 1928 and 1932 Fall Classics.

"Lou Gehrig was one of the all-time greats," said Jackson. "I'm just one of the faces in the crowd. Maybe a little more recognizable."

John, who had his Dodger infielders eating ground balls until he tired late in the game, said Los Angeles' 7-0 lead entering the seventh caused him to change his pitching pattern.

"I can tell you this, Reggie wouldn't have gotten that pitch if the game were close," said John, who was victimized by some shoddy fielding that made three of the five Yankee runs unearned.

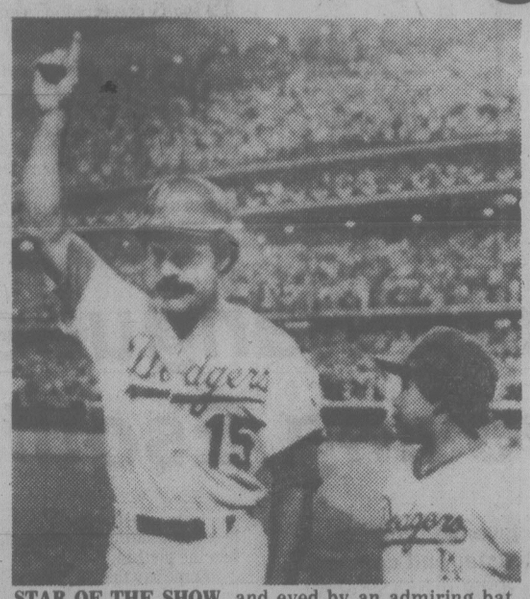

Lopes' two homers and a solo shot by Dusty Baker had provided Los Angeles with its early edge.

"With a big lead, you don't have the sharpness or concentration you should have," said John, whose streak of 23 straight scoreless innings was snapped by Jackson's seventh-inning homer.

John was impressed by the Yanks' rally and was happy to give the ball to ace reliever Terry Forster.

"The Yanks are a very good late-inning ballclub," said John, while soaking his valuable left arm in a pool of ice. "That comeback had the markings of a quality ballclub with a lot of character."

Forster came in in the eighth with the Dodger lead shrinking. He gave up one single, then struck out three of the next four Yanks to end the game.

STAR OF THE SHOW, and eyed by an admiring bat boy, Davey Lopes of Los Angeles Dodgers signals to crowd as he heads for bench after hitting his second home run as Dodgers defeated New York Yankees 11-5 in first game of World Series Tuesday. (AP wirephoto).

CALGARY — Victoria Cougars, sparked by some outstanding goaltending from Steve Amiss, scored five unanswered goals in the second and third periods to beat Calgary Wranglers 7-5 in Western Hockey League action here Tuesday.

Amiss, who has a good record on road games, replaced starting netminder Kevin Eastman early in the second period and blanked Wranglers for just over 37 minutes while the Cougars staged their comeback.

Calgary jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first two minutes of play and were ahead 4-2 at the end of the first frame.

Kelly Kisio, a rookie sensation, scored his third straight goal for Wranglers at 2:57 of the second period and Amiss was put in to replace Eastman.

The appearance of Amiss seemed to settle the Cougars down and rookies Barry Pederson and Bob Smith connected for goals to put the Victoria club within one goal.

Rookie leftwinger Torrie Robertson evened the count at 15:47 with his fourth goal in as many games and Gary Lupul and Mike Shields connected in the third period to give the Cats their third win in four starts.

Lupul and Pederson were the Victoria marksmen in the first period while the other Calgary goals were scored by Dale Cross and Blake Sullivan.

Meanwhile, in other WHL action, Brandon Wheat Kings scored three unanswered third-period goals in Saskatoon to defeat Saskatoon Blades 6-5 while Edmonton Oil Kings tied visiting Seattle Breakers, 6-6.

In Saskatoon, the Wheat Kings victory moved them into a first-place tie with the Blades. Brandon has three games at hand.

Brandon's winning goal was scored by Brian Propp. Darren Gusdal and Brad Kempthorne scored two goals, while Kelly McCrimmon had a single.

Replying for the Blades, who led 2-1 and 5-3 by periods, were Lindsay Carson, Kevin MacNaught, Brent Ashton, George Trainor and Dan Bent.

Orr Back On Ice For Opening Night

By Canadian Press

Bobby Orr returns to National Hockey League action tonight after knee problems appeared to have ended his playing career.

Orr and his Chicago Black Hawks entertain Atlanta Flames in one of six games opening the NHL's 62nd season, which ends April 8 after the 17 clubs have played 80 games each for a total of 680.

Chicago signed Orr as a free agent June 24, 1976, gambling that the superstar defenceman would rebound from knee surgery that sidelined him for all but 10 games with Boston Bruins in the 1975-76 season.

He played only 20 games with the Black Hawks in 1976-77 and missed all of last season.

Orr, 30, one of the game's all-time greats after nine full seasons and parts of two others, said when asked why he would risk failure by trying to return to play:

"I'm getting all this money from Chicago. They've been very good to me, and I want to try to do something for the team."

Orr has 268 goals and 643 assists for 911 points in 651 regular-season games.

Montreal Canadiens open defence of their over-all points title tonight when they entertain Minnesota North Stars, Washington Capitals visit Los Angeles Kings, Toronto Maple Leafs are at Pittsburgh Penguins, Detroit Red Wings play host to St. Louis Blues and Colorado Rockies are at Vancouver Canucks.

Montreal right wing Guy Lafleur will start his search for a fourth consecutive scoring championship against a Minnesota team bolstered by its merger with Cleveland Barons. Lafleur had 60 goals last season, his personal high.

Minnesota coach Harry Howell, general manager at Cleveland last year, and Montreal's Scotty Bowman will have one 30-second time out each available to them, the most prominent of several rule changes for this season.

Although Lafleur doubtless will deserve some attention, the North Stars probably would do well to keep an eye on centre Doug Risebrough as well.

Risebrough, a fifth-year player known for his spunkiness more than his scoring prowess, led the Canadiens with eight goals in exhibition play, while Lafleur had only three in pre-season action.

The Kings open at home with newcomer Ron Grahame set to split the season's goaltending chores with holdover Gary Simmons.

The Kings, who acquired Grahame from the Bruins on Monday in exchange for a first-round draft choice in 1979, are trying to fill the gap in goal left when Rogie Vachon signed as a free agent with Detroit.

NL Ump Didn't Call AL Strikes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It's a big disappointment, no doubt about that," said New York Yankees right-hander Ed Figueroa, who worked just 1 2-3 innings Tuesday night and was the losing pitcher as the Yankees dropped an 11-5 decision in the first game of the World Series to Los Angeles Dodgers.

Figueroa complained that he had some trouble adjusting to the calls of National League umpire Ed Vargo behind the plate. American League umpires are reputed to allow the high strike while National League umpires customarily give pitchers the low strike.

"All I know is that a lot of pitches I threw were strikes in the American League," said Figueroa, who is generally a low-ball pitcher. "Then, I throw the ball over the plate and they hit it," added the Puerto Rican-born pitcher. "And when I throw it low, it is too low."

Yankees manager Bob Lemon said Figueroa's main problem was his lack of control.

Canada Second In World Golf

PACIFIC HARBOUR, Fiji (Reuter) — Australia moved into the team lead while Canadian amateur champion Cathy Sherk and teammate Marilyn Palmer continued to hold a share of second spot in the women's world amateur golf championship after the second round.

Sherk, from Fonthill, Ont., dropped from a share of the lead to second place among the individual leaders with a two-over-par 74 on the Pacific Harbour Golf and Country Club layout. That gave her a two-round total of 146, one stroke behind leader Jane Lock of Australia who shot a 72.

Australian Edwina Kennedy, winner of the British amateur title early this year, fired a one-under-par 71 and combined with Lock to give Australia a four-stroke lead over Canada and Britain-Ireland in the team standings.

The best two scores of the three-member teams count for the team total. Australia had a 292 total half way through the 72-hole tournament while Canada and Britain-Ireland were tied at 296. France was next at 299 followed by Japan and the United States, both 301.

Sherk, who added the U.S. women's amateur and U.S. North-South titles to her second Canadian championship this year, had opened with a 72 on Tuesday. Her 74 today combined with a second consecutive 75 by Palmer of Vancouver. The third Canadian team member, Stacey West of Thornhill,Ont., shot a second consecutive 80.

Sherk shared second place in the individual standings with Beth Daniel of the U.S. who rallied with a 71.

Mt. Doug Grabs Lead In High School Soccer

Mt. Douglas Thistles bounced visiting Parkland Panthers 10-0 Tuesday to take over sole possession of first place in the Greater Victoria High School Boys' Soccer League.

Thistles also extended an unbeaten string to six matches and improved their points-for-and-against record to an incredible 51-1.

In other Tuesday matches, Victoria Tyees downed Stelly's 3-0, Oak Bay dropped Belmont Braves 4-1 and Reynolds Roadrunners rallied for a 4-3 decision over Esquimalt Dockers.

Colin Ayers, Rob Wallace and Dennis Mamic fired two goals each to spark the Mt. Douglas attack while singles were supplied by Rick Stedeck, Drew Porter, Randy Hooker and Peter Brix.

Mark Wyatt, Dave Barnes and Enrique Tudela scored for Tyees and goalkeeper Robbie Kaye recorded his sixth straight shutout in a 5-0-1 team record.

Oak Bay was led by a three-goal performance from Paul Studders while Dave Studders added the single. Bill Bland averted a shutout for Braves.

Roadrunners snapped a 3-3 deadlock with about two minutes to play on a goal by Scott Robertson. Manuel Achadina set the pace for Reynolds with two goals and the other single tally was scored by Greg Pynn. Jay Wilson, Derrick Sitar and Larry Nohr replied for Dockers.

It's Official: L.A. Gets '84 Olympics

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — The International Olympic Committee (IOC) has given the final go-ahead to Los Angeles to stage the 1984 Olympic Games, it was announced Tuesday.

A special mail ballot among members approved by a large majority a decision by the IOC executive board in August which had recommended acceptance of Los Angeles's plan to hold and finance the Games.

The vote was 74-3 in favor of the recommendation with eight abstentions. Forty-five votes were needed for approval.

An IOC spokesman declined to name the three members who rejected the recommendation of the executive board, "but we might be able to tell you at a later time," he said.

Recommendation to approve the signing of two contracts enabling Los Angeles to stage the Games was given on Aug. 31 by IOC president Lord Killanin—but he said at the time that the decision could only be final if IOC members ratified it by a mail vote before Oct. 7.

The statement announcing the balloting said only 85 of the world body's 89 members were eligible to take part in the vote because the other four had not yet been sworn into the organization.

The spokesman said the result of the ballot had already been sent to United States Olympic Committee (USOC) headquarters in New York.

The granting of the Games to Los Angeles ended months of talks between officials of the city, the IOC and the USOC over the drafting of a contract acceptable to all parties.

The dispute began early this year when Los Angeles, the only applicant for the 1984 Games, refused to sign a contract submitted by the IOC accepting joint financial responsibility with the USOC.

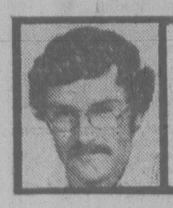

Since then, the city came close to dropping out of the running. Mayor Tom Bradley had even threatened at one stage to recommend the city withdraw its bid.

The two contracts—a deviation from the Olympic tradition of one agreement between the IOC and the host city—are aimed at preventing any demands on the taxpayers of Los Angeles.

Under the current plan, financial responsibility is now delegated to the USOC and an organizing committee, set up by the city but acting as an independant unit.

Los Angeles will sign one contract with the IOC promising to organize the Games according to the rules. The organizing committee will sign the other one with the IOC and the USOC which has said it will guarantee the Games against financial loss with the help of federal funds and grants from private industry.

Salmonid Enhancement Proving Boon To Searuns

OUTDOORS
stewart lang

Searun cutthroat trout are no longer the forgotten game fish in British Columbia.

In fact, they are destined for great things under the federal-provincial Salmonid Enhancement Program (SEP).

"We're putting a lot of marbles — this year and next year — into searun cutthroat," said Dave Narver, anadromous fisheries co-ordinator for the provincial fish and wildlife branch.

"Just last year, we reared the first-ever searun cutthroat (provincially) in a hatchery at Abbotsford."

A total of 15,000 marked nine-inch smolts were released near Chilliwack this past spring and fair numbers (now grown to 16 inches) have already started to return.

"Depending on their return, the branch will have a ready egg source and will learn a lot about the trout," explained Narver.

"We know a hell of a lot more about steelhead — which isn't all that much — than we do about searun cutthroat.

"We realize now that a lot of the inventory work we've done in the past on small streams where we've thought we were looking at searun populations in fact weren't searun at all but were resident fish."

It's difficult to differentiate between searun and resident cutthroat with any degree of accuracy.

The hatchery program is continuing at Abbotsford and another 15,000 smolts are due to be released in May. In addition, a total of $40,000 was budgeted for the 1978-79 fiscal year to search out and obtain searun brood stock on Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland.

"In 1979-80 we expect to be producing a substantial and increasing number of searun cutthroat in our hatchery system," said Narver. "Initial plantings are likely to be in the Victoria and Langley areas.

"We think searun cutthroat are the fish we (the provincial fisheries personnel) have to key in on in the enhancement program because they're an urban fish."

As urban fish, they provide a good fishery for youngsters and others unable to commute great distances for their sport.

This relatively-easy availability, however, has led to their downfall over the past few years.

"Searun cutthroat are easy to overfish," Narver explained, "and I suspect one of our problems on southern Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland is that we have overfished them."

Narver was quick to point out that environmental degradation also played a major role in the declining population levels.

Not all of the enhancement techniques to be utilized for searuns involve expensive hatchery facilities.

"We feel that rearing techniques currently being developed for steelhead such as floating lake pens and rearing channels should be useful for cutthroat."

These techniques are being developed on the Keogh River on northern Vancouver Island as well as the Vedder Bridging Pond on the Lower Mainland.

Other "natural" enhancement methods, such as simple boulder and root-wad additions to the stream bed to provide additional shelter areas and construction of gravel platforms for spawning are being developed on Colquitz Creek near Victoria to "substantially and cheaply increase juvenile production."

All the techniques "will be applied on numerous other streams next year by both volunteer groups and government SEP crews."

What's the bottom line?

"In the next five years of SEP our searun cutthroat goal is 100,000 adults," said Narver.

"Our success in meeting this goal depends partly on the availability of brood stock and partly on how successful we are with small stream improvements."

"I think that cutthroat are no longer the forgotten fish."

"Piano movers!"

BRUISED FINGER

DALLAS (AP) — Martina Navratilova, the world's top-ranked woman's tennis player, has withdrawn from the United States women's indoor championships in Bloomington, Minn., because of a badly-bruised finger.

Vancouver Players Triumph

Vancouver competitors captured both "A" singles titles in the annual Harbour Square invitational squash tournament at the weekend.

Tim Bale took the men's crown with a 3-2 decision over Mike Greenwood of Victoria and Cathy Coventon topped the round-robin women's event with a 4-0 record.

Other men's winners were Hugh Woolley ("B") and Mike Montgomery ("C"), both of Vancouver, and Tony Kelly of UVic ("D").

In women's play, Diana Simmons of the host club won "B" laurels, Vera Chiu of Victoria won the "C" event and Wendy Eckhardt of the Racquet Club of Victoria captured "D" honors.

Braves Still Unbeaten

Saanich Braves emerged as the lone unbeaten team in the South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League by tripping Esquimalt Legion Blues 7-4 Tuesday night at Pearkes Arena.

Murray McLaren, Tracy Patterson and Bill Adkin each scored twice for the defending-champion Saanich club, which trailed 1-0 after the first period but rallied to outscore Blues 4-1 in the middle frame. Jamie Bowles fired the other goal for Braves.

Wayne Proceviat (2), Terry Parsons and Tom Turnbull replied for Esquimalt.

Added performance and driving comfort: The new Fiat Brava has a 2-litre engine, plush velour interior and delivers 62 km per gal. on the highway†.

If you're considering a Volvo, Saab, Peugeot, BMW or Audi

Test drive the luxurious 1979 Fiat Brava 2-Litre. Discover the value Fiat offers for around $7,000.*

Fiat is famed for efficient cars—excellent performance, economy, driveability. Now—with the 1979 Brava, Fiat's famous twin cam engine with 2-litre performance is right in the same league with imported cars costing hundreds, even thousands more.

Plush velour interior. Amazingly quiet.

And backed by a unique combination of reliability warranties that hold down the long-term cost of owning your car.

European cars in the 2-litre category have a well-deserved reputation for driver control, ride and sophisticated engineering.

But the prices! Now Fiat engineers introduce a high order of clever engineering, superb ride, lush interior finish with 2-litre power *for around $7,000.

Over the years Fiat engineers have pioneered in squeezing efficiency out of engines for Europe where gasoline prices are sky high. Now the same engineering expertise has been put to work to develop the new Brava 2-Litre: twin overhead cams milk the optimum power from the engine; handling is responsive through rack and pinion steering, McPherson Strut suspension and power assisted brakes. It's all put together with Fiat's skill at getting high performance without costing you an arm and a leg.

Fiat protects the new-car buyer's pocketbook with two remarkable reliability warranties:

1. Fiat was the first import to offer the three-year, corrosion perforation warranty.

2. Two-year (or 40,000 km) power train warranty: Fiat engineers are so sure of the dependability of the Brava engine and drive train, that Fiat has covered them with a warranty for two years (or 40,000 km, whichever comes first).

Check the list for all the Brava features and test drive one today.

Edwards Finds Form

TORONTO (CP) — Hamilton running back Jimmy Edwards, who rambled for 101 yards on 21 carries during the Tiger-Cats 25-5 upset of Ottawa Rough Riders on Monday, appears finally to have found his form.

Edwards, who rushed for 1,581 yards last season and was named the Canadian Football League's outstanding player, got off to a slow start this season after a well-publicized contract dispute with Tiger-Cat management.

But the fleet back, who finally signed a million-dollar deal with owner Harold Ballard, now has taken over his normal spot as rushing leader in the Eastern Conference. He has 549 yards on 136 carries, 50 ahead of his nearest competition, Larry Holmes of the Rough Riders.

Edwards' chances of joining the 1,000-yard club this season appear slim, however. He needs $n 113-yard average over the next four games to turn the trick.

Meanwhile, Mike Strickland of Saskatchewan Roughriders has piled up 1,130 yards on 238 carries to lead the CFL. His closest rival is Larry Key of British Columbia Lions, who is almost 300 yards behind with a 856 total.

RACING ON WEEKENDS

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Saratoga Harness Raceways has won state approval for racing on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays this coming December and January.

Trillion, Stone In International

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — The field for the $200,000 Washington, D.C., International has increased to five with the announcement that Trillion, Europe's leading filly, and Stone, considered the best three-year-old in Italy, will run in the Nov. 4 race.

The U.S. representatives for the 27th running of the International will include Exceller, owned by Nelson Bunker Hunt and Herbert Schnapka; Noble Dancer II, owned by Haakon Fretheim; and MacDiarmida, owned by Jerome Torsney.

Trillion, a four-year-old bay filly owned by Edward Stephenson of Warrenton, Va., recently ran second in the Prix de L'Arc de Triomphe. She has also won three other European stakes this season.

Stone has won seven of 12 career starts, three this year.

Lindsay Gets a 'No'

DETROIT (AP) — Ted Lindsay asked the $2,500 question and got no for an answer.

The general manager of the Detroit Red Wings paid the $2,500 waiver price on Buffalo's Jim Lorentz in this week's National Hockey League free agent draft.

Tuesday, Lorentz informed Lindsay he has retired.

Lorentz, 32, spent much of last season on the Sabres' bench and did not report to the club's training camp this year.

Ozark's Job Safe

PHILADELPHA (AP) — Philadelphia Phillies president Ruly Carpenter has announced that Danny Ozark will be rehired as manager of the three-time National League east division champions, the Philadelphia Inquirer reported.

The Inquirer report confirmed an Associated Press report last Monday that the 54-year-old Ozark, who last week completed his sixth season as Philadelphia manager, would be retained. His two-year contract expired at the end of the season.

The Phillies were defeated by Los Angeles Dodgers in the fourth game of this year's best-of-five league championship series, the third straight year the Phillies were eliminated.

"It's just a matter of sitting down with Danny in the next week or so and working out the details," Carpenter said.

"Take a look at the really successful organizations in sports and what do you see? Continuity," Carpenter told the Inquirer.

"That's what we're striving for as well. I consider Danny Ozark one of the top executives of the corporation.

"I won't change managers just for the sake of change," Carpenter said.

Canada Takes Grudge Match

MANILA (CP) — Guard Martin Riley of Winnipeg scored 18 points Tuesday night as Canada rallied for its first semi-final round victory at the world basketball championship, a 91-79 win over Australia in a bruising contest.

The game, which developed into a grudge match for Commonwealth supremacy, featured almost 50 fouls as the Canadians placed five players in double figures, including a 14-point performance by Peter Ryan of Trois-Rivieres, Que.

"We played heads up basketball," said Riley, who spent most of the day in bed nursing a cold before playing in the evening. "We ran the ball well and did the things we wanted to do. And the Australians found out we can play a physical game too."

In another semi-final game, Yugoslavia emerged as firm favorites to win the crown with a solid 105-92 win over the defending champion Soviet Union.

The victory left Yugoslavia and Brazil, 92-90 winners over the United States, as the only unbeaten teams. The Soviet Union is next with a 3-1 record, followed by Italy, which crushed the Phillipines 112-75 Tuesday, at 3-2, the U.S. has a 2-3 mark while Canada is next at 1-4, followed by the Phillipines, 0-4, and Australia, 0-5.

Canada, which now is assured of at least a sixth-place finish, won the Commonwealth championship in Britain during August at a tournament Australia didn't enter and Tuesday night's game was considered to be a playoff for the Commonwealth crown by the Australians.

Vikings Receive Soccer Help From Bears

Defending champion University of Victoria Vikings welcomed the unexpected assistance from Alberta's Golden Bears and now are ready to do their own bit in the quest for the Canada West University Athletic Association's soccer championship.

Previously-winless Alberta upset front-running Saskatchewan Huskies 3-1 at the weekend to take some of the pressure off the pursuing Vikings.

Victoria still trails Saskatchewan by one point but has a game in hand.

"I think it's obvious that we have to win all our remaining games," said coach Brian Hughes as he prepared Vikings for Saturday's meeting with Calgary Dinosaurs, the only team to beat Victoria this season. The game will be played at Royal Athletic Park.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

It does not happen very often that one makes a sacrifice bid at the slam level, and fulfills his contract. The later was the case in the 1950 World Team-of-Four Championships, in which the United States was pitted against Great Britain. The deal in which it occurred follows.

North-South vulnerable. South deals.

♠ J 5
♡ 9 7 6
◇ A K 7 6 4 2
♣ 10 3

WEST	EAST
♠ K Q 7 6	♠ 10 9 8 4 2
♡ A K J 4 2	♡ Q 10 5 3
◇ 8	◇ 3

SOUTH
◇ Q J 10 9 5
♣ A K 9 7 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Dble.	3 ◇	3 ♠
5 ◇	5 ♠	6 ◇	Dble.
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♡.

The American North's jump to three diamonds was a pre-emptive call (with 10 or more points he would have redoubled); and it was an attempt to shut East out of the bidding. But East, undaunted, came in with a three-spade call despite his meager holdings.

When West subsequently bid five spades, North concluded that this contract could be fulfilled (he was quite wrong, as can be observed). So he came up with the sacrifice bid of six diamonds, figuring that his side would lose fewer points at this contract than East-West would make at a five-spade contract. And he struck oil.

After West had won the opening lead with the heart king, he continued with the ace of hearts, which South ruffed. The queen of trumps was then cashed, gathering in the two outstanding pieces. Then followed the ace and king of clubs, after which a third club was ruffed in dummy. When both opponents followed suit to the third club lead, South's two remaining clubs had been promoted into winners.

The South hand was then re-entered by ruffing dummy's remaining heart, and the board's five of spades was discarded on South's remaining spade was ruffed in dummy. The rest of the tricks belonged to declarer, and a doubled slam contract was thus fulfilled.

When the deal was replayed, East did not bid over North's three-diamond call. The English South then bid five diamonds, which became the final contract. With the same line of play as his counterpart's, South came home with 12 tricks — but the 12th trick was merely an overtrick at a game contract.

SOLUTIONS THURSDAY

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological forecast for Thursday, October 12
By Sydney Omarr

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You find out what it is you are supposed to do. You also are able to let others know what you expect of them. Air is cleared. Activity occurs behind the scenes. News concerns hospital, club, organization or institution.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Friendship undergoes a test. You can become a better, bigger person by taking disagreement in stride. Some of your wishes come true, in a most unorthodox manner. Aquarius, Leo persons figure prominently. What seemed a "closed door" could open to a "revelation."

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You get opportunity to test theories, ideas. Member of opposite sex — and career — are involved. Virgo, Sagittarius persons figure prominently. You receive call or message which results in elevation of prestige.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Spotlight on greater knowledge, understanding and basic security. Take long-range view. Fortify home base. Refuse to be led astray by speculators, fast-talking persons who lack substance. Family member does care and will prove it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You gain insights — to others and yourself. Accent what lies beneath the surface; you strike "pay dirt" of truth. Pisces, Virgo persons play key roles. Emphasis financial arrangements, discussing budget with close associate, partner or mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Pressure, obstacles responsibility — these slow pace. Key is to listen, to detect subtle signals, trends and cues. Commitment is made in legal arena that could include partnership or marriage. Study Leo message. Time is on your side. Refuse to be rushed into premature action.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Finish rather than begin — improve services, come to a understanding with those who depend upon you. What had been an irritant is due to fade. Aries figures prominently. Improve communications. Aggressive individual starts in new directions. Get to heart of matters, imprint style, make changes. Member of opposite sex figures prominently. If you display courage of convictions, you score a major victory.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Stress independence, originality — highlight new starts in new directions. Get to heart of matters. Imprint style, make changes. Member of opposite sex figures prominently. If you display courage of convictions, you score a major victory.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Go slow, pace yourself, obtain hint from Virgo message. Teach, learn, keep open mind without being gullible. Emphasis on basic values, home, property. Take inventory. Become thoroughly familiar with available material.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent versatility, protection of ideas, avoiding confrontations with relatives. Reach beyond current expectations, but recognize need for steady hand of experience. Another Capricorn — and a Sagittarian — figure prominently.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on protection, getting money's worth, counting your change. Another Aquarian is in picture. You make gains by being thorough — read between the lines, be aware of fine print, hidden clauses. Surprise due — and it is of pleasant variety.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be optimistic, confident — and show that you are thinking as a winner. Lunar cycle high — take initiative. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius figure prominently. Welcome change, variety, opportunity to express views and to travel.

IF OCTOBER 12 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you have bright, active, alert mind — your intellectual curiosity is honed to razor-sharpness. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. You are attractive but must watch your weight. You are expressive, artistic and have good sense of humor. You scatter your efforts — once you learn to concentrate on one project at a time, you will have more success. Travel, celebration, romance indicated for you in December.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J.A.H. HUNTER

Uncle Fred emptied his pockets on to the table. "Okay, that's all I've got, but you kids can have it," he said. "Just $2.82 in all."

"Great," Doug exclaimed. "How do we divide it?"

His uncle thought a moment. "Well, you're 15 and the other two are 9 and 12," he replied. "So share it in ratios of a third to a quarter to a fifth. It works out right."

What would the amounts be?

(Answer tomorrow)

Yesterday's answer: SAYS was 2432 (MA 94, even).

Mr. Hunter answers all letters: ideas welcomed.

Love Potions Popular As Ever Among Superstitious Filipinos

MANILA (Reuter) — Love doctors are making a handsome living among superstitious Filipinos, dispensing supposedly powerful medicine or advice to help men and women attract their dream partners.

Fertility superstitions and love potions appear as popular as ever among many of this country's 45 million mainly Christian people.

Love potions to gain one's heart's desire are much in demand, especially in rural areas.

Love doctors offer liquid, powder or even magic verse designed to cause the man or woman who receives it to fall immediately in love with the sender.

In a country where faith and psychic healing are big business, attracting people from all over the world, the authorities remain tolerant. The Roman Catholic Church has learned to live with it after some four centuries.

A common practice in northern and central Philippines and in some parts of the far south is the rice shower on newlyweds to ensure prosperity and fertility — a practice also common in Western countries, where its origins are largely forgotten.

Some northerners believe serving dried foods during a wedding feast will result in sterility of the newlywed couple. Newlyweds are encouraged instead to eat boiled beans to ensure many children.

In the Ilocos provinces of the north, whose people are considered the country's most thrifty, relatives pin money to the wedding costume in a practical measure to ensure prosperity.

In Cagayan Valley, in the rugged northeast, as well as in some parts of the Visayan Islands in the central Philippines, weather on a wedding day is believed to play a part in influencing the financial future of the couple and the number of children they will have.

A slight drizzle is considered the best possible omen.

In the central Philippines, it is customary to hold weddings when the moon is full to ensure many children.

Typical of love doctors is the "Pangangatao" of Lanao provinces in distant Mindanao, a largely Moslem area.

Custom has it that a young man planning to marry consults the Pangangatao, usually an old man, first to learn how the woman feels toward him.

If the Pangangatao thinks the woman does not reciprocate the young man's feelings, he sells the suitor a love charm, usually consisting of a magic verse.

If this fails, the love doctor may produce "special fair water" which is poured on food to be eaten by the woman. It is supposed to incite intense love for the man.

The super-treatment, when all else has failed, is the so-called Kambong supposed to produce deep-felt lovesickness.

During a full moon, the young man must secure an egg, preferably from a dark-skinned hen. He submerges the egg in a bowl of water and slowly turns the egg, while reciting a long, magic verse over the bowl and naming the woman of his desire.

IMITATING HIS DAD, 12-year-old Tommy Phillips holds up a 35-pound Chinook salmon he landed in a creek just east of Toronto, using a fibreglass rod and a 12-pound line. However, Tommy's father did even better a week ago, when he snagged a 45-pounder.

BLIND BABY CURED AT FRENCH SHRINE?

LEEDS, England (CP) — A Leeds couple say their blind baby boy was cured by a visit to the famous shrine at Lourdes.

Mr. and Mrs. James Heselden spent their holiday savings of $1,200 to take their eight-month-old son James to the shrine.

"On the way home from France we noticed that James could follow the movement of his grandmother's fingers," his mother said.

"Now his sight is improving daily. Two months ago eye specialists told us James had a serious eye disease and there was little hope of him getting better."

With his mother and two grandmothers, James spent five days in Lourdes and an American priest showed them how to bathe the baby's eyes. On the way home, the family say, his sight suddenly returned.

"None of us could believe he had his sight back at first," said one of the two grandmothers, Joan Heselden. "But I've noticed the change in him every day since our return. His eyes follow everything."

Dr. Brian Harcourt, the eye specialist who examined James before and after the visit to Lourdes, said:

"Medicine and religion are often in conflict. The question of whether the child is cured is something we shall have to monitor."

Dear Sir:
We would like to take this opportunity to express to you our feeling about classified ads.
We have just completed our most successful year in used car sales, for 1978, and find that we have to relate a big part of this success to the classified section of your newspaper.
Your circulation in our opinion is the best means of reaching the buying public.
I would like to take this opportunity also to thank the staff of the Victoria Times classified, for all the help and co-operation we have received in the past year and we are looking forward to another record year.
Sincerely,
Bruce Lockhart

Children's Universal Language Is Screaming, Ustinov Learns

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Peter Ustinov, winner of two Academy Awards as supporting actor, is making another film with a cast of thousands — all children.

During one of his rare visits here, Ustinov discussed his myriad activities, including the movie he is producing for the United Nations Children's Fund. The actor-author-director said he became hooked on UNICEF after acting as emcee at a Paris concert to benefit the agency a few years ago.

Since then he has appeared at concert benefits all over the world (last stop: Australia and New Zealand). Now he is filming a documentary with a one-man crew — a Trinidadian photographer — plus sound technicians picked up along the way.

"I started last year when I was in Egypt for Death on the Nile," he said. "At the same time I made a film on the side about the Nubian children. It was to be a visual essay about children en masse and what they face in a developing country.

"I shot some more footage in Kenya this year when I was making Ashant there. I have also filmed in Jordan, India and Thailand. I want to go to Guatemala, too, but I don't think the time is quite right."

Ustikov doesn't have a title for the documentary or plans for its release although he suspects it will appear on public television.

What have his travels taught him?

"That the reactions of children are very similar the world over. I have concluded that children have invented the only international language: Screaming. They know what they want, and they scream to get it."

In Jordan, he interviewed members of a Bedouin tribe who had settled into an area of five kilometres radius though they sometimes moved daily. He asked a father how the children found their way back from school. "I bring them back," said the father, pointing to a Mercedes sedan between the tents.

Ustinov pointed out the serious purpose of the film: "It is aimed at helping people to help themselves with the framework of UNICEF. That can be done not with money, but with knowledge.

PHILIP VISITS PUERTO RICO

SAN JUAN (A) — Prince Philip has arrived in Puerto Rico for a four-day visit during which he will preside over the annual meeting of the International Equestrian Federation of which he is president.

The prince arrived late Monday and was a guest of honor at a reception at Casa Blanca, the original home of Spanish conquistador Ponce de Leon.

He said the meeting was designed to deal with preparations for the Moscow Olympics.

Liz Taylor, with husband John Warner

New Role for Liz: Politics

By JURATE KAZICKAS

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Her famous violet eyes were hidden behind very dark glasses, but clearly Elizabeth Taylor Warner was annoyed.

Here she was, the wife of the Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate from conservative Virginia, with the election little more than a month away, being asked whether the voters might be put off by her seven marriages.

"It's nobody's concern," she said. "I think it's fairly obvious why I was married. As strange as it may sound, I am a very moral woman. I was taught by my parents that if you fall in love, if you want to have a love affair, you get married."

Questions like that aren't the only annoyance these days. So are questions like: Does Elizabeth Taylor mind trading Hollywood limousines for campaign buses? Does she miss her dressing room when she stops at filling stations for a quick change? Does she long for champagne and caviar instead of rubber chicken?

"If you're doing something you believe in, you don't complain about it. I'm enjoying it," Miss Taylor said.

"Do I miss the glamorous life of a movie star. No way. Not remotely. Anyone who thinks making a movie is a picnic is out ot their minds," she said.

"Campaigning is fascinating" she said. "You meet so many people and can get to know them on a one-to-one basis. Of course there are similarities between show business and politics. In both you're exposed to the public and don't have much private life. But the major difference is that show biz is fiction, fantasy."

Nonethless, she tries to avoid issues while campaigning.

"I am not John's surrogate. My opinion of issues if of very little importance. That's why I stay out of them as much as I can."

Last year, when former navy secretary John Warner was testing the waters for a political career, Miss Taylor, contrary to her husband, was a supporter of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Farrah Good In Green?

SEATTLE, Wash. — If he could cast Farrah Fawcett-Majors as a green lizard, playwright-director Edward Albee says he might be able to sell his Pulitizer Prize-winning play, Seascape, to television.

Albee, 50, says he assumes commercial TV is not interested in the 1975 play because he hasn't heard from the networks since he made his pitch three months ago. He wants Helen Hayes, who no longer can work on the stage because she's allergic to the dust, in the lead role, which Deborah Kerr played on Broadway.

Maybe Miss Fawcett-Majors, former star of ABC's Charlie's Angels, could rescue the venture, he said with a laugh. "I suppose we could dress her up as one of the lizards. That's fine. Why ever not? She could paint her hair green. It would be great."

NATCHEZ, Miss. — Susie Turner's entry into show business earned her birthday kisses from Muhammad Ali and Kris Kristofferson, but the 94-year-old movie extra says she won't forsake her garden and her church for a crack at stardom.

The spry, white-haired Natchez resident, cast in the made-for-televisionfilm Freedom Road, said she enjoyed watching a movie being made but "I don't want to be a star."

"I'd have to be away from my church too much. I'd rather be a star in my church."

Mrs. Turner, known to her friends as Momma Susie, celebrated her 94th birthday on the movie set Tuesday. Ali, Kristofferson and other cast and crew members presented her with a large cake.

MOOSE JAW — Premier Allan Blakeney has found naked support from at least one man in his attempt to push medicare as an issue in the Oct. 18 provincial election.

The premier had just finished speaking to 350 supporters here when a middle-aged man jumped onto the platform saying he wanted to produce a "commercial for medicare".

He removed his suit jacket, tie and shirt, and pointed to a long red scar down the middle of his chest.

"See that scar?" he asked. "That's open-heart surgery. Five thousand dollars worth of medicare."

The man then asked the audience if they wanted to see where the veins used in his operation came from.

He dropped his pants and, clad only in shorts and shoes, displayed three smaller scars on the inner part of a thigh.

Said one Blakeney aide: "Well, Mr. Premier, that's the first time I've ever seen you talk someone out of their clothes."

Before the Judge

One of two teen-agers charged with the theft of a car belonging to a provincial cabinet minister's executive assistant pleaded guilty Tuesday in provincial court.

Albert Alexander Gratton, 19, of no fixed address, admitted stealing three automobiles and committing four burglaries.

One of the stolen cars, a 1976, orange TransAm taken Sept. 27, belonged to George Lenko, executive assistant to Tourism Minister and Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy.

The theft gained wide publicity because a slide presentation prepared by the provincial Social Credit party, and shown to constituency presidents and active party workers last month in Vancouver, was in the vehicle when it was stolen. The presentation concerned the Socreds membership campaigns and election preparations.

Gratton pleaded guilty to break-ins at 2844 Doncaster on Sept. 24, Ferny's Auto Body Shop, 728 Pembroke, on Sept. 29 and Oct. 5, and 8449 West Saanich between Sept. 10 and 20. The other two car thefts were on Sept. 30 and Oct. 4.

Jointly charged was 17-year-old Patrick Blaine McGolderick, 1414 Hillside. Legal-aid lawyer Jasper Bomhof asked for a remand until Friday for McGolderick's election of trial method.

Judge William Ostler remanded McGolderick until Friday for election and remanded Gratton until Oct. 31 for a pre-sentence report and sentencing.

Ostler released both youths on their undertaking to appear but on conditions they not associate with one another and obey a 9 p.m. curfew until the case is completed.

A 38-year-old prison inmate was charged with being unlawfully at large and remanded to Thursday for election.

William Stuart MacKey, serving a life term for non-capital murder at William Head prison, was charged with the offence.

MacKey was picked up by two Colwood RCMP officers at about 1:30 a.m. Tuesday morning on Weirs Beach, adjacent to the federal, medium-security prison where he was serving his sentence.

Mackey was alleged to be about five hours overdue after being issued a temporary pass Monday.

Judge Blake Allan ordered three Montreal youths kept in custody while a pre-sentence report was being prepared.

Robert Bourdon, 19, Steves Paradis, 19, and Alen Thomas, 20, were convicted of possession of housebreaking instruments following a preliminary hearing which was turned into a trial by defence lawyer James Main.

The three were arrested by city police about 3:30 a.m. last Wednesday in the 2500-block Blanshard. A knapsack containing a wrecking bar, hammer, and tin snips was found in a vacant field nearby after one of the officers noticed a sack had been carried by one of the three when first spotted.

Main had elected trial by judge without jury last week but applied to re-elect trial by magistrate and entered not guilty pleas at the end of the hearing.

Crown counsel Wayne Smith said Paradis had no criminal record but listed histories for the other two.

Thomas was convicted Sept. 23, 1976, in Montreal for possession of stolen property, for which he received a 30-day jail term; Nov. 17, 1976, in Longueuil, Que., for attempted breaking and entering, for which he received a one-month sentence; March 10, 1977, in Montreal for possession of narcotics for the purpose of trafficking, for which he recieved two months in jail and two years' probation; and May 2, 1977, in Montreal for conspiracy and armed robbery, for which he received 18-month, consecutive sentences.

Bourdon was convicted July 15, 1977, in Sydney, N.S., for two counts of breaking and entering and was given six-month, consecutive sentences.

Smith also said that Bourdon was on bail, awaiting trial, in Quebec when the Victoria offence took place.

All three were remanded until Oct. 31 for sentencing.

A 59-year-old man charged with common assault was released on condition he not ride on any B.C. Hydro bus until his case is completed.

Max Anderson, 1029 Pakington, was charged with assaulting a bus driver Oct. 1.

Anderson said it was the fifth such charge against him and blamed the transit supervisor for an organized campaign to keep him off the buses.

FEMALE ASSAULTED; MAN GETS SUSPENDED SENTENCE

Sentence was suspended and six months probation ordered in county court Tuesday for Edward M. Zendel when he pleaded guilty to offences committed last Feb. 15.

Zendel pleaded guilty before Judge Richard Low to being unlawfully in a Colwood house and to common assault of a female.

In the same court, Alan Michael Parlow was fined $750 when he pleaded guilty to being in possession of cannabis resin Oct. 1, 1976.

Clifford Glenn Anderson, 25, was fined $500 for breaking, entering and intent to commit an indictable offence at Stadacona Centre Jan. 29, to which he pleaded guilty earlier. Judge Low noted a favorable pre-sentence report.

Witness Tells of Grisly Find

The trial of John George Auxi, 40, charged in the murder of two Hungarian immigrants two weeks before Christmas last year, opened Tuesday in B.C. Supreme Court here.

Mr. Justice H.E. Hutcheon and a jury of six men and six women began hearing evidence which Crown counsel Nicholas Lang expected will extend well into next week.

Auxi is charged with two counts of first degree murder, in which the Crown alleges he planned and executed the shooting deaths of Gizelle Schild, 41, and Sandor (Alex) Kormos, 43, at their roominghouse at 1242 Fort on Dec. 11.

The jury heard through an interpeter how a friend of Kormos, Sandor Borza, who lived in another room at the same address, came upon the bodies in a small second-floor room around 8 on a Sunday morning.

He had been up about an hour, translator Julie Ann Henry told the court, and after going downtown for coffee he returned to the house "and went upstairs to Sandor's room."

The door was ajar about 12 inches and the light was on. Borza knocked but no one answered. He knocked again and the door swung open some more.

"I saw Sandor's legs on the floor. I opened the door and I stepped in," the witness said.

"I shook his pant leg and said, 'Sandor . . . Sandor.' He still didn't wake up.

"I looked at him and his head was twisted and I ran out."

Borza knocked at number 8, the next door along the corridor. There was no answer, and he dashed downstairs, outside and to a neighborhood service station about a block away where he asked a girl working there to call police.

Auxi was known to Borza, who pointed to him in the dock, and said he had seen Auxi in Kormos' room in July or August of 1977. Whenever Borza visited Kormos the door was locked, and he confirmed that Kormos had three locks of which one appeared not to work.

The witness admitted he had a record of several criminal convictions including impaired driving, theft and common assault.

Under cross-examination by defence counsel Keith J. Libby of Vancouver, Borza said he had worked intermittently since about 1969, had known Kormos since 1958 and sometimes they lived in the same building. Once, about 1976, they had a fight — "just a little fun between us, that's all," Borza said.

He had known Auxi quite well since 1969, and had met Gizelle Schild and her husband in 1970 or 71, Borza said. Before December 1977 Schild, moved in with Kormos.

The last time he saw Schild alive was in Kormos' room at about 5 p.m. Dec. 10, lying on the bed crying. Kormos was there, sat on the bed and they both appeared nervous, Borza said.

Cons. Gary Green of Victoria police identification branch, said on his arrival at the house about 10 a.m. the body of a man was on the floor, back to the door, and a woman lay covered on the bed, head turned to the left.

He took photographs and noticed no signs of a struggle, although Kormos' clothing was loose, the belt and shirt buttons unfastened.

At a post-mortem later that day he saw a piece of lead removed from the woman's head, a fragment of lead taken from the man's elbow and a piece of lead from his skull. Flesh samples were taken for laboratory analysis, and Green returned to the murder scene.

There he found what appeared to be a lead fragment from woodwork and a piece of lead was discovered in congealed blood on the bedding.

Under questioning by assistant Crown counsel Ken Salt, Green said on Dec. 13 he took samples to a Vancouver lab and was given a rifle bolt by Victoria Staff-Sgt. Gordon Bennett.

One week later, Green was handed a rifle in a room at Victoria city police station where he also saw a man in a diving suit. When he dismantled the barrel from the stock, a part of the trigger broke off.

Both bolt and rifle were sent to the Vancouver crime lab, and Green took a series of photographs at Ogden Point breakwater. One of these exhibited in court showed the proximity of Auxi's house.

African Miners Moil As Gold Goes Up

CARLETONVILLE, South Africa (AP) — While telephones jingle in London, Zurich and Chicago and speculators push gold to record prices, black miners crawl through waist-high tunnels to wrench the metal from the world's deepest mine.

The miners' day begins in a steel cage hurtling downward at almost 60 kilometres an hour past layers of time imbedded in rock.

It is almost an hour of stop-and-go before they reach the bottom, where they crawl through a maze of tunnels to take their turns with jackhammers against the solid rock.

The mine, called Western Deep Levels, is the world's deepest at 3,899 metres. An army of 12,351 blacks and 978 whites daily risk their lives to scratch an ounce of gold from every two tons of rock.

Western Deep Levels harvests about 263 pounds a day. It and the other 34 major gold mines in South Africa produce about 700 metric tons of gold a year.

South Africa has 70 per cent of the free world's gold and in the year ending June 30 earned $3.7 billion from gold sales. Uranium, once a worthless by-product of gold-mining, earned the country $1.3 billion.

Mosutt Moatsdugha, a 35-year-old black miner from neighboring Botswana, is one of 378,000 black and 38,000 white miners who descend into the bowels of the earth every day in South Africa.

He likes it here "because of the money."

As a team leader, or "boss-boy," he supervises a dozen drillers and "cheezers" — men who place explosives into drilled holes. Mosutt earns $11.08 for an eight-hour shift and works 11 shifts in 14 days.

In addition to their salaries, all miners, black and white, receive a monthly production bonus based on how many metres of rock they drill and blast.

Mosutt says he averages about $250 a month while a driller may earn $130. A white miner, or "stoper" who supervises several black teams run by men like Mosutt, earns $800 to $1,000 a month.

In South Africa's gold mines, the average fatality rate is 1.4 deaths per 1,000 miners, or 582 men killed a year. At Western Deep Levels, rockbursts kill 30 men a year.

Above ground, all the miners' needs from laundry to medical care are taken care of free.

The miners live in hostels and receive a fortified diet containing 4,000-4,500 calories a day — more than twice the needs of a normal person.

The blacks are migrants, leaving at the end of their six-month contracts to go to their native towns and villages. They return to the mine when they need money. There is almost a 100 per cent turnover in the mine every year.

The Afrikaner-dominated miners union protects whites' rights and privileges.

Blacks cannot form unions or integrate with white unions, and their "liaison committees" handle grievances but have no bargaining rights.

EGYPT QUIETLY BREAKING ARAB BOYCOTT

CAIRO (AP) — An increasing number of western companies that have been boycotted by other Arabs for dealing with Israel are setting up shop in Egypt, which is discreetly welcoming their business.

Egypt is offering these companies what may become a springboard into the oil-rich Arab market and the promise of help in getting off the blacklist.

In exchange, Egypt is getting a piece of the action plus jobs and financing of new investments that the country's struggling economy could not otherwise afford.

The latest major company to open an office in Egypt is Xerox, a U.S. corporate giant which began leasing duplicators and copiers in August after making an initial investment of $1 million. It has been on the Arab blacklist for 12 years, and still is.

Motorola, Colgate-Palmolive, Cadbury-Schwepps, Ford and Coca-Cola ae all in various stages of setting up operations in Egypt.

Businessmen say that most of the deals were worked outbefore President Answar Sadat launched his peace initiative last November and that they are not linked with the fate of current Middle East peace efforts.

Correct Answers to Sept. 29-30 Puzzle

CLUES ACROSS

3. CONCERN not concert. Of a concert, success may be artistic rather than monetary. Also, to a (possibly amateur) concert, success may not be "important" in the vital sense that it is to a business CONCERN.
6. SORE not more. He is certanly apt to get SORE, but it may be beyond his powers to get more.
11. DULL not full. "Many" a hotel may be found DULL. Any hotel can simply be full.
13. RED not bed. The wording of the clue is better suited to a case of visual appeal.
17. COAL not goal. Since scoring a goal in a game can be a fluke, COAL is more firmly apt in that it requires effort to mine or "get" COAL.
20. DAY not dad. The clue suggests a case of pure chance, as in the DAY's weather. Why should dad just "happen" to be gloomy, etc?
24. BABE not bale. He certainly shouldn't drop a BABE! It may be quite all right to drop the bale when he wishes to put it down.
25. ABUSED not amused. Aptly, when ABUSED, one may possibly be determined not to show anger, etc. On the other hand, it is't so much a case of not showing a "response" to being amused, as of concealing one's amusement, or pretending not to be amused.
27. RUSH not rash. The question of overwork links up better with RUSH. Dealing with a rash is a matter of ordinary medical competence. Also, why a "doctor for instance" (as if a variety of professional men might have to deal with one)?

CLUES DOWN

2. METTLE not fettle. One cannot have had previous experience of an opponent's fettle, which is his present state of fitness, as one can know his METTLE or inherent quality.
4. CURB not cure. Since there is little question of any real cure, "CURB" is the more realistic answer.
12. COLT not cult. A cult is itself a faith, rather than something one can have "faith in" — as a horse enthusiast can have faith in a particular COLT.
14. BOA not bob or boy. A feather BOA is a old-fashioned item of attire that might be found quaint. A bob is not all that odd looking, nor is it untoward for anyone to be in the company of a boy.
16. WASTED not wanted. Any possible extra speed in the actual running is wanted, [illegible] it will only be WASTED if the time is lost in passing the baton to the next runner.
18. LOAD not road. Since the LOAD is a retarding factor, this answer is more to the point than road.
19. WRENCH not French. The idea of being "good with" something one "uses" suits a tool (WRENCH) perfectly. The man will speak good French, or be good at French, rather.
21. NINE not nice. "NICE" (implying a protracted performance) link up better with the idea of tedium. In any case, the songs aren't nice as far as person who doesn't appreciate them is concerned.

Westwood Denies Conflict of Interest

North Saanich Mayor George Westwood Tuesday denied suggestions that conflict of interest was involved in his voting on the status of land belonging to a former campaign worker.

He was referring to 16acres of land owned by Donald and Jacqueline Wilson, 9299 Canora Road.

Mrs. Wilson was on Westwood's campaign committee in 1977.

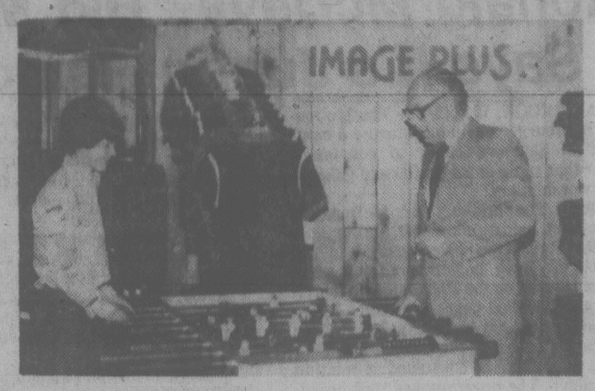

Westwood was the only member of council who voted against a council proposal requesting the provincial cabinet to return the land to agricultural status. The property recently was taken out of the agricultural land reserve by the B.C. Land Commission.

Farmer O.B. Philp, Westwood's opponent in the last election, said Tuesday it was "odd that the mayor in this particular instance would not vote with the rest of council when the rest of council is going to support the community plan."

Westwood said the way he voted had nothing to do with Mrs. Wilson.

Go to your drug store and ask for the Naran Reducing Plan. The whole plan is included in every package. The directions are right on the label. Pour the liquid into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day as needed. Take the vitamin supplement included and follow the low calorie weekly food menu.
Your first purchase should show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; reducible pounds and inches of excess fat should disappear from neck, chin, arms, hips, abdomen, calves and ankles. If you are not completely satisfied with your first purchase just return the empty carton for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan to help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears, how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Dalton Appointed

The chief superintendent of the B.C. division of the RCMP has been appointed to the three member police commission.

Gordon Dalton, a 32-year veteran with the force, replaces Geoffrey Mortimer who was named chairman of the commission.

Dalton, 52, has been in Victoria since becoming chief superintendent in 1977. He was based here once before in 1967 following his promotion to inspector.

The police commission is responsible for policing standards, research, recruitment, training and disciplinary judgment of matters regarding police conduct.

Ronald McDevil? Big Mac Says It's Just a Rumor

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — The McDonald's hamburger chain has started a campaign in Southern cities to counter a rumor that some of its profits are going to devil worshippers.

Doug Timberlake, a McDonald's spokesman, said rumors that McDonald's founder Ray Kroc gives profits to the Church of Satan began spreading after Kroc appeared on the Phil Donahue television talk show last year.

Donahue, based in Chicago, said Kroc was the only guest on the show and nothing on the show could be construed as relating to the devil. The program was first broadcast in May, 1977, and rerun last summer.

Kroc was unavailable for comment.

Timberlake said he appeared Monday before the Birmingham Baptist Ministers Association and has made similar presentations in two other Southern cities.

He is planning to make another appearance to a group of influential people in Panama City, Fla., at a later date.

Timberlake said letters accusing Kroc of being a devil worshipper began arriving at McDonald's headquarters soon after the broadcast.

"People — including pastors — spread these rumors with no attempt at all to call us to check the validity of the report," Donahue said. "It's scary."

STICK 'EM UP - AND VICTIM REALLY DID

MONTREAL (CP) — A man who was charged with an armed holdup in which the victim's lips were sealed with Krazy Glue was freed Tuesday because the victim has disappeared.

Real Gaudreault, 28, appeared for trial before sessions court Judge Jean-Paul Dansereau but the prosecutor said all efforts to find the victim, Yves Chapedlaine, 25, since the preliminary hearing had failed.

Chapedlaine was held up on the street in the north end of the city last March by two armed men who stole $30 from him. They then told him not to move while one of them poured the glue on his lips and hands.

Gaudreault was arrested by police a few days later and was charged with armed robbery.

Father Refuses to Give Up

SEATTLE (AP) — The father of a mountain climbing accident victim is certain that his son is alive, and says he will prove it by climbing the mountain himself if necessary.

Bill Wilson flew here from his Denver home Tuesday after officials told him his 25-year-old son, Lloyd Wilson, and Dave Hedrick, both of Seattle, were killed when they fell into a North Cascades mountain crevasse Sunday.

"I told him there was no hope," Skagit County Coroner Colin Verner said after talking with the father.

"I know his capability of staying alive," insisted Wilson, who described his son, who holds a masters degree from the University of Calgary, as an experienced climber.

The two climbers were on a descent of the Forbidden Peak when they fell about 150 metres into the crevasse, according to climbers Pat Millegan and Michael Eastburn, who said they saw the fall from a distance.

Since Millegan and Eastburn could not reach the climbers, who fell from about the 2,700-metre level, they hiked out of the mountains for 18 hours and called rescue officials.

A rescue helicopter located the bodies in the crevasse Monday.

A United States Navy nurse, lowered from the helicopter on a hoist, came within about three metres of the two victims and determined they were dead.

Wilson said he was offering $1,000 to whomever reaches his son first. He said he and his older son Bruce, who accompanied him from Denver, intend to climb to the accident scene if necessary.

"Mr. Wilson really does not understand this country," said Jensen. He said just to reach the bodies would take from 12 to 18 hours of steady travel. Officials intended to bring the bodies out with ground parties, he said, but poor weather has delayed their attempts.

Wilson, who said he was a former law enforcement official, claimed he had climbing experience. But Mrs. Wilson, still in Denver, said Lloyd was the only mountain climber in the family.

Carter Says Sadat Has Eye on Target

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says he is confident President Anwar Sadat of Egypt will not let "any single element" in dispute with Israel over the West Bank and Gaza stand in the way of an Egyptian-Israeli treaty.

On domestic issues raised at a news conference Tuesday, the president warned that he would not hesitate to veto a $29.6-billion tax cut approved by the Senate but would accept a compromise that comes closer to the $16.3-billion House of Representatives version.

The president said he planned to work with House and Senate tax leaders starting today in an effort to reach a compromise he could sign.

Carter was asked about reports that Israel and Egypt disagree about the linkage between the two parts of the Camp David agreement.

Sadat has said the agreements are linked. Israel says they are not contingent upon each other.

Carter had some support for both sides. He said that there was no "legal" interconnection between the Sinai agreement and the disputed West Bank and Gaza agreement.

But he said, "In the minds of myself, Prime Minister (Menachem) Begin (of Israel) and President Sadat, they are inter-related." That apparently referred to a mutual understanding developed at the Camp David talks.

Carter will be host at a new round of peace talks at the White House starting Thursday. He met Tuesday afternoon with an Israeli delegation headed by Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan to go over the details.

Carter said at least two aspects of the West Bank and Gaza plan are still unresolved.

One is whether Israel agreed to a three-month or five-year moratorium on new settlements. Another is the U.S. answers to the questions raised by King Hussein of Jordan, who so far has refused to join the talks.

Carter said he will not meet with Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith and his black partners in the "internal settlement." Smith is in the United States trying to raise public support for his regime.

The president also said he is not familiar with a bargain Smith says he struck in 1976 with then-state secretary Henry Kissinger. Smith says that bargain promised him diplomatic recognition and economic relations if he agreed to majority rule, which he says he has done.

Tube Baby Beats Crowd, Goes Home

CALCUTTA (AP) — Durga Agarwal, the world's second test-tube baby, was brought to her south Calcutta home secretly today to avoid the excitement of a curious crowd, her family reported.

The welcome was warm but quiet, said grandfather Purushottam Agarwal, 59. Lacking was the traditional sounding of a conch shell and blessings from a pandit, or Hindu priest.

"Our family pandit will fix up a suitable date for celebration," Agarwal said. He said it will be held after one of the three doctors responsible for the laboratory conception returns from a hill resort later this month.

Durga, daughter of Pravat Kumar Agarwal, 36, and his 31-year-old wife, Bela, was named for a Hindu goddess who is believed to combat evil. She was born Oct. 3, shortly before a holiday honoring the female deity.

The three Calcutta researchers — Saroj Kanti Bhattacharya, Subhash Mukherjee and Sunit Mukherjee — devised a procedure different from the one which led to the July 25 birth in Oldham, England, of Louise Brown, believed to be the first baby conceived outside the human body.

Mrs. Agarwal, like Mrs. Brown, had blocked Fallopian tubes which prevented normal conception, and the condition could not be corrected.

Tindemans To Resign

BRUSSELS (AP) — Premier Leo Tindemans announced today he will hand in his resignation to King Baudouin because of a dispute in his four-party coalition government over an economic policy calling for regionalization of the country.

The coalition came to power in June, 1977, facing a serious economic crisis. Part of the government's program was to enforce regionalization to give more autonomy to Flemish sections of the country.

Disagreement erupted during a parliamentary debate on how to enforce the regionalization and whether it violates the constitution.

Warden's Ruling Upheld by Court

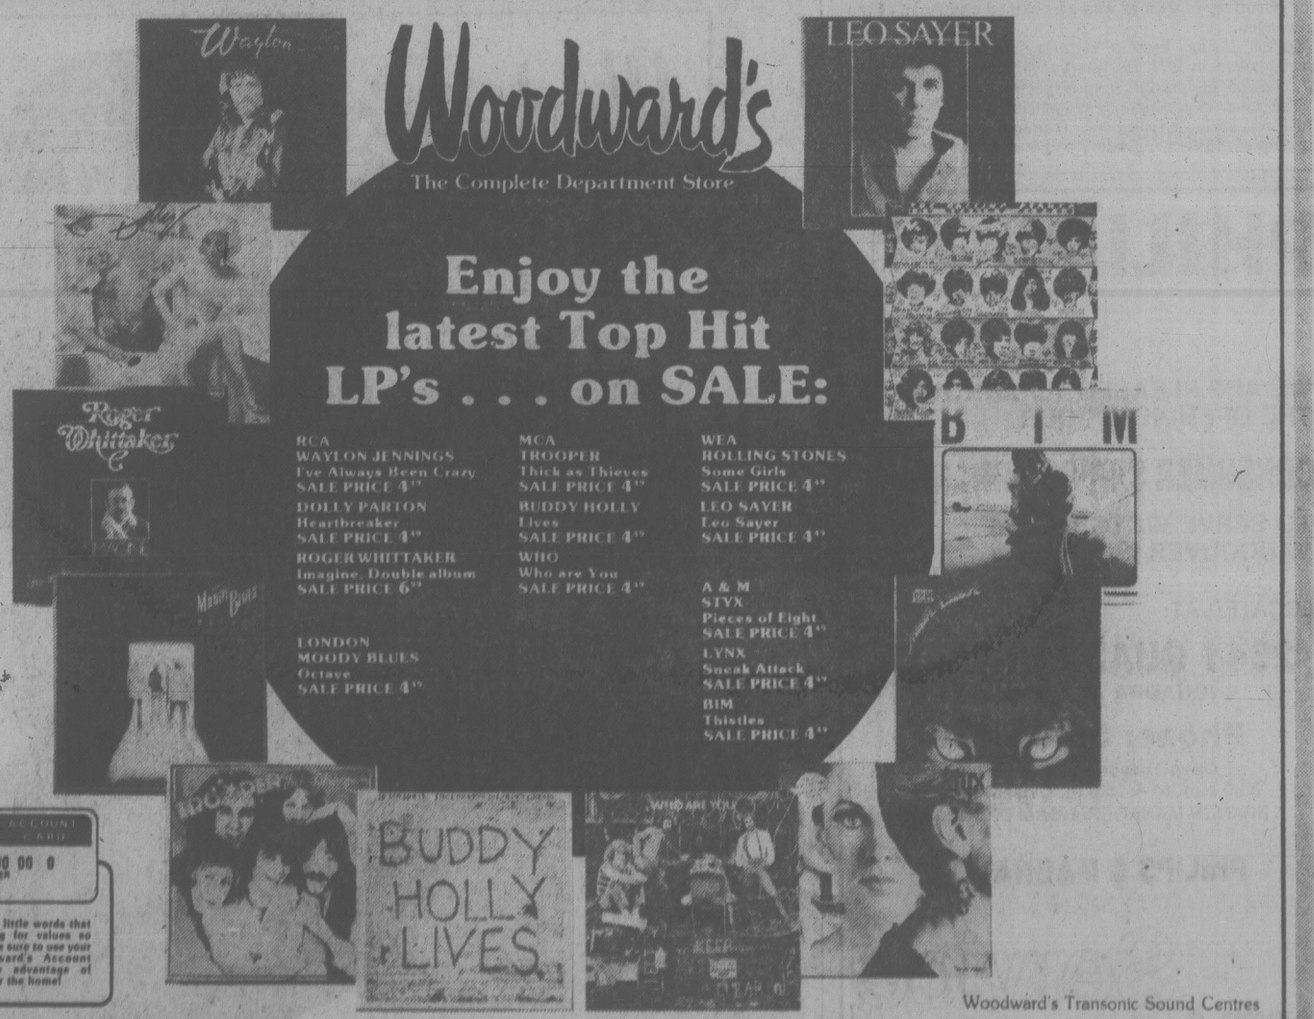

VANCOUVER (CP) — The warden of the Lower Mainland Regional Corrections Centre had the legal right to end the visiting privileges of a prisoner rights activitist, a British Columbia Supreme Court judge ruled Tuesday.

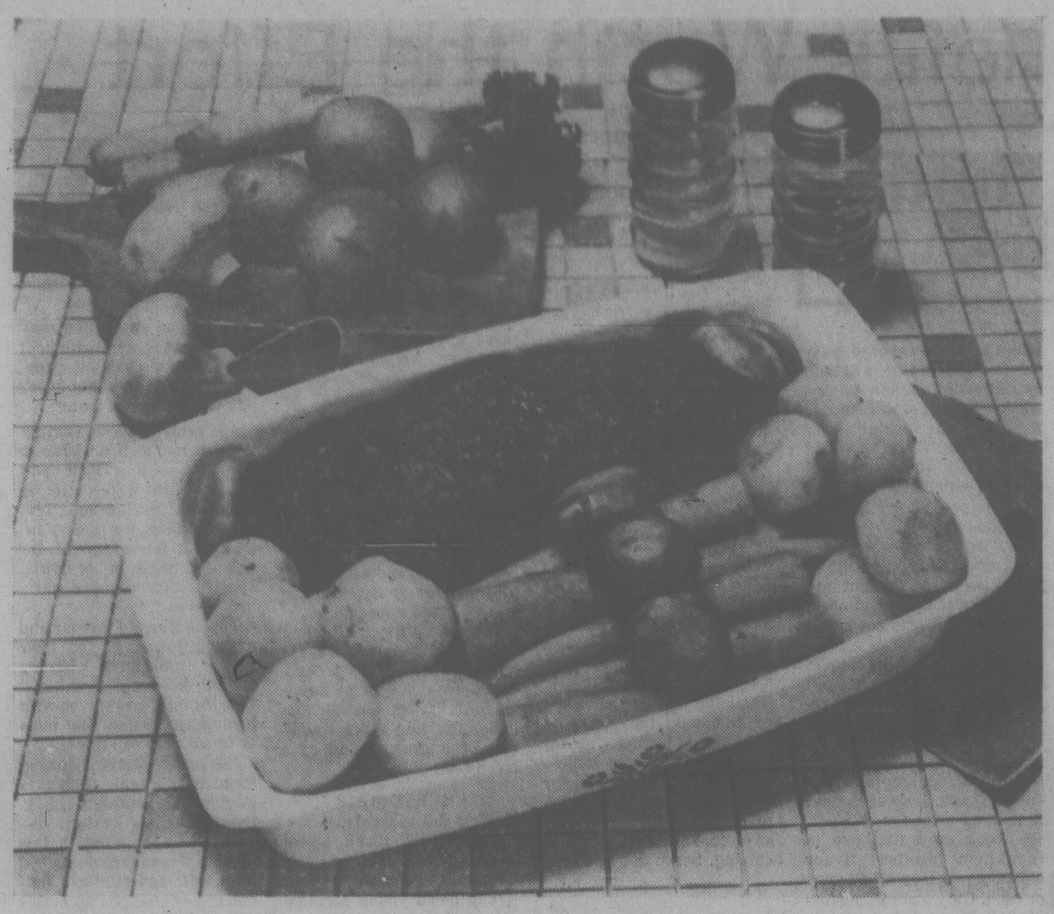

Claire Culhane had launched a lawsuit against the provincial attorney-general and warden Edward Harrison to quash Harrison's decision that she was no longer permitted to visit the women's section of the prison.

In quashing Culhane's suit, Mr. Justice G. S. Rae said "whether you may or may not visit a prison depends on permission of the Crown."

Harrison told Culhane in a letter March 10 her visiting privileges had been discontinued because her visits were "not in the best interest of the institutions."

Mr. Justice Rae stressed that the question of whether it is desirable or not to have members of the public visiting the prisons was not before him in the case.

Tight Budgets Stretched By Vegetable-Meat Loaf

Fresh vegetables with meat loaf provide a great break for the budget

By KAY SPICER

If your food budget is tight these days — and most everyone's is — our Fresh Vegetable Meat Loaf Dinner suggestion stands ready to come to your rescue. This is the season for new potatoes, tantalizing tubers which create menu excitement. Their familiar habits are a daily delight and you'll score some great hits with the soft-spoken taste of nutritious potatoes that never become tiresome.

Although potatoes pioneered in the Western Hemisphere, sheer hunger shaped their future. The Irish were the first to recognize their food value when the Royal Society of Great Britain introduced them into the land of leprechauns to avoid periodic famines in that great country. Potatoes didn't always rate the prime positions on menus that they do today. Not only were they once thought to be poisonous, a group of devout Presbyterians viewed them with disfavor because no mention of the crop was made in the Bible.

Long since a worldwide favorite, thanks to growing methods which have been perfected over the years, highly digestible potatoes have a thoroughly satisfying flavor plus a useful amount of vitamin C and other nutrients.

New potatoes are in top form. Cook them with jackets on or off as suits your mood. They make the meal in our glorious Spring Special featuring that age-old favorite, Meat Loaf, travelling with such stellar companions as fresh carrots and mushrooms. You'll love the combination. New potatoes go their basic ways with a kicky-Parmesan-cheese-butter sauce that gives this delightful vegetable tasty "pick-up-and-go."

FRESH VEGETABLE MEAT LOAF DINNER

2 pounds new potatoes
1 pound fresh carrots
2 eggs
¼ cup milk
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2 teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups fresh bread crumbs
½ cup chopped fresh onions
¼ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup snipped fresh parsley
1½ pounds ground beef chuck
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
½ pound fresh mushrooms

Wash and pare potatoes. Scrape carrots, if necessary. Cook potatoes and carrots in small amount boiling salted water in covered saucepan 10 minutes. Drain, if necessary. Reserve. Beat eggs; stir in milk, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper. Mix in crumbs, onions, green pepper, parsley and meat. Shape into a meat loaf. Place in large shallow baking pan. Bake in 375°F. oven 15 minutes. Place potatoes and carrots around meat. Drizzle butter or margarine over vegetables. Return to oven and bake 30 minutes. Wash mushrooms; drain well. Arrange mushrooms with vegetables in baking pan. Bake 15 minutes longer. Makes 6 servings.

MEW POTATOES ITALIENNE

2 pounds new potatoes
¼ cup butter or margarine
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

Wash potatoes. Cover and cook in small amount of boiling salted water until just tender. Drain, if necessary. Meanwhile, melt butter or margarine; mix in cheese. Drizzle over potatoes. Makes 6 servings.

FOOD & nutrition

President's Pudding

1 tablespoon butter or margarine
3 cups hot cooked rice
4 eggs, separated
2 cups milk
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
⅛ teaspoon salt
Lemon Sauce*

Stir butter into rice. Beat yolks and add half-and-half, milk, sugar, lemon peel, vanilla, and salt. Fold in egg whites which have been beaten until stiff but not dry. Turn into a buttered shallow 2-quart baking dish. Set in pan of hot water. Bake at 350° for 1 hour or until knife inserted near centre comes out clean. Serve with Lemon Sauce. Makes 8 servings.

LEMON SAUCE

½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 cup boiling water
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
3 tablespoons lemon juice

Combine sugar, cornstarch, and salt. Stir in water gradually. Cook, stirring constantly, about 5 minutes. Blend in remaining ingredients.

Homemade Soup's Benefits Worth the Effort

Soups made at home need take no longer than 15 to 20 minutes of cooking if they have been planned while doing another more routine job. The benefit of regulating the ingredients to suit one's own or the family's needs and knowing what the soup contains far exceeds the time taken in preparation.

Cooler days, plentiful garden vegetables and keener appetites bring the desire for homemade soups. They cost so little to make and can be varied so easily with whatever vegetables happen to be on hand that it seems wasteful to think of buying substitutes.

In commercial soups the salt content is high as an aid to prolong shelf life, white flour is commonly used as thickener and spices are usually added freely for extra flavoring. Many people are today on a salt restricted diet. Indeed with plentiful fresh vegetables very little extra salt is required. In place of some spices, dried or fresh herbs can be used at home to suit personal tastes. Dozens of different soups can be made at home if there is always in the cupboard one pound split green peas, one pound yellow split peas, one pound of soy grits, a box of brown rice and a bag of macaroni. Other items that increase nutrient values in soup come from those many of us use in other daily food.—raw peanuts, wheat germ, wheat bran, brewer's yeast (torula yeast) —• these also are frequently included in soups made at home to improve quality and flavor.

Liquid added to homemade soups will be vegetable cooking juices left from a previous meal or two. This liquid is referred to as vegetable stock. Even a few tablespoons from different vegetables kept in a covered glass jar in refrigerator will add extra flavor and the vitamins which were water-soluble from previous vegetables.

The liquid from cooking potatoes (in their scrubbed skins or without the skins) is particularly flavorful and pleasant.

I seldom have any quantity left from cooking vegetables so put the small amount into the soup near the end of cooking so the flavor is not boiled away.

As an aid to making soup in a hurry, cook a cup of split peas and a cup of rice together until tender and store it in a jar or a covered bowl in refrigerator. Use it within three days, making a different vegetable soup each day. If making soup for one person, cook up a half cup of each item together; if for more servings, cook two cups of each. Only a small portion of this is needed as thickener.

If enough of the grain mixture is used to make a really thick combined dish, it is lovely piled on top of a cheese sandwich to make a complete meal for it contains proteins, vitamins and useful amounts of minerals.

GOLDEN SOUP

½ cup yellow split peas and brown rice (cooked) vegetable stock or water to cover
¼ cup fine sliced yellow beans or a few fresh green peas
¼ cup small diced yellow squash a pinch of curry powder and of salt half a fresh lemon slice

The first time I used the lemon it happened to be a piece left on a salad plate, so it was dropped into this soup with the vegetables and removed before serving. The difference in final flavoring with the currie made the soup unusually delicious. Now I use a tiny piece of lemon often with the lighter flavored vegetable soups.

Heat the cooked split peas and rice with the water or stock until boiling, meanwhile preparing vegetables. Add them to the pan; boil for 15 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Add curry, salt and lemon. Stir well until just bubbling. Serve hot in 2 or 3 soup bowls, removing lemon.

With the cooked split peas (either yellow or green) and brown rice as a base, try your own vegetable combinations. Use whatever small quantity is available — a handful of peas from their pods, a dozen edible pea-pods, small fresh carrots, a grated beet or turnip, tiny boiled potatoes peeled after cooking, a chunk of cucumber, cabbage or squash — all have value in soup-making. Some may be leftover cooked vegetables but with these make a rule to add something fresh and green five minutes before cooking is finished. Parsley, chervil, chives, green lettuce leaves, comfrey or kale tips, all these are food sources of vitamins and minerals.

Taking a little more time but well worth it is Cheese Soup. This may be a one-course meal in a double broiler, for it has enough nutrition to be satisfying with the addition of a green salad or a fresh fruit dessert.

CHEESE SOUP

2 Tbsp soft margarine
¼ cup finely diced sweet onion
¼ cup diced carrots
¼ cup diced young zucchini squash
¼ cup fine cut celery stem and leaves
2 Tbsp wholewheat flour
2 cups vegetable stock or water
½ cup skim milk powder
1 cup grated Cheddar cheese
1 cup warm water if needed

Melt margarine in upper pan of double boiler. Add onion; cook until tender. Add remaining vegetables, cook a little with lid on but do not let scorch. They should be soft.

Stir in flour to thicken; add stock or water gradually, stirring constantly with wooden spoon to prevent lumps. Add the skim milk powder, stir to dissolve.

Up to this point, pan may be in direct contact with heat but will need constant attention. Now put pan into lower pan containing hot water.

Add grated cheese, stirring while it melts; if desiring to thin the soup a little add enough warm water, stirring to smooth. But do boil. Test for seasoning, use a very little salt, a few grains of dry mustard. Serve in hot bowls, sprinkle with chopped parsley. Serves 4.

This is a lovely flavour and quite different if you have never considered having cheese in soup. Combined with the milk and served with homemade wholewheat buns or bread, you will like it.

For another quite different soup, make Peanut Soup as is used in the southern U.S.A. though this is a western version. Use vegetables, a few pieces of macaroni cooked until soft, and stir in a half cup of unsalted peanut butter and a squeeze of lemon.

In these soups don't hesitate to add or substitute other vegetables you have in the house or garden. By adding the one or two unusual ingredients (the lemon, peanut butter, cheese) you are sure to create an unusually delicious soup that becomes a favorite. One of them may be the one your family asks for to fill the soup thermos in the lunch box.

SEIZED BEER TO AGED

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — There was be free beer the other day at 14 old-age homes in Indiana.

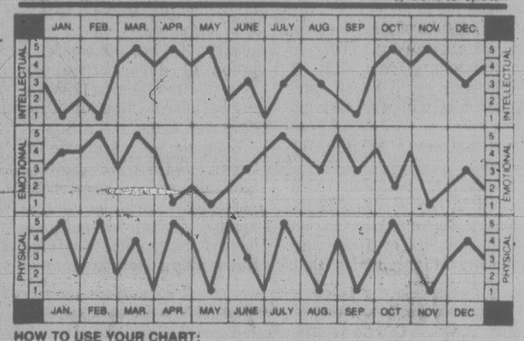

That was because 225 cases of beer confiscated in a raid on the city's west side earlier this month were distributed to the nursing homes.

Police Chief Phillip Sanders said he is pleased the beer went "to those who can't otherwise afford the pleasure of a beer now and then."

Bio-dex

BIO-DEX for Oct. 12/78 — By Ken J. Michaels — Your computerized biorhythm

©BIODEX PRODUCTIONS 1978 — Dist. by Toronto Sun Syndicate

HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

Locate your month of birth. The dots on each graph highlight your biorhythm readouts. Check the scales on the left or right for your Intellectual, Emotional and Physical factors, from 1 to 5. Add these three numbers to obtain your Bio-dex. The Bio-dex is computed on average population age based on official Government statistics.

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle- By going slowly you will easily accomplish everything you set out to do.

6-10 Neutral Cycle- It's time to make some long range plans for the coming year. Try to include a holiday.

11-15 Positive Cycle- You're due for lots of surprises over the next few days. Money and romance could be involved.

A low intellectual and emotional combination means that your judgement is way off. When in this double-low period look for advice from your friends and colleagues. Remember that the young have fresh and innovative ideas, but advice from an older person has usually been tried and tested. People enjoy giving and it's smart to take advantage of their ideas when your own are affected by a low Bio-dex.

DEAR ABBY: I am a married woman who was never very close to my parents after my marriage. I was comfortable with the way things were, and so were they.

My mother died recently, and I would feel very hypocritical were I to suddenly smother my father with a lot of attention. I sat with him and the rest of the family every day and evening for the duration of the official mourning period (one week), and now that it's over I have resumed my life as before. My father is not helpless. He has always been very independent and he knows my phone number if he wants me.

My problem is my sister. She is making me feel very guilty because she is constantly with Dad. I don't feel that I have to compete with my sister by putting in equal time with Dad.

Please help me with some answers.—FEELING GUILTY

DEAR GUILTY: Guilt is a judgment we feel against ourselves. No one can make you feel guilty. If you feel guilty, you probably earned it.

It's just as well that you don't feel compelled to spend time with your grieving father in order to compete with your sister because he'd surely sense your insecurity, and your presence would offer him little comfort.

DEAR ABBY: You recently published a letter from a reader who suggested sprinkling mothballs on the lawn to keep dogs away.

The writer must not have had small children, because that is a very dangerous practice. My small son ate half a mothball at my mother-in-law's home and we had to rush him to the hospital to have his stomach pumped.

Although mothballs have a very unpleasant odor, they look like candy, and most children will eat anything that looks like it might taste good.

Abby, please tell your readers that children can die if they ingest mothballs. There must be a better way to keep dogs off one's lawn.—ALICE

DEAR ALICE: Thank you and all the others who wrote to urge me to retract that suggestion.

DEAR ABBY: I married a divorced Catholic in Mexico back in 1959. He said his church would not let him marry again, and this was the only way he could make our marriage legal.

In Mexico we found an office where a man was selling marriage applications for $25. We bought one and filled it out and signed it. The man who sold it to us also signed it, and that was that.

We split up after one year. What I want to know is this: Is that marriage still legal? Was it ever filed anywhere in the United States? Or are we married only in Mexico?

I haven't seen this man in 18 years and now want to marry a guy in a legitimate way. If I marry him without mentioning the Mexican marriage am I comitting bigamy?

I can't find any information about this in the library, and my wedding date is drawing near. Sign me—"WAS DUMB AT 23"

DEAR WAS DUMB: Some Mexican marriages (and divorces) are valid and some are not. Play it safe and consult a lawyer. He (or she) will tell you — rapidamente.

Find Cause of Stones

Dr. L. L. COLEMAN

Three months ago I had an attack of kidney stones. The pain was awful until I passed the stone. Now I live in constant dread that it will happen again. — Mr. G.L.

Dear Mr. L.:

All members of the "kidney stone club" are most sympathetic with each other. The pain, indeed, can be excruciating. Yet having had one attack does not necessarily mean you will have another, especially if the underlying cause has been eliminated.

A kidney stone is composed of one or more chemicals. Phosphates, magnesium, and especially calcium and uric acid may be deposited anywhere in the urinary tract. The kidney, the ureter (which carries urine from the kidney to the bladder) and the bladder itself may have stone deposits.

Since the ureter is an extremely thin tube, the presence of a stone may distend or block it, and cause the severe radiating pain. Stones in the kidneys or in the bladder are rarely as painful as those in the ureter.

There are a number of possible causes of kidney stones. A prime one is faulty metabolism (breakdown of foods). Some people who have gout with a high uric acid content of the blood can tend to develop uric acid stones. Infections of the kidneys and the bladder are common causes for stone formation. Some anatomical kinking of the ureters may also be responsible.

Having had this most unpleasant experience, you will, I am certain, continue under the supervision of your doctor to establish its exact cause. If you do so, you will preclude the possibility of further attacks. To live with a constant threat of a recurrence of a kidney stone attack can be psychologically destructive.

We have a 6-year-old child who dominates the whole household. How does one go about unspoiling a spoiled child? We've tried punishment and depriving her of privileges. Nothing works. Other children find her obnoxious. She demands everything. We're at our wit's end. — Mrs. T.G.

Dear Mrs. G.:

I'm sure you realize that you're at least five years late in starting the "unspoiling" mechanism. It's so easy to fall into the trap of indulging a young child. Soon they become imprinted with the attitude that they are the central nucleus of a world that revolves entirely around them.

When limitations are not placed on them, they feel that they have a right to expect anything they ask for. It's a well-established psychological rule that children thrive on love and the reasonable limits they are expected to observe. Punishment and deprivation are not the ideal ways to handle such a problem. Instead, I suggest you find a well-trained person in your community who can do psychometric studies on your child and, after evaluating them, make concrete suggestions for a regime that will "unspoil" . . . if you are able to adhere to that regime.

Common ¢ents

By KATE MacQUEEN

Even though you don't use your tape recorder, transistor radio, flashlight, anything that's battery-powered, very often, check the batteries every now and then. Batteries left in items for long periods can leak and damage mechanical parts that are more expensive to replace than new, fresh batteries.

Hosiery Promoted

NEW YORK (CP) — Two hosiery companies are planning multi-million-dollar campaigns to promote new images for women wearing their products. Burlington Ltd. is promoting a "sexy sell," depicting pantyhose as glamorous and sensual, while Kellwood Co. is promoting a "gutsy lady" theme in advertisements.

Turkey Burger Push May Sell More Birds

TORONTO (CP) — Turkey burgers, turkey kebab and turkey ham are just some of the products being offered by the poultry industry in an effort to increase consumption beyond Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners.

Average Canadian consumption of turkey is nine pounds a year compared to 33 pounds for chicken and 110 pounds for beef.

Don McKenzie, executive vice-president of the Canadian Poultry and Egg Processors Council, said in an interview that more than 50 per cent of the turkeys purchased in Canada are used for Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners.

"The problem is that most stores sell an entire turkey carcass. It's different with other meats — you don't have to buy a whole cow if you want a steak."

The Canadian Turkey Marketing Agency spent $150,000 on newspaper advertisements in August to promote the use of turkey parts.

Jack Dampsy, public relations manager for Canada Packers Ltd., said his company is packaging turkey legs, wings and breasts for retail customers but that wasted necks and giblets add to the price.

Cuddy Food Products Ltd. of London, Ont., is marketing turkey burgers, turkey ham and turkey salami.

"A year ago, no one believed that we could make a turkey ham," said Robert Cuddy, company president. "Now we're selling 7,000 pounds a week to food service outlets all over Ontario."

Turkey ham is made from dark meat soaked in brine, blended in a mixture of spices and smoked.

Cuddy's latest venture is frozen turkey burgers that sell for $2.80 for a two-pound box.

John Toma, senior marketing vice-president of Dominion Stores Ltd., said it was difficult to get shoppers to try the burgers.

Hans Ledage, food and beverage supervisor for Commonwealth Holiday Inns, said he thinks the new turkey products have a terrific future.

"These dishes allow us to give our guests a complete dinner for $5.95 to $6.95. That's good value for their money."

They Live Alone, Eat Alone and Like It eating right

By RUTH FREMES and ZAK SABRY

In a previous column, we asked readers who live and eat alone to write to us of their experiences and the problems that living and eating alone might present. The response of our readers was prompt and overwhelming.

M. M. of Toronto wrote to say, "I just hit 56 last month and would like to tell you how much I enjoy my retirement. So many people sit home with nothing to do and get grumpier every day. I have got so much to do and interesting things, too, I don't know where the time goes.

Firstly, I belong to a fitness club and go three times a week to swim and exercise. Lots of "old" people will ask what for; many think they will look ridiclous; many don't own a gym or swim suit. I think one has to push a bit, but once you are in the swing of things, you will enjoy them, believe me. Would I do it three times a week if I did not like it?"

"I do my cooking in the morning after breakfast; get a casserole ready, or precook something and divide it into 3 or 4 containers ready to be reheated (one stays in the ridge for supper, the others in the freezer). I clean vegetables, make fruit salad, prepare vegetables for a green salad, wash up everything and leave the kitchen clean with little work to do after dinner.

I often make a big pot of soup and divide it to have soup every night. Twice a week I have vegetarian dinners, the rest is meat, seldom fish. I don't like the smell of fish in the house, so I eat it when I go out. Yes, I do eat out once in a while. There are lovely places where a woman can go alone.

Once a week is "downtown" day for me. I get dressed up, go window-shopping and have a nice lunch somewhere. It makes me feel good with hair nicely made up, some makeup, nice dress and shoes, and I can walk everywhere. There are lovely stores with many things to see. I don't have to buy, but may get ideas to make something, sew, crochet or knit."

Clearly, our reader has many things going for her. She wrote of her stamp collection, pen pals and luncheon outings with friends. She also included some of her cooking tips and recipes, two of which were:

(1) The great stretch: Soak Yellow split lentils about 2 hours (not overnight). Do this when you get up and before you start cleaning up. Boil them for about 20 minutes and put in the fridge. In the evening, lightly fry small onion, add curry (about 1 tsp.), mix with lentils and allow to simmer for about 10 minutes.

Have this dish for dinner with poached egg, or just some pickles, or some meat, wieners or salami, what have you. The rest of the recipe gets divided, stays in the fridge or in the freezer in serving portions. It's a good staple food.

(2) Boil macaroni, any type you like, about 10 mins., and strain. Mix in a bowl: 2 eggs, some smoked meat, or again wieners or salami, green onion. Divide macaroni into servings (nice for visitors, so make some couple servings in one dish) put layer of plain macaroni, fill with egg-meat mix, put cheese or tomatoes or bacon on top, bake in the oven for about 20 min. at 350°F. Do not bake the other servings, just put in the fridge, do not freeze. Bake only as needed. It is good for 2 to 4 days. Serve with a nice salad. I am great for salads, love them.

We also received a letter from P.D.S. of Willowdale, Ont., who became interested in cooking for one when he became a middle-aged bachelor. He searched for a practical method to solve the irritation of hurried, boring meals. He rediscovered the art of slow cooking. As he said, "the method is not so new, it involves old cooking techniques first used in rural France . . . when probably there was only one pan or pot in the whole village." He uses low temperatures (143° to 205°F, depending on the cut) over long periods of time (about 10 hours) to bring meat or poultry to tender succulent perfection, even with cheap cuts, without risk of overcooking. His method provides a great versatility (set to cook before going to work and have a roast with vegetables or a tasty stew ready when you return). As he said, "It proves that 'singles' (and working couples) don't have to dine uninterestingly."

Many letters told of the determination of readers to live and eat right, even when faced with an alone lifestyle. Probably, a typical letter was that from J. B. of Toronto, in which she said, "I lost my dear husband just 2 months ago after a lengthy illness and hospital stay. It has, of course, made a great change in my lifestyle, but not in my eating habits.

I still follow Weight Watchers program, although I am not able to attend classes due to transportation difficulties, now that I no longer have a chauffeur. I am taking driving lessons, and as soon as I get a license I'll go back to my classes.

Breakfast consists of a large glass of tomato juice, a slice of toast, a soft boiled egg (4 mornings per week) or 2 ounces of cheese (for 2 mornings) or cereal with milk (the other morning). I carry a lunch of a small salad, 4 ounces of tuna or salmon, a fruit and a container of yogurt. Dinner is usually 4 ounced of fish or chicken, vegetables, a slice of bread with margarine, and fruit for dessert. Occasionally, this is varied with beef, and once a week with liver. A bedtime snack is a glass of skim milk, sometimes flavored with cocoa.

I make it a point to set a place at the table for myself at each meal, albeit in the kitchen rather than the dining area. I use skim milk powder and mix a litre at a time.

While I must confess that I have not lost any weight since my husband's illness, I haven't gained any either. My doctor is happy with my blood pressure, which was at one time 200/110, but is now 140/85. I don't fry anything, my fish is broiled, and the chicken is stewed or baked. The liver is boiled, which may sound horrible to some, but I like it that way. I use a minimum amount of salt and no sugar.

I find that on this regime, I have as much energy and feel as well at 63 as I did at 21. I made up my mind that I will go on living even though I grieve my dead husband."

If4. Dr. Z. I. Sabry is a professor of nutrition at the University of Guelph. Ruth Fremes is a home economist, radio and television commentator, and with Dr. Sabry wrote NutriScore published by Methuen Publications.

Widow Files $4M Suit

CHICAGO (UPI) — A pilot and an airplane passenger have been sued for $4 million by the widow of a man who was struck and killed by a low-flying airplane as he rode his motorcycle.

Brenda Cruise, 20, Lake Village, Ind., whose husband William, 22, was killed in Newton County, Ind., Sept. 2, filed suit in Cook County Circuit Court.

The defendants, Melvin Young, 52, and Paul Rice, 33, both of Chicago, were charged with "careless and negligent" operation of the plane.

There's Nothing Hard About Grilled Salmon

By PIERRE FRANEY
New York Times

A whole salmon properly steamed requires time and effort, but the preparation proposed here is is not complicated.

GRILLED DILLED SALMON FILLETS

2 pounds boneless fillets, preferably with the skin left intact
¼ cup peanut, vegetable or corn oil
3 tablespoons finely chopped dill
Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste
4 tablespoons melted butter
4 thin slices lemon for garnish
Parsley sprigs for garnish.

1. Cut the salmon into four pieces of approximately the same size and weight. Put the pieces in a dish and add the oil, dill, salt and pepper. Blend well.
2. Refrigerate briefly, turning the pieces in the marinade several times.
3. Preheat the broiler.
4. Arrange the pieces of fish in one layer on an unheated broiler tray. Place the fish under the broiler about two or three inches away from the source-of heat.
5. Broil about four minutes or just until the pieces are cooked through. It is not necessary to turn the pieces. Brush with melted butter. Garnish with lemon slices and parsley sprigs.

Yield: 4 servings.

POTATOES A LA CREME WITH PEAS

4 potatoes, about 1¼ pounds
Salt to taste
1 cup milk
Freshly ground pepper to taste
Teaspoon grated nutmeg
2 cups fresh or frozen green peas
Cup chopped scallions

1. Put the potatoes in a saucepan with water to cover and salt to taste. Bring to the boil and simmer over high heat for 30 minutes or longer or until tender without being mushy.
2. When cool enough to handle, peel the potatoes and cut them into quarter-inch rounds. There should be about four cups.
3. Put the slices in a saucepan and add the milk and cream.
4. Place on the heat and add salt, pepper and nutmeg. Bring to the boil and simmer over high heat about five minutes.

Meanwhile, if fresh peas are to be used, cook them in boiling salted water until tender. Drain and add them to the potatoes in cream. Add the scallions and stir. Cook about one minute.

Chou Speech Reprint Claimed Anti-Mao Ploy

PEKING (Reuter) — China has taken another step to demolish the aura surrounding Mao Tse-tung by publishing an old speech by late Premier Chou En-lai saying Mao must not be regarded as a god.

The speech was made to the first national youth congress on May 7, 1949 — some months before the Communist state was proclaimed — and its appearance in the newspaper People's Daily is further proof that Mao's role and influence is being re-examined.

Chou warned his audience not to believe everything written about the Chinese Communist party's founding chairman and said that Mao himself was not dogmatic about the correctness of his policies.

Both men died in 1976 and Chou has been built up in the last two years as a great national hero while Mao has been downgraded.

"In learning from Mao Tse-tung," Chou said in the 1949 speech, "we must not take him as mystic leader from whom he cannot learn; we must not take him as a unique godhead."

Chou said Mao as a young man had "superstitutions and other backward ideas."

Mao believed in God as a child, Chou said:

Mao's "greatness is that he roused himself from superstitions and has the daring to admit his past."

Prisoners Freed

FRANKFURT, West Germany (Reuter) — East Germany has released more than 1,000 political prisoners this year and allowed them to leave for the West.

BARGE CHRISTENING SET

A $14-million self-propelled log barge built at Yarrows shipyard here for MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. will be christened Friday.

Mrs. J.T. Macaulay, wife of the superintendent engineer of Kingcome Navigation Co. Ltd., MB's marine subsidiary, will wield the champagne bottle on the bow of the Haida Brave at 4:30 p.m.

The 398-foot vessel, one year abuilding, is the second such barge built by MB. She is smaller than the first, the Haida Monarch. Her carrying capacity is 28 million board feet — about two thirds that of the older ship.

She is powered by 7,200-horsepower diesels and can run at 12 knots. Comparable tug and barge equipment make about eight knots under load.

Police Decoy Loses Purse While on Duty

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto police lost a purse and a suspect when a policewoman in civilian clothing, acting as a decoy to lure purse snatchers, was robbed of her purse.

A police spokesman said that a suspect grabbed the purse and outran policemen chasing him.

CARCINOGEN LIST NEED STRESSED

OTTAWA (CP) — As far as Canada is concerned, there is not even a list of cancer-causing substances affecting employees, says Ken Eaton of the federal labor department's international and provincial relations branch.

The problem is a crucial one, Eaton said, in a recent interview and United States government scientists last month said occupational exposure to cancerous substances probably causes at least 20 per cent of all cancer deaths in that country.

That figure is conservative, they said, and estimates run as high as 38 per cent, with asbestos singled out as the most dangerous.

Howard Currie, director-general of the newly-formed Canadian centre for occupational health and safety which makes its public debut in Winnipeg next week, said the assessent and designation of hazards leading to occupational cancer will have to be tackled immediately.

The centre, established in April by Parliament, is neither a government department nor a Crown corporation.

The centre will have no regulatory powers. Currie says that "is our real strength," because as a self-governing organization it will not have to rely on departmental approval or bureaucratic red tape.

"One of the difficulties in Canada is there is no central source of good scientifically based data to advise regulators (about occupational hazards)," Currie said.

However, the Science Council of Canada last year published a series of reports on government policies for the containment of six poisons — asbestos, lead, mercury, oxides of nitrogen, radiation and vinyl chloride.

Included were recommendations for a similar national advisory council on occupational and environmental health to be responsible for publishing standards of maximum permissible levels for hazards including those already listed.

Referring in particular to asbestos and mercury, the council concluded the federal government is not aggressive enough in using whatever political muscle it has when the poison is concentrated in one province.

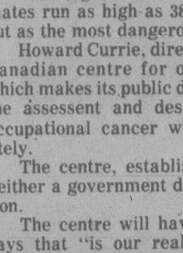

Jurisdictional problems have made mercury pollution in Northern Ontario difficult to deal with, the council said.

And in Quebec, many regulations on toxic elements such as asbestos and excessive number of administrators, make those regulations difficult to apply, one council report said.

Inhaled asbestos, which can damage lung cells and tissues, causes asbestosis. The potential hazard was first suggested in 1907, the council said.

TV Crime Plot Used

SANTA MONICA (AP) — An 18-year-old college student, who said he got the idea for his crime from watching television, pleaded guilty Tuesday to attempting to extort $150,000 from Walter Matthau by threatening to kill the actor's son.

During an arraignment before Superior Court Judge Edward Rafeedie, Kenneth Dahlinger pleaded guilty to a felony charge of sending a threatening letter with the intent of extorting money.

Deputy District Attorney James Grodin quoted Dahlinger as saying he got the idea from watching TV. Dahlinger said he picked Matthau after seeing an interview in which Matthau described a gambling problem.

Police said that in the type-written letter Dahlinger threatened to kill Matthau's 15-year-old son, Charles, unless Matthau left $150,000 at a designated drop site.

He was arrested two days later at the drop site.

Dahlinger, free on bail, faces up to four years in state prison when he appears in court again Nov. 7.

Exactly What Are Official Secrets?

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press

LONDON — A trial dragging on at the Old Bailey courthouse raises serious questions about the effectiveness of Britain's security policy and spotlights the confusion aout the controversial Official Secrets Act.

Charged in connection with transmitting or obtaining information useful to the enemy are John Berry, 34, a former Intelligence Corps corporal, and two journalists, Duncan Campbell, 26, and John Crispin Aubrey, 32.

Actually, it is a retrial ordered after the original judge in the case objected to comments about the case on a television program. A panelist on the show stated that the jury foreman was a former military security agent.

The television company apologized and Attorney-General Sam Silkin accepted the apology.

The case illustrates not only public confusion as to what constitutes an official secret, but shows the problems involved in prosecuting without divulging even further secrets.

The Crown has already charges against Campbell, that for a purpose prejudicial to the safety or interest of the state, he collected sketches, notes, documents and information concerning defence communications which might be directly or indirectly useful to an enemy.

Defence counsel argued that such information was already available from offical and semi-official publications.

Because the Crown would have to establish that the purpose of the collection was prejudicial, it decided to offer no evidence on the charge.

Hardly had the retrial begun when it went into camera following a ruling by the new judge that the name of an overseas signals regiment could be used in open court. The prosecutor argued that it would be undesirable for the unit to be identified as a communications intelligence group.

When the court went into camera, the public benches were cleared and news reporters were ushered out. Court officials put up shutters across the windows of the entrance doors.

After that, following more than an hour of private wrangling, the case was adjourned.

The question of how to keep a secret when no one will say exactly what the secret is, has also risen in the problems of Peter Laurie, a journalist who wrote the book Beneath The City Streets.

The book was published in the late 1960s, without official objection. Laurie quoted from publicly available sources in describing Britain's preparations for civil defence and emergency communications in a nuclear war.

The charge dropped against Campbell concerned material seized at Campbell's apartment. Among the material was the typescript for a second edition of the book, loaned to Campbell by Laurie.

In his second edition, Laurie had collided with the Official Secrets Act. He was advised that a total of 8,000 words in the revised edition was inclined to offend.

However, nobody in the defence ministry, the attorney-general's office or the Home Office would tell him what it was in these 8,000 words which offended.

To do so would be to give away the secrets, he was told.

If he went ahead and published, Laurie argues, the government would — if it charged him — have to put into evidence the information denied him. Wouldn't it be simpler to give him the information now so he could delete it from the book?

At commital proceedings, the Crown argued that the act of gathering information from published sources and then drawing conclusions from it could be an offence in itself even though none of the information was classified.

Laurie's theory is that nine years ago the main threat was generally judged to be from the Soviet Union, with its sophisticated intelligence capability. Now there are terrorist groups — with scanty intelligence services — to consider.

The British government, Laurie feels, may be growing increasingly cautious over the possibility that collections of facts — even non-secret facts — and the drawing of conclusions might be helpful to terrorist groups.

In the meantime, owners of Beneath The City Streets, 1969 edition, are rereading it and asking just where are the secrets?

Nicaragua Censors Ordered To Take A Holiday

MANAGUA (Reuter) — Nicaraguan government suspended media censorship Tuesday to pave the way for negotiations with opposition forces seeking a peaceful solution to the country's political conflict.

Radio newscasts and foreign correspondents' dispatches were transmitted without government censorship for the first time since President Anastasio Somoza last month declared martial law at the height of a bloody civil war.

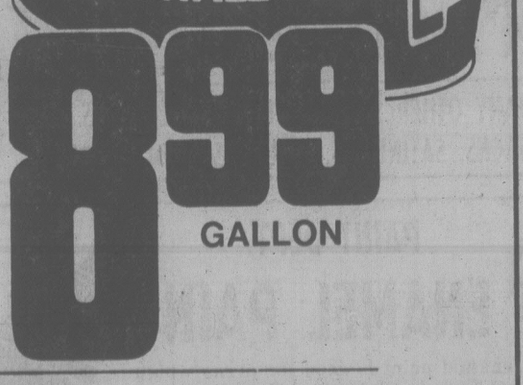

The opposition daily newspaper La Prensa, forced to halt publication due to heavy censorship, resumed publication.

Although the lifting of censorship was not officially decreed, government censors said they had been "ordered to take a holiday."

Information Secretary Rafael Cano said a presidential decree probably would be announced Thursday.

The opposition had demanded an end to censorship as a condition for opening negotiations with the government.

Holiday Rakes Airport Rental Rolict

OTTAWA (CP) — Government policy controlling the rental of airport concessions to car rental companies is unfair and imprecise, a London, Ont., car rental company said.

Holiday Rent-a-Car, a 10-year-old privately-owned company, which says it is the second largest car rental firm in the country, was excluded from all nine major airports in 1976, when Transport Canada last accepted bids for airport space.

James Tennant, the company's vice-president, made his comments in a brief to the transport department, which now is reviewing its 1976 airport car rental policy.

"Events and experience have conclusively proved that Transport Canada's current policy on car rental concessions at Transport Canada airports has been disastrous," he said.

The official in charge of rewriting the policy, D. K. Gerrie, said in an interview that Holiday's brief is one of hundreds of letters and briefs he has received from rental companies and individual franchise operators.

He said there is a good chance the briefs will result in major changes in the department's approach to renting space at airports to car rental companies.

Revisions

The new policy will not come into effect until the government moves into its next round of tenders in 1979, so it cannot be predicted now what revisions will be made, he said.

However, Gerrie outlined the areas the government now is preparing to examine:

- Should the number of car rental firms at international airports continue to be restricted to six?

- Should more preference be given to Canadian rental companies? If so, what should be the definition of a Canadian company?

- Should the criteria for examining the tenders submitted by competing companies be revised?

Holiday recommendsall Canadian car rental companies be given free access to airports. Only after the Canadian competitors have drawn lots for choice counters would bids of foreign rental firms for the remaining space be examined under the proposal.

The company also urges the government to be more realistic in assessing bids it receives from car rental companies. It say one of its competitors which was selected in the last round, Host Rent-a-Car submitted an obviously unattainable bid and subsequently fell $1 million into arrears in its rent payments to government.

Tennant also said the government rejected his firm's bid to accommodate an American-owned company.

"The clearly arbitrary decision to protect Avis resulted in a wholly-owned Canadian company, Holiday Rent-a-Car, being kept out of Canadian airports."

Franchised

Holiday now operates 100 franchise outlets at off-airport locations across the country. Its United States subsidiary, Holiday Rent-a-Car International Inc., with headquarters in Florida, has 50 offices in the U.S.

The existing policy, which came into effect in 1976, permitted six car rental companies to rent space for the next five years from the government in the nine international airports. These were Host Rent-a-Car, Avis, Tilden, Hertz, Budget and one local car rental company. At regional airports, four rental companies were allowed.

Gerrie said the government has just begun to analyze all the recommendations it has received since it asked for comments in August.

He said department officials have also been keeping an inventory of problems which have grown out of the 1976 policy.

Once a new policy is drafted, it will be sent to the rental companies for their comments.

"It has been a contentious industry," he said. "There may be areas of agreement, but in other areas, it doesn't seem possible."

The new rental contracts will be awarded by Jan. 1, 1980.

At major U.S. airports, car rental concessions vary from three to more than a dozen.

DRUG SEARCH OF MOMS-TO-BE

LONDON (AP) — Customs officers at British airports have been searching pregnant women in a hunt for drug smugglers since two U.S. women posing as mothers-to-be were caught carrying heroin under their maternity dresses.

"The searches are going to cause some discomfort and embarrassment, but they have to be done," a customs spokesman said Tuesday.

The two women were arrested Saturday at London's Heathrow Airport as they were about to board a plane for New York, the spokesman said. The heroin would have been worth about $3.6 million at street prices.

The Americans appeared before a magistrate Tuesday and were ordered detained. Their names were not released.

The seizure brought the total estimated street value of drugs intercepted in Britain this year to about $30 million. Last year the total was $4.75 million.

CIA Man's Sea Death A Mystery

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The mysterious case of a CIA consultant who was killed as he sailed alone in Chesapeake Bay threatened Tuesday to become another unsolved riddle of the sea. Seventeen days after former CIA agent John Paisley disappeared from his nine-metre sloop, police say they do not know whether he shot himself or was murdered, perhaps even by pirates.

"I couldn't begin to tell you how many leads we are tracking down," Maryland State Police spokesman Jerry Eiseman said in an interview.

To date, state police have assigned seven full-time investigators to track down a variety of leads, many of them resulting from stories turning up in the newspapers.

Paisley's yacht Brillig was found abandoned and aground near the mouth of the Potomac River on Sept. 25, its sails still set.

Several days later the owner's body floated to the surface of the bay about 25 kilometres away from the site, a bullet hole through the head and weighted down with two diving belts.

As the days passed, conflicting reports and findings emerged which cast doubt on the initial suicide theory:

—Where did the victim get the second diver's weighted belt when he was only known to own one?

—Why was there not a single clue aboard the Brillig, not even a blood spot, to indicate suicide or anything else?

—If it was a suicide, why did Paisley, an experienced sailor and scuba diver, leave the sloop's sails set?

Then there was the mystery of the the 9-mm pistol with which investigators had assumed Paisley killed himself.

Some of the Paisley's friends said he kept the pistol aboard the Brillig. But Betty Myers, a close friend of Paisley, who was separated from his wife, said he told her he had sold the pistol.

The gun has not been found and Eiseman said medical examiners have not determined that it was a 9-mm slug which killed Paisley.

"If it was, then it was a heavier one than usual," he said.

These questions and others were enough for the U.S. Senate to get into the act, with its intelligence committee beginning an investigation of its own.

A spokesman for the CIA, which is assisting Maryland officers in the investigation, said Paisley was a specialist in Soviet affairs. Since leaving active CIA duty in 1974 he had worked as a consultant for the committee of the agency examing Soviet military spending.

The spokesman, however, denied an allegation by the Paisley family lawyer that agents removed sensitive material from a briefcase found aboard his yacht.

Police are also checking into the possibility that piracy might have been a factor.

"We heard of a case this summer where four people were knocked over the head and pushed off their boat by people who boarded her," Eiseman said. "It's another of the many possibilities we can't discount at this time."

"We really want to get to the bottom of this," another officer said. "Everybody has visions of Russians in minisubs."

Chunks Flake Off 747

TOKYO (AP) — Two pieces of an engine cover ripped off of a Pan American Boeing 747 Tuesday night and fell on two homes near Osaka Airport, but no injuries were reported.

Airline officials said the incident occurred after the Honolulu-bound plane took off from Osaka with 237 passengers and a crew of 15 aboard.

Satellite Switches Off

PASADENA (AP) — NASA engineers were attempting Tuesday to discover why a $75-million satellite launched 3½ months ago went silent, threatening results of a study of the world's oceans.

NASA spokesmen said there is no danger the 5,050-pound Seasat-A satellite might fall from its 800-kilometre-high orbit.

The satellite stopped sending radio signals shortly before midnight Monday night while it was passing over a tracking station in Australia.

Rhodesia Still for Whites

By CARYLE MURPHY
Washington Post

JOHANNESBURG — Rhodesia's interim government Tuesday abolished all statutory racial discrimination but approved a system that preserves the privileges enjoyed by the country's white minority.

Instead of overt racial discrimination, the four-man biracial council established economic and cultural requirements that effectively will limit access of Rhodesia's 6.7 million blacks to housing, education and medical care now used by the 230,000 whites.

As a result, the immediate impact of the lifting of racial discrimination is likely to be limited. Economic requirements alone appear formidable since an average white has an annual income of $9,240 or eleven times than an average black.

The new plans for limited integration, according to Rowan Cronje, white co-minister of education and health, are designed to "retain the high standards to which both (whites and blacks) have become accustomed."

He said that racial restrictions are replaced by "monetary discrimination" which, he said, is practiced in every country outside eastern Europe.

Many blacks expressed disappointment, seeing in the move an attempt by the government to defuse black resentment that has fueled an escalating guerrilla war in Rhodesia.

The new regulations in theory open white residential areas, hospitals and schools to blacks. But a three-tiered arrangement would be introduced.

In the school system, for instance, one tier would comprise schools with high tuition fees — essentially the present all-white schools — to which black children would now be admitted if their parents lived in the zone marked for that school, if they are proficient in English and meet academic requirements.

The other two tiers would be made up of schools with either lower tuition fees or no fees at all.

The present health system, which is a combination of a national public health scheme primarily for blacks who pay minimal fees and a private system for whites who pay higher rates, will be kept. The difference is that now blacks may enter private hospitals formerly reserved for whites if they can afford it.

Tuesday's decisions also included lifting of restrictions on whites to do business in the tribal trust lands which are set aside for the blacks under Rhodesia's land tenure act.

The government's decisions have to be approved by parliament, which is dominated by whites. All the measures affecting schools and medical care, however, will be incorporated into the clauses of the majority rule constitution for an independent Rhodesia. This means that they would not be altered without the votes of the 28 whites who will be guaranteed seats in the proposed 100-member legislative assembly under majority rule.

For many blacks, institutionalization of economic barriers is merely the continuation of discrimination. "If there is no more money for the people, they can't leave," said a 40-year-old messenger. "So nothing has changed." A sales clerk commented, "Only the well off blacks are going to benefit from this."

Emergence of Guru Sects Alarms European Officials

BONN (AP) — Guru sects that have beguiled thousands of young North Americans have spread to Western Europe and government leaders there say they are alarmed.

Officials have been disturbed by news reports linking several sects to allegations about brain-wash conversions, sexual abuse, fraud, visa violations and suicides.

In West Germany, 10 Hare Krishna monks were heavily fined last April for begging $1.2 million under false pretenses — claiming the money was destined for starving children in India, while it actually went to the sect's castle commune.

The sects have been able to flourish under guarantees of freedom of religion. "Unless there is some evidence of criminal activity there is very little the government can do," a British official said.

Only Scientology is banned in Britain. In 1968, the home office found the sect socially harmful, and foreign scientologists were effectively banned from living in Britain.

The Rev. Sun Moon now is resisting efforts to remove him from Britain, where about 3,000 Moonies are believed to be living on farms and in communes.

Transcendental Meditation followers of Maharishi Mahesh Yogi are said to number 80,000 in Britain, growing at 10,000 a year. This sect's country estate is an Elizabethan mansion in Kent.

The Hare Krishna movement has its mansion, bought for it by former Beatle George Harrision, in Hertfordshire, and the Divine Light Mission claims more than 6,000 followers in Britain.

The French interior ministry said the sects are "watched with a magnifying glass" and prosecuted when laws are broken. Ron Hubbard, the American founder of Scientology, is appealing a conviction on fraud charges in France.

The newspaper Le Monde published an interview last month with a 16-year-old girl who admitted prostituting herself to lure men into the Children of God.

The girl said of her acts: "I think of other things. And when it's finished I tell them about our faith."

Girlfriend Hiring Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both President Carter and the head of the Central Intelligence Agency deny that the CIA gave between $35,000 and $40,000 to a Russian defector to pay for the services of a hired female companion.

Carter drew laughter at a news conference Tuesday when he joked that if such a high sum had been paid to the woman, it would have been a clear-cut violation of his anti-inflation program.

Judy Chavez told NBC News that Arkady Shevchenko, a Russian official who defected six months ago from his high-level post at the United Nations, has paid her between $35,000 and $40,000 since his defection.

"If the figures the woman quoted were accurate, which they aren't, it would be highly inflationary, contrary to my policy there," Carter said to laughter from reporters.

The president said that CIA payments to Shevchenko did not equal "what the woman said was paid for her services or favors."

In a statement issued after the news conference, Admiral Stansfield Turner, director of the CIA, said Shevchenko was receiving "compensation from the CIA commensurate with his services and value to the United States." CIA officials refused to give an exact figure.

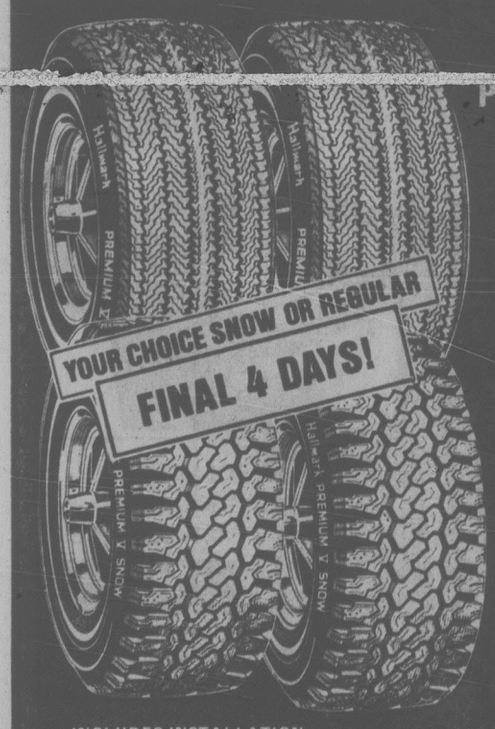

Turner denied that the agency has paid Shevchenko, directly or indirectly, for the cost of Ms. Chavez's companionship, noting that the defector had substantial personal assets including a large payment from the United Nations when he left his job there.

Ms. Chavez told NBC that Shevchenko gave her $500 a night after meeting her through a Washington escort service and later paid her $5,000 a month.

Ottawa Imports Death for Pests

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal agriculture department will soon administer the kiss of death to thousands of imported insect pests in Canada by reuniting them with their natural enemies.

Dr. James Kelleher, head of the department's Bilogical Control Import Station, said in an interview that more than half the estimated 200,000 insect species in Canada hitch-hiked their way to North America in someone's pocket or aboard ships and airplanes.

Some, such as the alfalfa weevil which ravages crops in southern Ontario, will meet their makers sooner while others will meet them later as the department finds, breeds and releases the insects, bacteria or fungus which find them suitable hosts.

At this moment it is possible that a tiny Italian wasp, whose larva enjoy dining on the still-living bodies of the weevils, may be poking its head out of an egg at the station in Ottawa.

Before the snow flies she will probably have laid her eggs in about 50 of the Prince Edward County, Ont., alfalfa-munchers. The eggs will soon become larva and will slowly devour their hosts throughout the winter before they emerge as full-grown wasps in the spring when they will repeat the process with about 2,500 weevils.

Kelleher said that while natural enemies don't exist for every insect species, the Commonwealth Institute for Biological Control has a worldwide network of scientists hunting for predators and parasites.

When they are found, the hungry fungi, bacteria, insects and viruses are scooped up from their jungle, desert or forest habitats and shipped to countries infested with their free-loading prey.

Exhaustive research is done on any organism before it is imported to ensure it feeds only on the insect researchers are trying to bring to heel.

The agriculture department imports about 10 parasites a year through the Ottawa station while other bacteria, fungus and poisonous-weed-eating bugs are cleared through a station in Regina, Kelleher said.

The Asian tansy ragwort, which poisons cattle in British Columbia and Newfoundland, is being devoured by the insect that normally keeps a tight rein on it, while the winter moth, which defoliates trees in the Maritimes, is being liquidated by two of its European predators, he said.

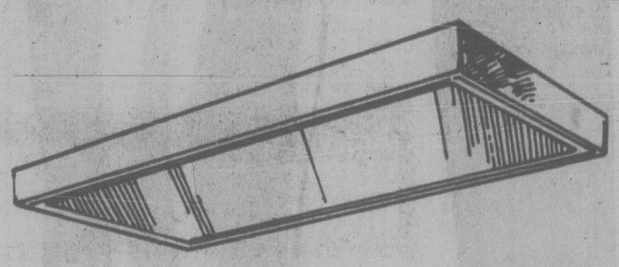

Others, such as the apple-eating coddling worm, spruce and pine sawflies and larch casebearer, also are tangling with their natural enemies.

Biological control has been studied and practised in Canada for more than 30 years but it is only now that it has become more widely used, Kelleher said.

Because chemical pesticides cost almost $10 million to develop and license, and people are less willing to use them, more and more farmers and foresters are interested in natural control methods.

"Natural pesticides do not work as quickly as chemicals, but once they are established the controlling effect is lasting," he said.

Jobless-Debate Tar Flows

OTTAWA (CP) — Government and Opposition MPs accused each other of embarrassment over unemployment statistics Tuesday as Conservative Jim McGrath sought retention of a job vacancy survey being dismantled.

In the Commons, McGrath (St. John's East) demanded that Employment Minister Bud Cullen recommend the government retain a job vacancy survey Statistics Canada has decided to scrap. The survey has consistently shown during the last two years that there are fewer job vacancies than unemployed persons.

McGrath suggested the reason for the move is to save Cullen some embarrassment, saying the monthly figures are needed so that "economic forecasters will at least have some idea of the full extent of this government's mismanagement of the economy."

Cullen said his department can survive without the job vacancy figures, adding: "The only people who should be embarrassed by the figures are those who are constantly misinterpreting them."

Cullen said Statistics Canada decided on its own to scrap the job vacancy survey because it was not used enough to justify the cost.

He said his department has adequate supplies of job information with the Statistics Canada monthly labor force survey, plus unemployment estimated by his department on a constituency basis for purposes of allocating funds through Canada Works, the largest job creation program.

WOMEN PROTEST

TORONTO (CP) — The National Action Committee on the Status of Women has written to the federal minister of employment and immigration to protest proposed reductions in unemployment insurance benefits announced Sept. 1.

The committee said in a letter to the minister, Bud Cullen, that the proposed reductions are a serious attack on working women and called for documentation to support Cullen's statements that women abuse the program and misuse funds.

The committee said the government should establish job-creation programs specifically for women but not limited to low-paid traditionally female jobs.

The committee has asked for a meeting with Prime Minister Trudeau and the cabinet to expand on its recommendations.

Sick Juror Slows Trial

TORONTO (CP) — A fraud conspiracy trial involving 11 business executives and nine dredging companies was adjourned Tuesday because of the illness of a juror.

And the trial will not resume until Thursday because of a Jewish holiday today.

COMPUTER ABUSE HIT

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Universities are teaching students how to use computers for illegal purposes as well as for legitimate ones, a University of Western Ontario professor said Tuesday.

John Carroll, a computer science professor, said during a lecture at the university that many of his own students have said they would perform illegal acts using computers.

He said 12 of 35 students indicated in an attitude check that it would be ethical to use an employer's data bank to predict stock market changes.

He said 13 of his students believed it would be ethical to use an employer's computer facilities to develop programs for personal use and 25 per cent believed it would be right to break the security of a system under a time-sharing service.

Carroll said it has become difficult for employers to determine who is honest when searching for computer personnel.

"Doing a background investigation is becoming increasingly difficult because of the concern of the public about invasion of privacy."

Carroll described how academic files had been altered at another university and said someone had stolen some circuit boards valued at $400 each from Western's own computer.

Carroll said the thief probably decided it would be cheaper to steal the boards than to purchase circuit boards for a personal computer system.

FULL TIME URGED

OTTAWA (FP) — Conservative housing critic Jean Pigott Tuesday called on Urban Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet to resign from two other posts to concentrate full time on Canada's "serious and tragic" housing problem.

Pigott noted there are 155,000 households living in substandard crowded accommodations.

"Yet," she claimed, under Ouellet's leadership, "the National Housing Authority production addressed specially to these problems has declined from approximately 21,000 units in 1971 to under 12,000 in 1977."

CBC Logic Escapes CTV Boss

OTTAWA (CP) — CTV president Murray Chercover said Tuesday he could not follow CBC's arguments justifying its proposal to establish its second English-language television service.

He referred to CBC president Al Johnson's testimony before the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission last week that he planned to have the new network on the air by 1980.

Johnson said the network would be available only on cable television and would carry reruns of prestige CBC programs shown early on its other network.

"If Canadians didn't want to see the shows the first time they were available, by what logic can we say they will watch them the second time?" Chercover asked the commissioners who are considering a CBC request for renewal of its television and radio network licences.

He also cautioned the commission to consider the uproar in Toronto and Vancouver when CBC stations in those cities threatened to bump an American channel off the cable. CBC-2, as it is called, would also have to find room on channel systems across Canada.

Chercover said if funds are available for a second CBC channel, they should instead by put into new Canadian programming which Johnson said is in peril.

He noted that the CBC had told the commission that every new English-language service only further lessened the audiences available to established stations.

Yet the CBC was now planning the same thing.

Chercover also dismissed the CBC plan to increase Canadian-content programming in the prime hours. This would only decrease quality of the programming which then would have to compete against high-cost American shows available on cable.

The CTV president said the CBC, instead of showing the commission how it is carrying out its mandate as a unifying force for Canada and a provider of balanced programming, is trying to blame private broadcasters for its failures.

CANDIDATES IN N.B. STEP UP CAMPAIGN

FREDERICTON (CP) — The leaders of New Brunswick's two major political parties intensified their campaign Tuesday by criss-crossing the province to make appearances in as many ridings as possible before the Oct. 23 provincial election.

Joe Daigle, Liberal opposition leader, released his party's platform at a news conference here Tuesday, then flew off for door-to-door campaigning in the south. He later flew to Grand Falls where he is to campaign before holding the Liberal's first rally today in Premier Richard Hatfield's own riding of Carleton Centre.

Hatfield started his day here with an open-line radio show, then moved on to do some main-streeting in Grand Falls, to open a shopping centre in Bathurst, and to three PC rallies in the southwest corner of the province.

A record 181 candidates, including 36 from the NDP, 23 from the Parti Acadien and six Independants, were officially nominated by the deadline at 2 p.m. Tuesday.

Daigle's platform promised government spending cuts of at least $50 million to be combined with programs to get small business moving.

The Liberal leader promised income tax incentives for new companies, the elimination of an eight per cent sales tax on building supplies, and establishment of a $15 million development fund for small businesses.

MP Charges RCMP Probe Coverup

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais prompted charges of coverup Tuesday when he said the McDonald commission into RCMP wrongdoing has only limited authority to decide what sensitive government documents can be made public.

Blais insisted in the Commons, in reply to William Jarvis (PC—Perth-Wilmot), that this did not represent a change in government policy.

Jarvis said that the government position, stated in arguments by its lawyers in a special hearing of the commission last week, means the commission is losing its right to decide for itself what documents should be made public and what should be released.

Jarvis said the government had changed its policy only two weeks before senior government officials and former solicitor-generals are scheduled to appear before the commission, headed by Justice David McDonald of the Alberta Supreme Court.

Blais told reporters outside the Commons that "there cannot be a delegation of authority for control over publication of cabinet documents to the (McDonald) commission." He said commission counsel J. F. Howard agreed with that policy.

"I was astounded by the reply," Jarvis told reporters. He said the government has stated on numerous occasions since the royal commission into RCMP lawbreaking was established in July, 1977, that it would give it free rein in deciding what could or could not be made public.

"I think its a coverup," Jarvis said. "I can only conclude there is something very damaging to one or more previous solicitor-generals."

Blais insisted that the government had never given the commission the right to decide exclusively on what documents could be made public. Up to now, commission lawyers and the commission had been able to reach agreement on withholding certain documents and deleting names and phrases from some of those released in the interest of national security and protection of sources, he said.

A similar dispute over the release of sensitive documents developed between the government and the Quebec provincial inquiry into the RCMP established by the Quebec government.

That inquiry, headed by Jean Keable, was shut down after the government took the matter to the Federal Court of Canada, claiming the inquiry was overstepping its authority. The matter is under appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada and a decision is expected within a few weeks.

The terms of reference of the McDonald inquiry, developed by the federal cabinet, say that the proceedings of the inquiry shall be held behind closed doors "in all matters relating to national security and in all other matters where the commissioners deem it desirable in the public interest or in the interest of the privacy of individuals involved in specific cases which may be examined."

Constitutional Committee Sends Gov't Back to Drawing Board

By CAROL GOAR
Canadian Press

OTTAWA — After just six weeks of hearings, the joint Senate-Commons committee studying constitutional reform has told the government to go back to the drawing board in redrafting the country's constitution.

Chairman of the committee, MP Mark MacGuigan (Windsor-Walkerville) summarized the unanimous feelings of the 35 committee members Tuesday this way: "We can do better than this. We've told the government to go back to the drawing board and come up with a better job."

MacGuigan spoke to reporters shortly after the report was tabled in the Commons.

Flora MacDonald, Progressive Conservative spokesman for constitutional affairs, called the report "a pretty damning response" to the government's constitutional reform plans.

A special senate committee which has been studying the government's constitutional reform plans at the same time as the joint committee is to report to Parliament Thursday.

It is expected to be highly critical of government proposals relating to the replacement of the Senate and changes in the role of the Monarch.

The report was the response of all four political parties, plus the Senate, to the constitutional reforms package presented to Parliament last June by Prime Minister Trudeau.

The committee said in the report that it is too soon to make detailed recommendations to the government, but added: "Canadians should not get the impression that the constitution cannot be changed."

Provincial Affairs Minister Marc Lalonde told reporters he considers the committee's report a clear sign of support for the government's approach to constitutional reform.

The committee gave its unqualified support to the principle that the 111-year-old British North America Act, which now serves as the country's constitution, should be replaced by a new truly Canadian constitution

But it warned that the avowed intention of the Parti Quebecois government to have its province separate from the rest of the country will make redrafting the constitution more difficult than ever before.

The committee said it was not given enough time to come up with specific recommendations on what it considered the most important proposals in the government package — reform of the courts and of the basic structure of Parliament.

MacGuigan said he sees no possibility of any committee completing its study of the government's constitutional reform package by Lalonde's stated deadline of July 1, 1978.

He told reporters he expects the government to re-establish his committee, which ceased to exist with the ending of the last session of Parliament.

The newly-constituted committee probably will be given a reduced mandate, MacGuigan said. He suggested that the cabinet might signal the committee to postpone examination of the government's plan to abolish the Senate and concentrate on other less controversial parts of the reform package by the July 1 deadline.

The committee made these 13 recommendations:

— It should be reconstituted as a committee so it can continue its work during the new session of Parliament.

— The statement of aims contained in the preamble to the government's proposed new constitution should be redrafted for conciseness and wording.

— The government should continue its efforts to incorporate a charter of human rights and freedoms into the country's constitution.

— The proposed charter of human rights should be redrafted to contain a new listing of fundamental rights and freedoms.

— The rewriting of the charter should also contain a much more precise spelling out of who receives protection under its provisions and which rights and freedoms will be the subject of full legal protection.

— The charter should contain a clearly stated obligation on the part of the state to make sure a citizen can get knowledgeable legal counsel when faced with any criminal or quasi criminal charge.

— A clause in the proposed charter which guarantees basic human rights to Canadian citizens, but not to landed immigrants, should be deleted.

— The charter should include a clause which specifies exactly which rights can be limited when the governments deems it necessary to impose legislation such as the War Measures Act.

— The section of the charter which refers to the basic rights of native people should be changed to ensure they are treated like other Canadians.

— The charter should include a provision making it clear that special programs to help the disadvantaged are not to be viewed as a form of discrimination.

— It should include a provision providing the right to reasonable access to government documents.

— The new constitution should state unequivocally that English and French are the two official languages of the Parliament and government of Canada and both have equal status.

Castro Releases Two Americans

HAVANA (Reuter) — Cuba has released two Americans who have served only one year of a four-year sentence for illegal entry and possession of marijuana, U.S. officials said.

TRUDEAU'S NO FIRM TO VOTE ON NOOSE

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister again flatly rejected the idea of a referendum to determine if Canadians want a return of capital punishment.

He answered George Hees (PC—Prince Edward Hastings) with a flat no when asked whether he would allow Canadians to express themselves on a ballot in the next election.

Trudeau has rejected the idea of hanging votes in the past. He has said he would change his mind if somebody could convince him that hanging murderers is a deterrent.

Wintering on the Balcony

hilda beastall

Balcony gardens in general are less likely to be visited by early frosts than those at ground level, but many are exposed to chilly winds, especially near the more open coast.

Either weather condition will bring to an end the golden days of bountiful flowering of tuberous begonias in planters, fuchsias in hanging containers, and geraniums wherever a sunny spot could be found for them.

With many weeks of glowing color to remember there is no time to regret their loss. This is a time for decision making — are the plants to be kept somewhere during winter? Is it convenient to start them into growth next spring and wait for the plants to fill out again to the flowering stage?

Or is it easier, or possible, to discard the plants when they are no longer pleasant to look at, use the space for decorative winter plants and replace the discarded summer plants by purchasing new ones next year?

The tubers of the begonias are fairly easy to keep over winter, although finding a place with a temperature between 4 and 7 deg. C is difficult in an apartment or condominium.

However, a friend with a house may be willing to look after them, knowing they must be kept in either day sand or dry soil to prevent drying out, and that a lower temperature will spoil the tubers, while more warmth will start weak spindly growth.

Fuchsias may in a mild winter such as experienced locally in 1977-78 be kept safely dormant in a sheltered corner of a balcony where sun does not reach. Some balcony gardeners stand the container with the fuchsia in a cardboard carton first lined with two sections of old newspaper on bottom and sides.

Then on nights when hard frost is forecast or seems possible, another newspaper section is put on top of the plant and the carton lid is closed.

The only cutting back of the fuchsia before putting into the carton is the removal of ends of branches which will not fit into the carton. The soil in the container should be reasonably dry; that is, not saturated. Leave the top open until the cold night is forecast.

The final pruning down to three little green shoots at the base of main stems is done in April or thereabouts.

Geraniums are more difficult to keep. Although stems are succulent (filled with moisture) they seem to ignore light frosts if growing in dryish soil, but to have strong healthy plants with good foliage and full heads of blooms, geraniums need rather special winter care.

Although loving heat and sun when blooming, these plants should be kept only a little above dormancy in winter. The leaves should be maintained in good condition whether the plants are old or are new August cuttings. Both kinds need good overhead daylight, a temperature about 10 deg. C and perhaps once a month a tiny drop of water (according to size of pot) to prevent complete drying of the soil.

A friend with a cool greenhouse — one slightly heated to exclude frost — would have the ideal conditions for winter storage of geraniums and the other plants too.

These in brief are the conditions needed. Yours is the decision to make. Meanwhile, enjoy whatever golden days remain.

Ottawa Planning to Open More 'Secret' Books

OTTAWA (CP) — the government plans to introduce legislation designed to guarantee greater access to information about its operations, State Secretary John Roberts said Tuesday.

He said the legislation will be introduced early in the parliamentary session starting today and will "ensure more open government."

He gave no details of the legislation but said it will be more liberal in some ways than June proposals of a joint Senate-Commons committee.

He indicated however that the cabinet, not the courts, will continue to have the final say on whether information will be made public.

Roberts was replying in the Commons to Gerald Baldwin (PC—Peace River). The Commons was meeting briefly to end the session that started a year ago.

Baldwin sought Commons approval of an all-party committee report recommending tough freedom-of-information laws.

Deputy Prime Minister Allan MacEachen blocked adoption of this report in June, saying the government needed time to study the recommendations.

The committee recommended narrower grounds for refusing to make documentation and other information public than those advocated by the government.

No longer would the government be able to cite national security as a reason for withholding information. It would have to be more specific than that.

Roberts told Baldwin the legislation will include even narrower exemptions to the rule of disclosure than proposed by the committee.

But he continued the government's policy of balking at the idea, also recommended by the committee, of allowing those refused information to appeal to the courts.

He said that idea is cumbersome and costly and "it is to my mind something to be avoided."

While judges were skilled at interpreting law, they were not able to make the same determinations of public interests that cabinet ministers could.

However, there had to be some mechanism to ensure that cabinet ministers did not make frivolous decisions.

Baldwin, chairman of the committee, noted that the report was supported unanimously by MPs and senators from all parties. He said he hopes the government adopts 99.9 per cent of its recommendations.

The issue is particularly timely, Baldwin said because the government last week told the federal royal commission investigating RCMP wrongdoing that the cabinet has the final say on which documents the commission will examine in public.

Baldwin said Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais, whom he described as a mobile disaster, had "the unmitigated gall" to try to prevent Canadians from finding out whether cabinet ministers approved or knew of illegal acts committed by the RCMP.

He said the commission under Alberta Justice David McDonald is about to try to find out if cabinet ministers were aware of what was going on in the RCMP, were a party to it and recommended it.

He said a freedom-of-information bill should establish an information commissioner who would attempt to work out a deal with a government department withholding information.

Prison Nurse Released Unharmed

FORT SASKATCHEWAN, Alta. (CP) — A female nurse at Fort Saskatchewan Correctional Institute was released unharmed Tuesday about an hour after she was held hostage by a prisoner armed with a razor blade.

A spokesman for the solicitor-general's department said the woman was taken hostage in an interview room.

No injuries were reported and no names were released.

Forces Plan To 'Invade' N.S. Beaches

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — The Canadian Airborne Regiment from Petawawa, Ont., will land on the beaches of Cape Breton on Thursday in the first of three attacks to test battle-simulated conditions.

The forces will land first at Port Morien, about 18 kilometres from here, in an exercise called Neptune Raider.

Other raids will be staged at L'Ardois on Oct. 14 and at Isle Madame on Oct. 16.

At each landing point, military forces will land from helicopters and naval warships in the morning, perform exercises for the next 24 hours and leave by noon the next day.

Blank ammunition and pyrotechnics will be used to simulate — at least in sound and color — an actual invasion, a local military official said Tuesday.

Military groups participating in the exericise include the 427th tactical helicopter squadron and the 5th Canadian destroyer squadron with three ships carrying landing forces.

Troops from the 2nd Battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment, stationed at Camp Gagetown, N.B., also will participate.

The defensive unit includes the 45th field engineers squadron, the 2nd Battalion of the Nova Scotia Highlanders, the 35th Sydney Service Battalion, and the 35th Medical Corps.

Booming Market Leads to Worm-Pickers War

DISASTER PRELUDE

BATH, England (CP) — The sounds of potential disaster are being listened to by British researchers.

They are leaders in the rapidly expanding science of acoustic emission, literally recording and analysing the first faint creaks in materials and structures that could mean catastrophe is on its way.

Don Birchon, explaining the technique to an audience at a British Association for the Advancement of Science meeting here, said that in a few years time acoustic emission will be used to monitor manufacturing processes, to test the safety of pressure vessels and even to keep a constant check on bridges and aircraft in use. Its applications, he said, are enormous.

The big advantage of acoustic emission is that it gives early warning of some event inside metals or plastics, for example, that could be the first sign of failure. No other method can do this.

Materials under stress make faint sounds that can easily be picked up by a microphone or other sensor. By using two or more sensors, and knowing the speed of sound through the material, they can be used also to pinpoint where the stress or crack is.

Unlike any other technique for monitoring, such as ultrasonics or radiography, acoustic emission, it is claimed, can listen to the whole volume of the material in a structure from a few points.

So there are no problems of getting instruments into awkward places or even not being able to get there at all. A lot of detailed information can be obtained simply, and large structures can be monitored.

Birchon works at the admiralty's marine technology establishment, which now has a mobile laboratory for monitoring with acoustic emission. He said there are plans to listen to structures as large as North Sea oil rigs in the near future.

onitoring leaks by the faint noises made was a technique already so refined that they could be pinpointed in plant or machinery by using equipment no bigger than a torch.

TORONTO (CP) — In recent years, the once-lowly worm-picking business has mushroomed into a multi-billion dollar industry, says the National Worm Growers' Exchange (200 members) in Smyrna, Tex.

Garden shops and seed companies order organic plant food produced by worms that dine on garbage, and cities experiment with worms by the millions to dispose of waste and sewage.

Fishing bait, the traditional outlet for worms, now is only 10 per cent of the market, said John Meyers of the U.S. worm exchange, in Canada recently to recruit new breeders.

The big market is in selling worms for garbage-disposal or for soil improvement in reforestation projects.

But the booming market has sparked a fierce "worm-pickers war" among bait dealers in the Toronto-Hamilton area.

In July, a Hamilton dealer found a gasoline bomb near his warehouse and stamped out another blazing Molotov cocktail beneath the gas tank of his truck, loaded with $50,000 worth of worms.

Peter Kotsifas, a Toronto bait merchant, also reported harassment.

"Nobody ever bombed me but I often find the tires slashed on my van," he said. "And this summer a competitor's truck tried to ram me off the road when I was carrying 10 worm pickers, all women.

Kotsifas is based in a converted garage in central Toronto and in a refrigerated back room were 600,000 dew worms, all wriggling in styrofoam boxes, ready for export to U.S. fishermen.

The shipment was worth $19,200, or 38.4 cents a dozen. In Detroit they were marked up to about $1 a dozen.

Like many small shippers in the Toronto area, Kotsifas tours ethnic neighborhoods after dark in a small bus, picking up Greek and Portuguese women for nightly forays on the golf courses and pastures around the city, and occasional raids on suburban front lawns.

With flashlights strapped to their heads and tin cans secured to their legs with rubber bands, the pickers snatch dew worms from the moist ground and plunk them into cans.

A good picker can collect 15,000 worms a night and earn up to $28 a thousand.

The dealer also has to pay the golf course $1,000 to $5,000 for the April-to-September season.

In the last five years, at least 200 illegal operators have added to the competition and contributed to the gangland-type warfare, said a manager of National Bait Inc., a large Toronto wholesaler.

The illegal pickers rent vans or trucks, lure workers away from legitimate companies by paying them cash and not requiring them to declare income, and trespass on lawns or golf courses.

"These guys have caused a 40-per-cent drop in our business and are giving legal bait companies a bad name," said the spokesman, who asked to remain anonymous.

"Because they don't pay taxes, they can afford to offer large discounts to American wholesalers and retailers."

Some suburban residents are fed up with the hordes of worm pickers, legal or illegal.

"We live in an area with many golf courses, many farms, many private residences," one Markham resident wrote a Toronto newspaper recently. "Never once has permission been asked to pick worms.

"Worm pickers have ripped down fences, allowed cows and horses to wander on the road in the middle of the night, trod on gardens, harassed farm animals and people who complain, and just in general made a complete nuisance of themselves."

From now on, he vowed, he would phone police whenever he saw worm pickers trespassing in his area.

"No one has the right to take my worms without my permission," he concluded.

Cheque Total Up

Value of cheques and other withdrawals from deposit accounts at Victoria chartered banks totalled $4.2 billion in August, up from $3.7 billion in the same month one year ago.

But the total was down slightly from $4.3 billion in July.

Figures are released by the Canadian Bankers Association. The figures are considered a valuable barometer of the economic vigor of the private sector in the community.

Cheques drawn on the federal government are not included in the totals.

EIGHT IS ENOUGH: GOULT

Oak Bay Ald. John Goult said Tuesday night he won't seek re-election in next month's municipal election.

"Eight years is long enough," he said when asked for his reasons. Asked if he will run for mayor next year, he said "I'll see when the time comes."

Ald. Shirley Dowell said she will seek re-election and quickly added she will run for mayor — but only when incumbent Brian Smith steps down.

The third alderman whose term expires at the end of this year, Doug Watts, said he will probably run again.

Saanich Ties String To Paying Its Share

Saanich wants to have a representative on Greater Victoria's Economic Development Commission in 1979.

Council's finance committee recommended Tuesday night that Saanich pay its share of the commission's budget for next year, but on the clear understanding that the municipality "expects" to be represented.

The provincial government pays half the commission's expenditures and the remaining $32,000 is financed by the four municipalities. The Saanich share is 40 per cent of the latter.

It was Mayor Mel Couvelier who raised the issue of Saanich participation without representation.

"They have never asked for a Saanich representative to sit on that commission," he said.

"I find it dificult to understand given the fact that we are paying a major proportion of their expenses, and have most of the potential industrial land out here."

18 to 22.6% Pay Hikes For Saanich Endorsed

Saanich council's finance committee recommended Tuesday night that council members' salaries be increased effective Jan. 1, 1979.

If council endorses the recommendation next week, the mayor's salary would be increased by 18 per cent or $3,388 to $22,014 and the aldermen's remuneration by 22.6 per cent or $1,338 to $7,338.

The formula for determining the increase — on the basis of population figures: 30 cents per capita for the mayor and 10 cents per capita for the aldermen — will be as suggested by Mayor Mel Couvelier. But the timing will be different.

In a detailed report on the subject, the mayor had suggested that the increases not take effect until the term of office of each present council member expires.

Under that system the four aldermen elected this November would have received the higher salary rate during 1979, but the other four aldermen and the mayor would have remained at the present salary level until after next year's municipal elections.

Municipal controller-treasurer Roy Broughton told the committee Monday night he doubted that members of the same council could receive differing rates of pay.

But there were other objections which prompted committee members initially to refer Couvelier's report to next year's budget committee.

Ald. Howard Sturrock said the amounts arrived at seemed reasonable, but he disliked the suggested per capita formula.

Not only would this require adjustment every year, he noted, but future increases would be a nominal two or two and a half per cent — far less than the increase in the cost of living.

Sturrock suggested the Saanich salaries be determined by averaging those paid by three municipalities of roughly similar population size: Delta, Richmond and Victoria.

But Ald. John Mika said he is opposed to any fixed formula because it does not allow sufficient flexibility in decision making to cope with differing conditions.

"I see a value in living on an ad hoc basis," he said. "In good times we can give ourselves the same increase as the rest of the community enjoys. But in bad times it is particularly important for psychological reasons, if we are expecting others to sacrifice, that we show we are willing to sacrifice as community leaders."

Ald. Mary Casilio said in view of the difficult year facing taxpayers she could not justify an increase for aldermen, although she felt the mayor deserved one.

After the committee had shelved his report until next year's budget consideration, Couvelier rebuked aldermen for not having the courage to make a decision now.

Ald. Geoff Vantreight then obtained support for a motion to accept the mayor's recommendations, with the amendment that all the increases take effect Jan. 1, 1979.

Ald. David Paterson pointed out that the increase would be the first since 1976. He said if council had given itself modest pay increases last year and this, it would not now be facing a catch-up situation generating "unfortunate publicity."

Faculty Club Move In Doubt

A proposal to move the University of Victoria's Faculty Club into University House appears headed for defeat, club chairman Dr. Reg Mitchell said Tuesday.

Mitchell said a questionnaire circulated last week indicates only 69 per cent of UVic's full-time staff would support a faculty club move to the six-year-old mansion, built as the residence for former president Bruce Partridge.

The faculty club has been working to gain support for a move to the $250,000 property from its cramped quarters in some converted army huts on campus.

To offset the $700,000 renovation costs, the club opened its membership to all full-time staff and voted to increase annual dues from $60 to $96 a year.

But questionnaire results indicate not enough are interested in the proposition to make it financially viable.

Results of the questionnaire will be discussed Thursday at a faculty club general meeting and again Oct. 16 at a board of governors meeting were it is doubtful the relocation will be approved, Mitchell said.

The questionnaire asked all full-time UVic staff if they would retain their club membership or be willing to join if the board of governor's approved the move.

The 468-member club needs about 100 new members to make the project work, but it will probably lose members this year, Mitchell said.

Some don't want to belong to the club because dues have been raised.

And some don't want to be associated with University House, which they regard as a white elephant, Mitchell said.

The property at 3815 Haro, used as a president's residence for only 14 months, now houses some administrative offices and is occasionally used for high-level social functions.

The administrative offices will be moved to the new wing of the Clearihue Building soon and Mitchell says he has no idea what will happen to University House then.

He said the UVic staff's reluctance to support the move is a disappointing and short-sighted.

Necessary renovations to the existing club will cost at least $250,000 and probably more in the long term, Mitchell said.

A move to the much-larger University House would solve the space shortage of the 10-year-old club, which is having trouble keeping up with demands on its services, he said.

It would also solve the problem of what to do with University House, which [illegible] leness, Mitchell said.

Saanich Takes Aim At Slow Taxpayers

Tough action last year by Saanich against tax defaulters hasn't had the deterrent effect officials expected so the municipality is about to get even tougher.

The finance committee recommended Tuesday night that legal action be taken against all taxpayers owing more than $2,500 after Nov. 30.

Last year, such action was taken in respect of overdue tax bills exceeding $5,000, and Saanich succeeded in collecting $250,000 of the amount outstanding.

In a memorandum to the committee, municipal controller-treasurer Roy Broughton said the crackdown was expected to reduce 1978 uncollected taxes by about $200,000 but that hasn't happened.

By Aug. 31 this year defaulting taxpayers owed Saanich a total of $1.73 million, only $10,000 less than at the same time last year.

The warning letters to go out to delinquent payers will warn them that beside facing court action after Nov. 30, an additional five per cent penalty will be applied from that date.

NOVEMBER BUDGET PROMISED

OTTAWA (FP) — Finance Minister Jean Chretien Tuesday declared he hopes to have a budget before the commons by mid-November and rejected opposition demands that he bring down an immediate financial statement.

It will be his third financial accounting to parliament since he took office in September, 1977. He brought in a minibudget in October, 1977, and a full budget in April this year.

The opposition was sharply critical of the government's handling of the economy in this final sitting day of the third session of the 30th parliament. However the questioning was relatively subdued and in keeping with the declaration of the official opposition that it intends to conduct itself in a "responsible" manner to make the institution of parliament function.

Those who had been expecting verbal fireworks during the first sitting since the commons took its lengthy summer recess were disappointed.

Joe Clark, leader of the official opposition, opened the question period with a query as to whether a budget would be presented to parliament this month.

Chretien said his department is working on a new budget at this time.

Living-Cost Drop First in 7 Years

OTTAWA (CP) — The cost of living dropped during September for the first time in seven years, Statistics Canada reported today.

The 12-month inflation rate fell to 8.6 per cent from the August rate of 9.4 per cent.

The federal agency attributed the decline to lower prices for fresh fruit and vegetables, which dropped by 12.1 per cent and 30.9 per cent respectively from one month earlier.

Food prices decreased by 2.4 per cent in September from their August level, but prices for all other items included by Statistics Canada in its consumer price index increased by 0.7 per cent.

Among non-food items, the largest price increases were for home heating oil, household appliances, women's clothing, footwear, local transportation and books.

The last time the national price level, measured by the index, decreased was in September, 1971.

Commenting on the monthly decrease in the cost of living, Sinclair Stevens, Progressive Conservative finance critic, said an annual inflation rate of 8.6 per cent should not give the government any cause for rejoicing.

He predicted, however, that the drop in prices will have a positive effect on the dollar on world currency markets, arguing that traders would be more hesitant to speculate against the currency.

(The Canadian dollar continued to drop on international money markets for the second straight day Wednesday despite news that inflation eased. At 11 a.m. EDT the dollar was trading at 84.47 cents U.S., down 7/50ths of a cent from Tuesday's closing rate of 84.61 cents.)

The over-all consumer price index, which measures a basket of goods and services the average Canadian is likely to consume, stood at 177.5 in September, compared with 177.8 in August.

This means that a standard basket of goods and services which cost $177.80 in August, would have cost $177.50 in September. In September, 1977, that same basket would have cost $163.40.

Statistics Canada said the buying power of a 1971 dollar to a consumer now is 56 cents. Last year at this time it bought 61 cents worth of goods and services.

Last month's brief respite from the inflation, which has plagued the economy this year, is not expected to last. Sales tax reductions which have been in effect since last April expire this month in six provinces.

100,000 Jobs To Go, Says NDP

OTTAWA (CP) — About 100,000 jobs will be lost as a result of the $2.5 billion in spending cuts announced by the government last month, says New Democratic Party Leader Ed Broadbent says.

Citing a secret study, Broadbent urged Prime Minister Trudeau to cut short the Throne speech debate scheduled for this week and next and bring in a new budget to stimulate the economy.

Meanwhile, Employment Minister Bud Cullen announced the government will ease proposed unemployment insurance cutbacks so they will not hit as hard as predicted on seasonal workers.

That was a response, he said, to protests of Liberal backbench MPs from the Atlantic region who are concerned the changes will hit too hard at fishermen.

Broadbent said in an interview outside the Commons that although he hasn't seen the secret job forecast, "we understand on good authority there is an assessment of the impact of the cutbacks that says 100,000 jobs will be lost."

That figure tallies with estimates prepared by researchers in his own office, he said.

Broadbent said it was important that the adverse effect on the economy resulting from the cuts in government spending be offset by tax cuts to help provide stimulus.

Trudeau told Broadbent he would be willing to talk with opposition party leaders about cutting short the eight-day debate on the Throne speech.

Cullen said today he is

ICBC Claims Phone Jam Ending

Victoria's ICBC claims centre on Douglas Street is a disaster area but most of the problems will be solved by Christmas, says manager J.A. Bell.

"We admit we're swamped. People are complaining and I don't blame them a bit. However, we are working on the solution."

(A number of people have also contacted the Times, reporting busy signals at the claims centre lasting several hours.)

To remedy the problem, ICBC is awaiting:

— A new switchboard to be installed in December, doubling the number of lines to 28 from 14.

— Some additional direct lines to be installed so customers can reach a claims officer directly without having to go through the switchboard.

— Four more people to be hired to answer phones.

"We have had the new switchboard on order for months but we've been waiting for B.C. Tel to install it," Bell said.

Within two weeks some direct lines will be installed and the four additional employees will be hired.

With the present switchboard, which ICBC inherited from the previous owner, no operator can answer when all 14 lines are in use, which is often.

So there is just a busy signal for much of the day.

With the new switchboard, operators will be able to receive calls when the board is full and put customers on hold or advise them to call back.

The problem of getting through to ICBC has been compounded, Bell said, by an upswing in claims.

For example, there are normally about 2,500 claims a month but there were an extra 600 in August.

"This increase came at a time when 20 per cent of our staff was on vacation. We were surprised by the high number of claims and now we have a backlog that began in August."

The centre will also get a new building, which will create adequate office space for the first time.

"And if it isn't adequate, we can expand the building."

The building, on the south end of the property, should be ready for occupancy before the end of 1979, he said.

CS Pay Reins Planned

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Despite a public service rebellion, the federal government today announced plans to reintroduce its controversial bill to tie public service wage increases to those in the private sector.

Parliament will be asked to approve a bill to "ensure that compensation in the federal public service remains in step with the private sector and does not lead the way," the government said in the throne speech that opened the fourth session of the 30th Parliament.

The announcement could have some effect on the 15 federal byelections Monday. The Public Service Alliance of Canada, with the backing of the entire labor movement, has conducted a well-orchestrated campaign against any candidate who supports the proposal.

The bill was introduced last session and died when the session was prorogued.

A public service demonstration against the government was set to be held after delivery of the throne speech.

The New Democratic Party already has served notice that it will not support a bill to place restrictions on public service wage increases.

Stanley Knowles, NDP House Leader, said Tues-

DEADLY HOUSE HUSH

OTTAWA (FP) — An expected opposition stoning of a government on the run failed to materialize Tuesday when MPs returned to their desks in the Commons, fresh from a summer recess of more than three months.

The attack was gentle and the Conservative benches were surprisingly quiet with the traditional desk-pounding for speakers left only to the Liberal ranks.

The gentle handling of the Liberals was just a calm before a storm likely to start Thursday following the government's Throne Speech today.

However, the moratorium on desk pounding may continue among Tory ranks for some time.

ALERT STUDENTS SPOT MISSING ART

Two of 20 art treasures missing from the University of Victoria's Maltwood Art Museum and Gallery have been returned.

A spokesman for the gallery said today a couple of alert students are responsible for the recovery of the two paintings.

The students recognized the paintings hanging in an office on campus from photographs circulated on campus by gallery curator Martin Segger.

Segger sent out a memo several weeks ago along with pictures of the 20 missing pieces.

The disappearance of the art objects, mainly paintings, was discovered this summer when the collection was moved into the new University Centre.

Beirut's Ceasefire Jolted by Gunfire

BEIRUT (AP) — Bursts of gunfire and explosions jolted the Syrian-Christian ceasefire in Beirut before dawn today as Syrian troops and their adversaries in Lebanon's Christian militias were reported bringing up reinforcements..

President Elias Sarkis accelerated a tour of Arab capitals as his country was threatened with a new round of Syrian-Christian fighting.

Beirut police and other witnesses reported an increase of sniper fire on roads leading into the city's Christian enclave, apparently to cover the influx of reinforcements.

The Christians accused the Syrians of initiating the firing Tuesday night. They said Syrian sniper fire killed 15 Christians and wounded 25 on the bridges leading into East Beirut from the Christian hinterland to the north.

There was no comment from the Syrians.

It was the second threat in less than 24 hours to the ceasefire, now in its fourth day. Syrian and Christian forces exchanged machine-gun and sniper fire and rocket grenades for an hour across the green line Tuesday afternoon.

The water cutoff appeared to be in retaliation for a food blockade which the Christian Voice of Lebanon radio station said the Syrians have clamped on East Beirut. It said all relief and supply convoys to the Christian sector, including Red Cross vehicles, were being turned back.

Sarkis had been scheduled to fly to Kuwait today from the United Arab Emirates but instead went to Kuwait Tuesday night. He is trying to get the other Arab states that have token forces in the mostly-Syrian peacekeeping force to extend the force's mandate another six months. The mandate expires Oct. 28.

From Kuwait, the president was scheduled to go to Sudan and then back to Damascus for more talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad. The Syrian leader said Sarkis was seeking approval of "ideas we have agreed upon" and would return to the Syrian capital so they "can put them into final shape."

Post Office Ad Fans Fires of CUPW Strike

MAIL STRIKE THREATENS UNITED WAY

Victorians were urged today to send in their donations to the United Way immediately because of the possibility of a postal strike next week.

Campaign chairman Bob Mussett said $78,000 was received through mail solicitations last year and $90,000 has been budgeted this year. So far, $16,000 has been received.

"We're very disturbed over the loss that will occur if the mailers are not returned," he said.

"We get twice as much from the mailers as from door-to-door."

He said if there is a postal strike, United Way will announce a contingency plan. But the campaigners prefer that contributions be mailed ahead of any possible strike.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Local officers of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) have angrily denounced an advertisement setting out the post office's view of negotiations with inside postal workers.

Larry Honeybourne, CUPW regional grievance officer, predicted Tuesday it would strengthen the strike mandate now being sought and worsen already troubled labor relations.

He said he will use the advertisement as ammunition at union meetings being held this week to authorize a strike. The vote is expected to be announced Monday.

Honeybourne said the advertisement is one more reason making it unlikely workers would obey threatened federal legislation ordering them back to work under current circumstances.

"If we don't have a collective agreement, we can't take the conciliation report — there are too many items to negotiate. I'm sure the membership wouldn't go back on that basis."

Lloyd Ingram, president of the Vancouver local, called the advertisement a "thin tissue of lies, half-truths and distortions."

"Postal workers will never accept the shoddy offers and shoddy tactics of the employer in this contract dispute," he said. "And I have every confidence that when the truth is known the public will most definitely side with the just demands of CUPW."

Entitled It's Your Money!, the advertisement compares the union bargaining position with the employer's offer. It follows discussions post office managers held with employees on the plant floor last week.

Security Council Raps U.S. For Allowing Smith to Visit

Times News Services

The United States was rapped on the knuckles by the UN Security Council on Tuesday for allowing the current visit of Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith.

The council voted 11 to 0 for a four-country resolution censuring the U.S. because it broke the 1968 mandatory sanctions imposed by the UN against Rhodesia which include visits by illegals such as Smith.

Only France among the five Western members of the council voted for the resolution, sponsored by India, Kuwait, Mauritius and Nigeria.

Canada, West Germany, Britain and the U.S. abstained.

In explaining Canada's vote, Ambassador William Barton said the Canadian government recognized that the Smith visit was a violation of sanctions voted by the council.

But the government also took into account the factors at play in the Rhodesian situation, Barton said. No stone must be left unturned in trying to make progress in negotiations to end the conflict in Rhodesia.

Richard Petree, sitting in for U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young, said Smith's visit does not mean the U.S. has decided to recognize the Smith regime or lift embargoes on trade with Rhodesia.

The Rhodesians are trying to sell to the U.S. their plan for internal settlement leading to their version of majority rule, which has become suspect among most countries of the world.

Stolen Paper Threat to Agents?

OTTAWA (CP) — The Journal says that a missing top-secret security document might be a threat to the lives of some undercover RCMP officers.

The newspaper says in a front-page story today that senior officers of the RCMP security service are working "frantically but so far unsuccessfully" to find the person who stole the document from RCMP files.

It quotes a senior government official as saying that the document contains the names of scores of RCMP undercover operatives and informants. If it was made public, the lives of some of these people might be endangered.

It adds that the RCMP knows that a deep-cover operative has breached security but his motives are a mystery. Speculation centred on someone who hates the RCMP or the Trudeau government and who has embarked on a vendetta.

One lead being followed involved a mystery man using the name Maurice Pelletier and now believed to be operating in the New York City area.

The Journal says Pelletier has been providing some Canadian newspapers with copies of RCMP private telegraph messages dating to 1971. The messages outlined an operation named Carte Blanche.

Carte Blanche, says the newspaper, involves the surveillance in Canada of French diplomats and their links with separatist groups in Quebec. The operation was started because of a French intelligence operation, called Operation Ascott, a 25-year French government plan aimed at aiding Quebec separation.

This operation, says the newspaper, began with the Charles de Gaulle regime in 1958.

Tuesday, Progressive Conservative MP Tom Cossitt (Leeds) said French undercover agents involved in Ascott left Canada in 1972, but the French government continued to finance the separatist cause.
